VOL. 91. No. 62. PART ONE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 6, 1938. PAGES 1—14A ●●●●● PRICE 10 CENTS.

EACH VOTER GETS THREE BALLOTS IN ELECTION TUESDAY

One Covers Candidates of All Parties, Another City Bond Issues and Third State Propositions.

REGISTRATION HERE ABOUT 350,000

Official Predicts That 80 Per Cent Will Cast Ballots—County to Fill 45 Local Offices.

Voters of St. Louis, in addition to participating in the choice of a United States Senator and three State officials in Tuesday's general election, will elect 63 major and minor administrative, judicial and legislative officials. In St. Louis County 45 local offices will be filled.

The polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m., at 783 precincts in the city and 201 in the county.

The total of the city registration of voters has not been compiled, but Chairman William H. Woodward of the Election Board estimated it yesterday at 350,000. He predicted a vote of 280,000, or 80 per cent of the registration. In the comparable election four years ago the vote was 274,251, or 73 per cent of the registration at that time, which was 378,660.

The county registration is 112,731. Chairman James L. McQuie of the County Election Board predicted a vote of 75,000.

Three Ballots for Voters.

Each voter will get three ballots. Party nominees will be listed in columns, by parties, on the usual blanket ballot. There are full tickets of Democrat and Republicans and partial tickets of the Socialist and Socialist-Labor parties. The county ballot will have two additional columns, one for the Prohibition party and one headed Nonpartisan, but the only candidates on these will be, respectively, for Justice of the Peace and for Constable.

To vote a straight party ticket, the voter will mark an X in the circle at the top of the party column. However, he may vote against one or more nominees of that party by marking an X in the squares opposite names of nominees of other parties.

Nine State Propositions.

The second ballot will list the nine State propositions. Eight of these are constitutional amendments, while No. 5 is a referendum on an act of the Legislature to increase the State gasoline tax. A "yes" vote on the amendments is, of course, in favor of their adoption, while a "yes" vote on No. 5 is in favor of approving the legislative act. A majority is required for the passage of each of the propositions.

For city voters the third ballot will list two bond issue propositions—No. 1 for $500,000 for new fire engine houses and equipment and No. 2 for $750,000 for the city's share of a proposed WPA work relief program. St. Louis County voters will have on the third ballot a single proposition, for an $850,000 bond issue for a new Courthouse at Clayton. Two-thirds majorities will be needed for the passage of all the bond proposals.

Democratic leaders generally have been counting confidently on a clean sweep for their ticket in St. Louis and, in the county, for the election of most, if not all of their candidates. Republican leaders, on the other hand, after six years in the minority party, have asserted the tide is beginning to turn in their favor. Privately, they are not sanguine of victory in this election, except in a few county offices.

Energetic Campaign.

An energetic campaign has been waged by the Democrats in the city, and the Republicans have shown considerably more activity than for some recent elections, with a vigorous canvass on the part of many of the Republican nominees. With indications of a more evenly divided vote in the county, the contest there has been more spirited than in the city.

Police will be on duty all day Tuesday at all the city polling places. The Election Board will have 200 deputy commissioners at headquarters, for dealing with any incidents arising at the polls.

Saloons must remain closed from midnight Monday to 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Election day will be a holiday for city, county and State employes, thousands of whom will devote the day to getting out the vote for the Democratic ticket.

Offices to Be Filled.

On the State section of the ballot will be nominees for United

JAPANESE SINK 25 JUNKS CARRYING CHINESE TROOPS

Planes Bomb Vessels Bearing Retreating Soldiers From Hankow—Invaders Driven Out of Town Near Canton

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6 (Sunday).—The Japanese command reported today that airmen had bombed and sunk 25 junks carrying Chinese troops up the Siang River in retreat from the Japanese offensive, spreading out from fallen Hankow.

The Siang empties into the Yangtze through Tungting Lake at Yochow, gateway to unconquered Hunan Province 122 miles upstream from Hankow. Yochow is in the middle of a semi-circular front ranging from Hankow's northwest to southeast.

The Japanese also reported capture of Tsaoshih, 60 miles from Hankow, near the northwestern extreme of the curving line.

This announcement followed reports last night that the offensive southwest of Hankow was within 60 miles of Yochow, which also is on the Canton-Hankow railway.

An army spokesman said the Japanese column which occupied Tungshan on Friday had pressed westward, taking Nanmuchiao, and was threatening Tsungyang, 55 miles east-northeast of Yochow.

The Japanese said the last remaining Chinese warships were cornered in Tungting Lake, southwest of Yochow. Capture of Yochow would carry land warfare into Hunan Province and, if this report is true, would bottle up the remnants of the Chinese Yangtze fleet.

Of the war in South China, Kuomin, a Chinese news agency, reported the counter-offensive toward Canton had brought Chinese back into control of Samshui, within 25 miles of the Kwangtung Province metropolis which the Japanese took Oct. 21, five days before the fall of Hankow.

This report said the Chinese took Samshui by storm and engaged in hand-to-hand fighting to defeat the Japanese.

The same agency reported that since the beginning of the war, just 16 months ago, Japanese warships had sunk or burned 628 Chinese junks in South China waters, causing loss of 1092 lives.

MOTHER WHO BURNED LIGHT FOR CONVICT FOR YEARS DIES

Mrs. Ellen LaTrasse Spent Lifetime Waiting for Train-Robber Son to Come Home.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Nov. 5.—A life-time of waiting for her "Willie"—Bill LaTrasse, a convicted train robber—to come home have ended for Mrs. Ellen Delphine LaTrasse, 87 years old.

Friends recalled that Mrs. LaTrasse, who died yesterday, kept a light burning in her window after her son had escaped the Lansing penitentiary and joined the French Foreign Legion. He had been taken to Lansing for the single-handed holdup of a Missouri-Pacific passenger train early in the century.

LaTrasse did come back and settle accounts with the law. He took up shoe repairing, the occupation of his father, who had died, but a few years ago he was arrested for the holdup of a tavern proprietor in Kansas City, Mo. He went to prison again, and again Mrs. LaTrasse waited.

LaTrasse is in the penitentiary at Jefferson City now, and other relatives must decide whether to hold his mother's funeral in Missouri. Unless they do, the law will bar her "Willie" from attending.

DRIVER CAUGHT AFTER AUTO INJURES MAN

Forced to Curb by Second Motorist Who Barely Avoided Hitting Victim.

James F. McNamara, 3509 Clarence avenue, was run down and seriously injured at Natural Bridge and Clarence avenues last night by an automobile, the driver of which left the scene but was pursued and stopped several blocks away by a passing motorist.

McNamara, 34 years old, a clerk, was taken to De Paul Hospital, where he was found to be suffering from a compound leg fracture, a broken collar bone and arm and internal injuries.

He was struck by a westbound machine after he had left a bus at the northeast corner and started to cross the street. The automobile turned left into Clarence. McNamara was hurled into the path of a machine driven by Robert Davenport, 6310 North Broadway, who swerved sharply and avoided striking him.

Davenport then turned and pursued the other car a block south to Lexington avenue, three blocks west to Taylor avenue and back to Natural Bridge, where he forced the machine to the curb as it was about to turn east, toward the scene of the accident. Davenport persuaded the driver to get in his car and returned to the scene, where he turned him over to police.

The driver gave his name as Richard Newby, a chauffeur, 3427A North Ninth street, and told police he left the scene because he was excited and that he was about to return when stopped by Davenport. He said he had been accompanied by a young woman, whom he let out of the car on Clarence near Lexington. He was booked at Deer Street Police Station on charges of felonious wounding and leaving the scene of injury to a person.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 5.—An official announcement said today that 3522 of the approximately 15,000 Jewish families in Italy have been exempted from the Government's anti-Jewish decrees.

The announcement said those to whom the concessions were granted by the Fascist Grand Council included:

Three families of Jews wounded while fighting for the Fascist cause, 406 families of war dead, 722 families of war volunteers, 1597 families of Jews awarded the Cross of Merit, 724 families enrolled in the Fascist Party before its march in Rome in 1924, and 51 families of legionnaires who occupied Fiume with the late Gabriele d'Annunzio in 1919.

ROOSEVELT SAID TO PLAN TRIPLING ARMY AIR FLEET

Reported to Seek Increase of Initial Protective Force to 400,000 Men, With 1,000,000 Reserves

FULL EQUIPMENT ALSO PROPOSED

Preparations to Include Mobilizing of Industry in Case of War—Cuban Leader's Visit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Administration circles heard today that President Roosevelt intended definitely to ask Congress to authorize one of the world's most powerful air fleets, numbering from 7000 to 10,000 war planes, for the army.

His plans to bolster national defenses were reported authoritatively to include also full war equipment as quickly as possible for a nucleus army of 400,000 or more men.

It was estimated that the program involved outlays next year exceeding by well over $300,000,000 this year's appropriations for all military purposes, including those of the navy.

A separate emergency budget for the new rearmament program was one device the President was reported to have under consideration.

The projected reinforcements, the outcome of an extensive resurvey of defense needs which was intensified by Europe's recent crisis, were said to be chiefly for the army and the air corps. Also in prospect, however, is a request for increased appropriations to carry out this year's billion dollar fleet expansion act.

Outline of Proposal.

Details of the new rearmament program were hidden in confidential budget estimates, but in well informed quarters it was thought the President's recommendations to Congress early next year would follow this general outline:

1. At least tripling the present goal of 2320 first line fighting planes, fixed in 1935 for the Army Air Corps. New planes would be added by mass production methods over a period of several years. There has been no hint of a proposal to increase further the navy's new goal of 3000 planes, set in the expansion act.

2. Undertaking immediately to equip the army's "initial protective force" of about 400,000, which includes the regular army and National Guard, with "essential" semi-automatic rifles, anti-aircraft guns, bombs, tanks and gas masks.

3. Hastening the acquisition of war reserves for a force of 1,000,000 which, under War Department plans, would take the field within a few months in the event the United States' involvement in war.

4. Various means to prepare industry to shift quickly and effectively in an emergency from peacetime production to mass output of planes and munitions.

What It Will Cost.

By War Department estimates the full war equipment for the initial protective force, excluding such things as readily obtainable motor trucks, would require an appropriation of $142,000,000.

Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff, gave Congress an estimate this year that the cost of this program would be $160,000,000, and $18,000,000 was provided toward meeting deficiencies, mostly in anti-aircraft guns and equipment.

The augmented air force, a fleet rivaling that of Germany in size, would require a far greater amount of money, but the outlay would be spread over several years.

Without undertaking to predict definitely the War Department outlay which the chief executive will recommend, some, who have had a part in the defense resurvey, think the increase over this year's figure will at least match the $150,000,000 increase Mr. Roosevelt has projected for the navy.

The navy must have $150,000,000 additional, the President has said, to carry forward its warship construction program.

Allotments by Congress.

In round figures, not including public works and relief fund allotments for new barracks and other building, Congress this year gave the army $458,000,000 and the navy $546,000,000 for the fiscal 12-month which began last July 1.

Increases of $150,000,000 each in direct appropriations, not considering contract authorizations and other budgetary complications,

ROBBER CAPTURED AFTER HE FAILS IN CAFETERIA HOLDUP

Tackled by Ex-Football Player After Women's Screams Drive Him From Miss Hulling's.

MAN AIMED DUMMY PISTOL AT CASHIER

Prisoner Identified by Another Employe as One Who Got $275 in Holdup There Sept. 21.

A holdup man armed with a crude dummy pistol was captured last night by the flying tackle of a former football player a few moments after he had been frightened away from Miss Hulling's Cafeteria, 1103 Locust street, by the screams of the cashier and of other women in the crowded restaurant.

The robber, who told police he was Carl Ben Thompson of Centralia, Ill., was identified by another cashier as the man who held up the same cafeteria the night of Sept. 21, and escaped with $275.

200 Dining at Time.

More than 200 persons were dining, and a long line had formed at the serving counter when Thompson entered the cafeteria at 7:35 o'clock, and walked up to the cashier's desk. He pointed an object wrapped in a handkerchief at the cashier, Miss Marie Kendzior, 2105 Mullanphy street, and said, "Hand it over."

"I couldn't tell what he had in his hand, but I started screaming anyway," Miss Kendzior said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I said, 'Get him, get him, get him,' and a woman who was sitting at one of the front tables jumped up and began screaming, too.

"Other people began screaming and shouting, and the man ran for the door. A customer who had been waiting for a pastry order caught him by the coat, but he got loose and ran east on Locust. In just a moment, it seemed, most of the customers were at the desk demanding to know what had happened."

Customer Gives Chase.

After breaking away from the customer, Thompson ran east across Eleventh street, with the customer in close pursuit shouting, "Stop that thief."

At that moment Mike Kirchmer, former Municipal League football player, and Claude Heidger, stepped out of a tavern at 1023 Locust street, where they had been celebrating Kirchmer's winning a football parlay. Kirchmer, hearing the customer's shout, ran forward and tackled Thompson around the knees. Heidger piled on as the holdup man went down.

When police arrived, Kirchmer, Heidger and customers from the cafeteria had taken Thompson back to the restaurant and were holding him in a corner. At the Central Station it was found that Thompson's weapon was composed of a black composition toothbrush holder and a piece of leather, bound together with two pieces of string. Wrapped in the handkerchief, the toothbrush holder resembled the muzzle of a pistol.

Denies Previous Robbery.

Thompson, who said he was a salesman, admitted orally that he had intended to rob the cafeteria, but denied the robbery in September, when Miss Patricia Wilson, a relief cashier was held up. He was incoherent at times, and policemen said he had been drinking. Thompson, 45 years old, declared he did not know where he got the dummy pistol.

Miss Wilson, working near the rear of the cafeteria at the time of the holdup last night, went to headquarters with Miss Kendzior to identify the robber.

Kirchmer, 26 years old, is employed as a clerk by the International Shoe Co., and resides at 3714 North Twenty-fifth street. Heidger, 24, an employe of the St. Louis Car Co., lives at 5984A Wabada avenue.

Man Shot to Death From Ambush.

By the Associated Press.

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 5.—James Cicchini, 43 years old, owner of a coal company and part owner of a pool hall, was shot and killed from ambush as he was entering his home early today. Police found four empty 12-gauge shotgun shells where the killer apparently stood in the shadow of a shed next door as he waited for Cicchini to return home.

BRIDE HURT IN AUTO COLLISION A FEW HOURS AFTER WEDDING

Mrs. Walter Diersen Suffers Fractured Pelvis When on Way to Bridesmaid's Home.

Mrs. Helen Bray Diersen, 17 years old, suffered a fractured pelvis in an automobile accident yesterday afternoon, a few hours after she was married. She is in City Hospital.

Still wearing her white bridal gown, Mrs. Diersen, with her husband, Walter, a window display worker, was on the way to the home of a bridesmaid. Their car, driven by Albert Reinwart, 4918A St. Louis avenue, collided with another at Mimika avenue and High Pointe boulevard. No one else was injured.

The marriage ceremony was performed at St. James Catholic Church, Tamm and Wade avenues. After a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bray, 6134 Roberts avenue, the pair began a drive over the city. They plan to live at 5220 Paulian place.

WINDOWS BROKEN IN NIGHT AT TWO AUTO CONCERNS

A. F. of L. Mechanics' Union on Strike at Both; Seven Pickets Arrested for Questioning.

Windows were broken last night at two automobile concerns where members of an American Federation of Labor mechanics' union have been on strike for several weeks.

A plateglass window, 8 by 10 feet, was broken at the plant of Sidney Weber, Inc., 2218 Locust street, and a front door glass was smashed at the McCarthy Motor Co., 6153 Delmar boulevard. A watchman at the Weber firm told police he saw a dark coupe pull away just after the window was broken.

Seven men, pickets at the two places, were arrested for questioning. The union is demanding a closed shop. A larger window was smashed at the McCarthy firm several weeks ago.

MOROCCO SULTAN ON RADIO

Breaks Tradition to Dedicate Statue of Marshal Lyautey.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Nov. 5. The Sultan of Morocco made his radio debut tonight with a speech dedicating a giant equestrian statue of the late Marshal Louis Hubert Lyautey, French General, who "pacified" Morocco before the World War.

The Sultan, Sidi Mohammed, broke tradition which had kept Moslem leaders of North Africa from speaking before the microphone to praise the General's work and the French administration in this protectorate. After the ceremonies squadrons of French planes roared overhead and French and Moroccan troops passed before a reviewing stand at the foot of the statue in Casablanca's public square.

CONVICTED U. S. SPY CHANGES HIS STORY

In Habeas Corpus Hearing John Farnsworth Brings in Name of Hearst.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5.—United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood today heard John Farnsworth describe as "fictitious" parts of a statement the former naval Lieutenant-Commander admitted signing concerning methods he used to obtain information for Japanese officials.

Hearing on Farnsworth's plea for release from Atlanta penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus was concluded today. Farnsworth, serving a 4 to 12 year sentence, brought the action on the claim he was coerced into pleading nolo contendere to espionage charges.

Judge Underwood took the case under advisement and asked counsel to submit briefs in argument by Nov. 14.

Farnsworth asserted the statement was written for the purpose of substantiating articles he had written for a news service telling of plans by a foreign Power to blow up the Panama Canal.

He said the statement was written "because Mr. (William R.) Hearst wouldn't pay for the articles because they were too fantastic."

He said the articles first mentioned Russia as planning against the canal, "but this didn't appeal to Mr. Hearst and it was changed to Germany, then Japan."

Farnsworth said his signed statement, in which he was characterized as a Japanese naval adviser, was written by him and Fulton Lewis, of the feature service. He said it was intended for confidential files. The articles, he said, "never showed up."

He told Judge Underwood he had sold the Japanese Government an article on organization of the United Air Force and an "essay" on the London naval conference. He said he wrote them as a "naval expert," but asserted they did not refer to the United States Navy.

Depositions from Ward Farnsworth of Lake Forest, Ill., a first cousin, U. S. Judge Proctor, Ben H. Pearse, Washington newspaper man, and Harvey H. Ents of Washington were read into the record.

HUNGARIANS REOCCUPY AREAS CEDED BY CZECHS

Troops Crossing Danube First Time in 20 Years, Flowers in Helmets and Underfoot, Take Over 14 Communities.

ADMIRAL HORTHY TO LEAD MEN TODAY

Action Complete by Thursday—Crape on Monument to War-Lost Lands Torn Off — 45 Publications Suspended.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5.—Hungarian troops crossed the Danube today for the first time in 20 years in beginning the reoccupation of 4875 square miles of their former homeland awarded Hungary from Czechoslovakia through Italian-German arbitration.

The soldiers advanced with flowers bobbing on their helmets or falling underfoot and by nightfall they had moved about 12½ miles into the Slovak regions of Medve and Doborgaz, north of the Hungarian towns of Gyor and Magyar Ovar.

Fourteen communities bedecked with the red, white and green Hungarian colors fell to Hungarian control. Military administration was applied at once.

Passage between the old and new Hungary was permitted only on military passes. Assemblies were forbidden. Inns and cafes were ordered to close their doors by 1 a. m. each night.

Horthy to Lead Troops.

Admiral Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary, who commanded the Austrian-Hungarian World War fleet, was scheduled to lead Hungarian troops into Komarno tomorrow and occupation of the entire territory awarded this nation is to be completed by Thursday.

To symbolize the return of Slovakian territory, the crape which has been flying for years on the north monument to Hungary's war-lost territories, in Budapest's Liberty Square, was allowed to flutter away on a high autumn wind.

Crape still was draped over the east monument to Transylvania, which the World War allies gave to Rumania, and to the west and south monuments to territories lost to Austria and Yugoslavia, respectively.

Rumania Has Biggest Share.

Hungary was reduced after the war from an area of 109,000 square miles to 35,875 square miles. Czechoslovakia received 24,300 square miles, of which it now is returning about one-fifth. Hungary's new acquisition is equal to about one-seventh of its post-war size. Rumania still has about 38,600 square miles and Yugoslavia 8100 square miles of former Hungarian territory.

A replica of the north monument is to be erected in the city of Kassa, in the regained territory, while sculptors and artists are following the army to record the occupation in stone and on canvas.

The first Hungarian troops moved across the Danube at 10 a. m. Czechoslovak soldiers had fallen back during the night and it was arranged for a zone of about a mile and a half to be kept between the two armies.

Discordant Notes Sounded.

A few discordant notes appeared in the jubilation in full swing over Hungary's "resurrection." Diplomatic quarters reported Hungary did not plan to guarantee the new border with Czechoslovakia, as contemplated in the Munich four-Power agreement which settled the Czechoslovak-German quarrel. They said also the Hungarian aim of a common frontier with Poland through acquisition of Ruthenia, easternmost province of Czechoslovakia, still was alive. Hungarian officials were silent on these subjects, but it remained apparent that Hungary yearned for more than she had been awarded.

Meanwhile the Government began clamping down on newspapers and periodicals through strict control which already had forced 45 publications, most of which were weeklies, to suspend publication. A new law requires every publication to obtain a license from the Premier's office.

There were 1100 applications for licenses and of the first 318 con-

ROW OVER PLAN TO AVOID EXTRA OVERTIME PAY

Manufacturers' Group Gets Opinion on Way to Work Salaried Employes More Than 44 Hours a Week.

ANDREWS ASSAILS IT, TERMS IT A 'DEVICE'

Says Such Proposals Will Probably Cause Congress to Consider More Far-Reaching Legislation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — Counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers and Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews are at odds over an interpretation of the Fair Labor Standards Act which may affect thousands of salaried workers.

The Manufacturers' Association sent its members a legal opinion that salaried workers may be employed for more than 44 hours a week at their existing weekly compensation, provided that the employer promulgates for them a basic pay rate of not less than 25 cents an hour for the first 44 hours and 37½ cents an hour thereafter.

Andrews immediately issued a statement to the press declaring Congress evidently had intended to bring down the customary work week to 44 hours.

"The question now is whether this expectation can be defeated by various devices, with the probable result that the coming Congress will renew consideration of more far-reaching proposals," Andrews said.

He added that the opinion prepared by John C. Gall, counsel for the association, seemed to adopt an interpretation which, in effect, would make overtime benefits of the law available only to employes compensated at the required basic minimum wage of 25 cents an hour.

"If this had been the intention of Congress it could have been simply expressed," Andrews said. "No such intention can be derived from a fair reading of Section 7 (of the law)."

"Pious Hope of Congress."

In his opinion, Gall said the meaning of Section 18 of the act had been the subject of much controversy. It reads:

"No provision of this act shall justify any employer in reducing a wage paid by him which is in excess of the applicable minimum wage under this act, or justify any employer in increasing hours of employment maintained by him which are shorter than the maximum hours applicable under this act."

"The Administrator," said Gall, "at one time pointed out that it was nothing more than a 'pious hope' on the part of Congress. At other times he has said that it could not be assumed that Congress had written a meaningless provision into the law.

"It should be pointed out that there is no specific provision in the law penalizing a violation of this provision. Nevertheless, assuming that employers will wish to respect the spirit of the provision irrespective of penalties, it is important to note that there is no reference whatever in this provision to wage rates. The provision is aimed at 'reducing a wage.'

"Therefore, having in mind the purposes of the act, we are clearly of the opinion that at least so long as the total weekly compensation of an employe is not reduced, there can be no violation of the act by a change in his wage rate, provided such change does not carry the regular rate below 25 cents an hour for the first 44 hours and 37½ cents an hour thereafter."

Gall advised employers to "take all necessary steps by agreement with employes or otherwise to determine the new basic hourly rate which shall apply for the first 44 hours and the overtime thereafter."

Cites Another Viewpoint.

If any other view were taken, Gall asserted, this would be the effect:

"The employer who has been paying a fairly high rate of compensation to his employes in the past is penalized by now having to increase compensation more than the low-wage employer, who thus becomes a beneficiary of the act. Furthermore, this anamalous situation would be created:

"That an employer could without violating the law employ new people at 25 cents an hour for the first 44 hours and 37½ cents thereafter, but that if he keeps the present employes, their rate must be determined entirely by what they were making prior to Oct. 24. The result would be to encourage dismissal of some present employes and to substitute for them new employes whose base wage rate could be whatever the employer fixed unless he went below the absolute 'minimum for the act.'"

Administrator Andrews can give only an advisory opinion in interpreting the act. The final decision regarding its meaning rests with the courts.

States Senator, including the Democratic incumbent, Bennett C. Clark; for two places on the Supreme Court of Missouri and for State Superintendent of Schools. The three Congressmen representing St. Louis and St. Louis County will be chosen, as will the entire delegation in the State House of Representatives—19 from the city and three from the county—and three State Senators from the city.

Other offices to be filled in the city are: Six of the 18 places as Circuit Judges, a Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, the Probate Judge, Prosecuting Attorney, Circuit Clerk, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, License Collector, Recorder of Deeds, Collector of the Revenue, City Treasurer and the 11 Justices of the Peace and 11 Constables.

Although the office of City Treasurer hitherto has been considered an elective State position, Mayor Dickmann recently filled a vacancy in it by appointment. As a result of a move by the Republican City Committee, the place was put on the ballot and, besides, a test of the status of the office in the Supreme Court of Missouri has been started.

In St. Louis County.

Leading the county ticket are the three places on the County Court, or administrative body. Other places to be filled are: Comptroller, Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk, County Clerk, Recorder of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney, Collector of the Revenue and the 25 Justices of the Peace and seven Constables.

Radio addresses by candidates and other party leaders tomorrow will wind up the campaign.

The Democrats wil have a meeting of party workers at Municipal Auditorium at 2 o'clock this afternoon for final instructions on getting out the vote. Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic City Committee will preside. Senator Bennett Clark is expected to speak, and other nominees will be introduced.

Democratic Women's Luncheon.

Many of the Democratic nominees attended a luncheon of the women's division of the campaign at Hotel Jefferson yesterday. Mrs. Clark spoke briefly for her husband, who had gone to Eldon and Jefferson City; she warned against overconfidence.

Judge James M. Douglas, nominee for the Supreme Court, urged the workers to remember his running mate for the Court, State Senator Albert M. Clark. There is a nonpartisan movement against Albert Clark and in favor of Thomas F. McDonald, Republican, and Judge Douglas for the two places on this tribunal, on the ground that Clark is backed by Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City. Judge Douglas said Clark "is an able, distinguished and capable lawyer."

Congressman John J. Cochran declared that the election result would be certain if the thousands of public job holders, who owe their positions to the Democrats, would work actively for the ticket. Chairman Hannegan urged hard work, without undue optimism for success.

The Republican speechmaking campaign reached its climax Friday night, but ward workers planned to continue their activity over the week-end.

PLANNED MARCH ON BERLIN RESULTS IN DEATH VERDICT

Hitler's Newspaper Announces Condemning of One Man and Prison for Three Others.

BERLIN, Nov. 5. — Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, disclosed today that one man is under death sentence and three others face imprisonment after trial before the Peoples' Court on charges of "plotting an armed proletarian march on Berlin."

The newspaper said the march was arranged to occur simultaneously with an advance by the "Red army."

The four men, Peter Kasper, 31 years old; August Hirsch, 26; Johannes Schneider, 32, and Otto Sauter, 30, were charged with treason.

Kasper, the alleged ringleader, who returned to Germany from Russia, where he worked as a miner, was sentenced to death. Hirsch got 12 years at hard labor, Schneider five years and Sauter two years.

This was the first time proceedings of the Peoples' Court, which deals with treason and espionage cases, ever were made public.

DEMAND FOR ACTION AGAINST GOV. LA FOLLETTE REJECTED

State Attorney-General's Office Rules Letter to Pensioners Did Not Violate Law.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—Gov. Philip La Follette's personal letter to old-age pensioners, which has been followed by another from Progressive headquarters asking for votes, did not constitue a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, the Attorney-General's department ruled today.

The first letter, sent out Oct. 4 under the Governor's signature, informed pensioners of action taken by the State Pension Department to increase their monthly allotments to a maximum of $30.

It caused a storm of protests by the Governor's political opponents and a demand by Assemblyman Francis T. Murphy of Milwaukee, that Attorney-General O. S. Loomis, a Progressive, prosecute La Follette under the Corrupt Practices Act.

Deputy Attorney-General Leo Vaudreuil informed Murphy by letter today that his petition was denied on the ground the Governor was guilty of no violation.

HULL ASKED ABOUT CANCELING TREATY AS TO SUDETENS

Labor Leader Attacks Continuance in Area Occupied by Germany.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Matthew Woll, a labor leader, asked Secretary of State Hull today when the Government would cancel that section of the Czechoslovakian reciprocal trade treaty affecting industries in the Sudeten area recently occupied by Germany.

Woll made public a telegram which he signed as president of America's Wage Earners' Protective Conference. He is also a vice-president of the American Federation of Labor.

Continued application of the Czech treaty to the Sudeten area, Woll said, has been "highly beneficial to the totalitarian governments of Germany, Japan, Italy and Russia and most harmful to the thousands of American industrial workers hopeful for and dependent for job opportunities in the production of American glass, glassware, pottery, leather shoes, etc."

Farmer Kills Bull That Gores Him.

ROOSEVELT SAID TO PLAN TRIPLING ARMY AIR FLEET

would swell defense appropriations beyond $1,300,000,000.

Roosevelt's recent press conference comment that the army's goal of 2320 planes was out of date hinted at the big increase to come. The goal, expected to be realized by the middle of 1940, was fixed by a board headed by the late Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in Wilson's Cabinet.

Toward it, the air corps already has put in service more than 1500 first-line aircraft, expecting to reach a total of 1800 by the year's end. The navy has maintained approximately the same pace.

German Air Force.

Germany, considered by many a yardstick of aerial might since the Munich conference, has upwards of 10,000 modern fighting planes already, according to some advices to the administration.

Regardless of whether the German output is continuing at a great rate, some military experts here are convinced the Nazis are equipped to turn out 1000 planes a month.

There has been no indication, however, that the administration intends to engage in a direct aerial race with Germany or any other Power, nor even to increase materially the size of the army. In men under arms, this country ranks only eighteenth, but far higher than this in striking power and potentialities.

In administration circles it is understood that President Roosevelt proposes to take the army's estimates of the needs of its troops and ask Congress to meet the most urgent without delay.

Gen. Craig told Congress $1,000,000,000 would be required to equip an army of 1,000,000 with "standard essential" items of material. By using substitutes and employing commercial production to the utmost, this figure could be reduced to $440,000,000, he said.

"More immediate and urgent," he said, were the needs of the initial protective force which could be met with $160,000,000.

Co-operation With Cuba Possible.

Informed military officials said it was possible military co-operation between the United States and Cuba would figure in conversations here next week with Col. Fulgencio Batista. The Cuban army leader will visit the United States on Armistice day at the invitation of Gen. Craig, and is expected to talk with President Roosevelt.

The navy has a more direct interest in Cuba than the army. It holds a perpetual lease on the naval station at Guantanamo on the southern coast, which occupies a key position in defense plans of the Panama Canal.

Those plans will be tested early next year when the United States fleet of moer than 150 vessels engages in war games in the Caribbean Sea and the Atlantic ocean. The entire fleet, officials say, probably will use Guantanamo as a base.

SENATE PRIMARY COSTS FOR 3 MEN TOPS 6-YEAR PAY

$80,000 to $100,000 Spent in Races for Each and Total Salary for Term Is Only $60,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — The Senate Campaign Investigating Committee disclosed today that at least three candidates for the United States Senate spent more on their primary campaigns than they would receive in salary for a six-year term if elected.

Chairman Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, said 208 candidates for 35 seats reported to the committee aggregate expenditure of $1,018,111 in the primary. Without identifying any candidate, Sheppard said 50 of them spent from $5000 to $100,000 each. Three listed expenditures ranging from $80,000 to $100,000 each. A Senator receives $60,000 in salary during his six years in office.

Sheppard said the committee would not designate individuals in this preliminary report because exact details on individual expenditures in both the primary and general elections would be supplied later in the committee report to the Senate.

Election Investigators.

The special committee will have investigators in three states to observe Tuesday's elections, as a result of requests from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and North Dakota, Sheppard said.

He said the committee had decided on an observer for New Jersey after it had surveyed charges of wholesale illegal registration and voting and dishonest counting of ballots.

An investigator will be in Philadelphia, Sheppard said, because of complaints by John B. Kelly, Democratic City Chairman, that he feared manipulation of voting machines.

The North Dakota investigator will check the counting of absentee ballots in that State which were the basis of complaints to the committee by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, a candidate for reelection.

Some of the 20 investigators employed by the committee will be in Ohio, Illinois and Vermont election day but Sheppard said they were working on charges of political abuse in campaigns and would not observe voting unless there were new developments.

On Primary Disclosures.

In his disclosures on the primary Sheppard said Senate candidates in Pennsylvania and Tennessee had, after much urging, segregated part of pooled campaign funds used in primaries.

S. Davis Wilson, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination in Pennsylvania, reported $88,943 had been spent in his behalf out of $355,774 reported expended by the campaign committee promoting the ticket he was on.

Gov. George H. Earle, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination, reported $11,119 had been spent in his behalf out of the total of $222,390 expended by the successful Earle-Jones campaign slate.

A. T. Stewart, Democratic nominee in Tennessee, reported $7914 spent in his behalf in the primary out of a total of $18,203 expended by the Cooper-Stewart-Hudson campaign committee.

PLANE PICKS UP AND DELIVERS MAIL IN DEMONSTRATION

'Flying Postoffice' Designed for New Government Service in East.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 5.—A flying postoffice that picks up and delivers mail without landing was demonstrated today to a group of aviators and business men. Pilot Norman Rentoul cut his cabin monoplane's speed to 90 miles an hour as it approached two 23-foot poles, linked with a rope.

Attached to the rope was a dummy sack of mail. The pilot maneuvered the plane down, picked up the mail sack and dropped another one.

Richard C. du Pont, president of a corporation that was low bidder on contracts for two air mail pick-up routes to operate in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, directed the demonstration. Contracts have not been awarded by the Postoffice Department.

The route includes some 27 Pennsylvania towns and cities, and is expected to start operation in early spring.

Rumania and Yugoslavia Reach "Unity of Attitude."

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 5. — King Carol of Rumania and Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, reached a "unity of attitude on all pertinent questions" in a conference today in the royal palace.

A communique announcing the meeting between the King and the Prince, who came here yesterday, said that in addition to the "unity of attitude," the two agreed "cooperation between Rumania and Yugoslavia will be more intimate than heretofore."

Their discussion of "current political questions" presumably included the demands for territorial revision in the Balkans. Both Rumania and Yugoslavia received large slices of Hungary after the World War.

Hungarian revisionists are beginning to agitate for the recovery of parts of Transylvania, following the settlement of Hungary's minority quarrel with Czechoslovakia, while to the south Bulgaria is becoming restless under treaty restrictions.

Officials said no official demands for territory had come from either Hungary or Bulgaria but political observers thought the talk between King Carol and Prince Paul indicated the pressure for revision was being anticipated.

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN GREETED IN ITALY

Envoys and Prelates Welcome Archbishop of Chicago on Visit to See Pope.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 5.—George Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago, arrived in Rome today to report to Pope Pius on the recent Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans and to attend the beatification of Mother Carbini a week from tomorrow.

Escorted by United States Ambassador William Phillips and his aids and Vatican diplomats, Cardinal Mundelein traveled here from Naples in a special train placed at his disposal by the Italian Government. He arrived at Naples this morning on the liner Rex.

To greet the Cardinal at the station were the Vatican Under-Secretary of State, Mgr. Domenico Tardini, the full staff of the American embassy, representatives of several other embassies to Italy and to the Holy See, and many prelates, priests and divinity students.

The honors accorded the Cardinal by Ambassador Phillips here and in Naples, where he was given a luncheon aboard the United States cruiser Omaha, were extraordinary, arranged at the specific request of President Roosevelt.

Student priests cheered as the Cardinal alighted from the train, and he smiled in return. He was wearing Cardinal's robe of scarlet. A military band played the Italian national anthem and the Pontifical March as the Cardinal was escorted to the royal waiting room.

He left the station between a double file of Italian police in full dress uniform and was driven to the Seminary of Santa Maria del Lago, where he will stay.

The Cardinal will be received by the Pope tomorrow morning to make his report on the New Orleans congress and to discuss United States church affairs.

Mother Cabrini, for whom beatification ceremonies are to be held, was founder of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart, and worked among Italian immigrants in the United States.

BRITONS CROSS INDIA ON NON-STOP FLIGHT

Pass Half-Way Mark In Effort to Surpass Russian Distance Record.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 6 (Sunday).—Three British Royal Air Force planes, seeking to surpass the world's distance record held by Russia, passed the halfway mark early today in their attempted 7160-mile non-stop flight from Egypt to Australia.

The Air Ministry announced the planes reached the east coast of India at 2 a. m. and headed southeast across the Bay of Bengal toward Port Blair, in the Andaman Islands south of Burma.

The planes, which took off from Ismailia, Egypt, at 3:55 a. m. (9:55 p. m., Friday, St. Louis time) for Port Darwin, Australia, were maintaining speeds ranging between 166 and 170 miles an hour.

At 12:30 a. m. plane No. 1 reported its position as near Vizagapatam, on the eastern seaboard of India and about 3340 miles from Ismailia.

Plane No. 2 gave its position at 11:45 p. m. as 30 miles west of French-owned Yanam and about 3240 miles from the starting point.

The position of plane No. 3 at 12:10 a. m. was reported as 40 miles west of Yanam and 3230 miles from Ismailia.

In the planes were nine men, the commander 33 years old and all the others under 30.

They sought to break the record of 6306 miles established by Russian airmen on a flight from Moscow over the North Pole to California in July, 1937.

CONTRACT PHYSICIANS TEST TAMPA CITY HOSPITAL OUSTER

Temporary Injunction Against Medical Society—25,000 Served by Club Staffs.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 5.—A State Circuit Court here has been asked to decide whether organized medicine can dictate exclusion of nonmembers from practice in a public hospital. Injunction proceedings were brought yesterday by one of 14 physicians and surgeons ousted from Tampa Municipal Hospital.

About 25,000 Latin American residents are served by contract physicians working for four benefit clubs or Centros which operate clinics, hospitals and recreation houses. Members pay 35 cents a month.

Dr. M. R. Winton obtained a temporary injunction against the Hillsborough County Medical Society and the hospital. He said he had practiced in Tampa 36 years. Two years ago the Medical Society barred membership to doctors, including Dr. Winton, who practiced for the Centros. The County Medical Society is a division of the American Medical Association.

ADMISSIONS MADE BY DEFENDANTS IN MAIL SCHOOL CASE

Attorney, Shortening Examination, Concedes Manager Used Four Names Besides Own.

THREE MISTRIAL MOTIONS OVERRULED

Objections Made to Decision Not to Segregate Jury and Weeping of Woman on Stand.

Testimony is to be resumed tomorrow in the mail fraud trial of Clarence de Montreville and 11 others associated with him in the operation of the Public Service Institute, which sold correspondence courses to persons who hoped to get Government jobs.

United States District Judge George H. Moore, dismissing the jurors over the week-end, cautioned them not to discuss the case with anyone. He denied a defense motion to segregate the jury for the duration of the trial.

Three defense motions for a mistrial were also overruled by Judge Moore. One was based on his refusal to segregate the jury, which, George C. Dyer of defense counsel said, left the jurors free to read "prejudicial" newspaper accounts of the trial. Another was based on the caption placed over a newspaper photograph of a Government witness, and the third cited the "emotional demonstration" of a Government witness whose testimony ended with a burst of weeping.

Some Admissions by Defense.

In the course of yesterday's session, Dyer shortened the examination of several witnesses by making admissions concerning matters about which they were to be questioned.

In that fashion the attorney stated that the school was incorporated, with De Montreville, his wife and his sisters-in-law, Angeline and Frances Grell, as the incorporators; that it enrolled 7065 students; that salesmen of its courses, sold on the installment plant for $80, received commissions of 30 per cent; that the same lessons were sent to all students enrolled for the general course; and that Otis Griffin, business manager of the school, signed letters in which he used, in addition to his own name, the names Joseph Lawler, W. B. Billings and F. J. Quinn.

When he appeared as Billings, it was shown by other testimony, Griffin was the business manager, and under the name of Quinn he was the "legal department." Lawler, a bookkeeper for the school, is one of the 12 on trial.

De Montreville, the Grell sisters, and Griffin are regarded by the government as the principal defendants. In addition to the 12 who pleaded not guilty and are on trial, 20 pleaded no contest, and one, guilty.

All Applicants Not Accepted.

Cross-examination of one Government witness, Miss Marie Meyer, 409A Fassen avenue, brought out that not everyone who applied for enrollment was accepted by the school.

Miss Meyer, formerly a stenographer for the school, testified one of her duties was to pass on the acceptability of applicants. Some, she said, were rejected because they were too old to qualify for civil service jobs, some because of physical handicaps, and some because they lacked the necessary basic education.

Miss Meyer was the witness who wept when testifying. She was assisted from the courtroom. The tears came when it was apparent that her examination was drawing to a close as Assistant United States District Attorney David M. Robinson, on redirect examination, asked her the extent of her education. She replied "high school," buried her face in her hands, and sobbed.

Three More Witnesses Heard.

Testimony given by two other stenographers for the school, Mrs. Carl Muller, 7024 Corbett avenue, University City, and Miss Genevieve Henry, 7357 Elm avenue, Maplewood, was chiefly a repetition of the accounts given by previous witnesses of the school's operations.

Bernard Sipple, a clerk in the accounting department, testified the school's salesmen kept 70 per cent of the down-payments made by students, the amounts varying according to circumstances. Commissions on subsequent payments, Sipple said, were adjusted so that they got 30 per cent of the total.

E. W. FORISTEL'S RELATIVES SETTLE SUITS OVER TRUST

They Withdraw Actions Involving $416,000 Insurance Fund but Keep Terms Secret.

Settlement of two suits of four brothers and sisters of the late Edward W. Foristel, attorney and Republican politician, for an interest in a $416,000 insurance trust left by him was disclosed yesterday when they withdrew their suits.

Oscar Habenicht, attorney for Foristel's widow, a defendant in the suits, said she had acquired the interest of the brothers and sisters but that it had been agreed not to make the amount of the settlement public. Named also as defendants were the five Foristel children, beneficiaries of the trust with the widow, and various insurance companies.

The petitions of the brothers and sisters, Francis G. and Joseph J. Foristel, Miss Margaret Foristel and Mrs. Eva Landwehr, set forth that a claim of $178,279 had been allowed the Family Investment Co., owned by them, against Foristel's estate. Alleging the estate was insolvent, they sought in the suits that part of the $178,278 which they said represented insurance above a certain amount allowed by law to insolvent persons as free of creditors' claims.

Edward F. Klotsch Injured; Driver Says He Swerved, but Could Not Avoid Him.

Edward F. Klotsch, 74 years old, a truck gardener, was injured seriously last night when an automobile struck him in front of his home, 9235 Olive Street road, St. Louis County. He is at Deaconess Hospital with a fractured left leg, lacerations, and contusions.

The driver, Elmer U. McAtee, 4723 Beacon avenue, said he swerved but could not avoid hitting Klotsch.

Earl, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Heaton, 1413 South Seventh street, suffered a fractured leg yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile in front of his home. The driver, Raymond Maxfield, 2737A Hickory street, told police the child ran against a rear fender of his car. Earl was taken to City Hospital.

FOUR HURT WHEN PLANE HITS RAILWAY EMBANKMENT

Chicago Only Recently Reached Agreement in Effort to Remove Barrier from Landing Field.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A private airplane crashed tonight into the railroad embankment which bisects the municipal landing field, injuring slightly its four occupants, all residents of Kilgore, Tex. The injured were listed as Aubrey V. Riley, 42 years old, an oil drilling contractor and owner of the plane; Vernon Gower, 25, the pilot; Waverly Anderson, 42, and Thomas F. Head, 31.

The Chicago & Western Indiana railroad tracks and embankment, which cross the landing field, have been a bone of contention between the railroad and the city for several years. The city has sought the removal of the tracks, but only recently was able to reach an agreement with the railroad.

The embankment prevents the use of the north half of the field for landing purposes.

KANSAS PRISON GUARD HELD IN DRUG-SMUGGLING PLOT

Arrested at Tonganoxie Postoffice When He Claims Package Containing Narcotics.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 5.—J. B. Greeson, district supervisor of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, said tonight a Kansas State prison guard had been arrested in connection with a plot to smuggle narcotics into the penitentiary.

Greeson said the man was arrested today when he called at the Tonganoxie (Kan.) postoffice for a package that contained a pair of shoes stuffed with about $1000 worth of narcotics.

At Lansing, Kan., Warden Kirk Prather said Deputy Warden Bert Kesselring learned about two months ago "through the grapevine system that a delivery of narcotics was to have been made today." Prather said Kesselring worked with the Federal agents and gave them the information that resulted in the guard's arrest.

UNITED CHARITIES WORKERS REPORT AGAIN TOMORROW

Fourth Meeting to Include First Statement by Solicitors in St. Louis County.

St. Louis workers in the United Charities campaign to raise $2,495,170 will hold their fourth report meeting tomorrow noon at Hotel Statler when subscriptions obtained by the St. Louis County organization will be announced for the first time.

At the last report meeting of St. Louis workers held at Hotel Statler Friday, subscriptions amounted to $881,195 or 35 per cent of the amount sought.

At the top of the list or corporation pledges announced yesterday by William C. Connett, chairman of the Larger Gifts Committee, were Anheuser-Busch, Inc., with $25,000, and the First National Bank in St. Louis, $20,100.

"We have several instances of increased giving by firms and only a scattered few have reduced their pledges of last year—this is in the face of reduced corporate earnings in a great many cases," Connett said. "Officers of these firms seem to understand thoroughly that, even though their earnings are off as compared with those of last year, they still have their capital investment in this community and that the worse the condition the more the need exists for maintaining the agencies included in United Charities.

"These subscriptions reflect as a whole the realization that if we want to be ready to take advantage of the change in the business cycle we must preserve the community."

Large Gifts Announced.

Other corporation gifts announced were: Famous-Barr Co., $12,000; Boatmen's National Bank, $4650; Kroger Grocery Co., $3000; Sears, Roebuck & Co., $2200; Bussman Manufacturing Co., $2000; Eagle Discount Stamp Co., $1500; A. S. Aloe Co., $1300; American Automobile Insurance Co., $1500; Boyd-Richardson Co., $1600; continental Grain Co., $500; Aaron Ferer & Sons, $450; Absorene Manufacturing Co., $350; Baum Bros. & Mayer Neckwear Co., $400; Berkowitz Envelope Co., $300.

Outstanding among reports of the Employes' Division headed by Jacob Van Dyke, was that for the Industrial Bank where 217 employes pledged $3125, an average of $14.40 each. Arthur Blumeyer, president of the bank, said this represented 1 per cent or more of the annual salaries of all employes.

At the Boatmen's National Bank, 170 employes subscribed $3537, representing a minimum of 1 per cent of annual salaries of all employes.

Subscriptions of staff members of United Charities agencies were reported as follows: Board of Religious Organizations, nine employes, $110; St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, 30 emyloyes, $740; Girl Scouts of St. Louis, eight employes, $108; St. Louis Bureau for Men, four employes, $108; Visiting Nurse Association, 49 employes, $1003.

Employes' Pledges.

Reports from employes of other business organizations: Browning Arms Co., including the company's and 19 employes' pledges, $214; Concordia Publishing House, 194 employes, $528; Fashion Trimble Shoe Co., including company's and 28 employes' gifts, $318; Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection & Insurance Co., 38 employes, $300; Mercantile Library, 15 employes, $161; Missouri Belting Co., seven employes, $222; Moloney Electric Co., 246 employes, $571; Renard Linoleum & Rug Co., 113 employes, $919; St. Louis Finishing Co., 41 employes, $198; Western Textile Products Co., 39 employes, $240; Manchester Bank, 30 employes, $213; Plaza Bank, 23 employes, $244; St. Louis Division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, 50 employes, $520; Tower Grove Bank, 79 employes, $382; National Bank Examiner's office, 13 employes, $225, and Union Service Co. 46 employes, $258.

David Hearsh, chairman of the General Division, said his group had raised 27 per cent of its quota yesterday. The first team to reach its quota was that of John W. Hatton which reported its full amount sought Friday.

AUDITORS UNABLE TO FIND $3800 AT VALLEY PARK

Discrepancy Reported in City Collector's Books After First Check-Up in Years—He Is Ill.

A discrepancy of about $3800 in the account of the City Collector of Valley Park has been disclosed by an audit, Mayor Charles C. Scholl announced yesterday.

The audit was ordered by the Board of Aldermen because of the prolonged illness of the collector, George A. Phillips, who has held the office since 1934.

It was the first general audit of accounts of the office in many years, Mayor Scholl said. Phillips, seen by a reporter at his home, 517 Meramec station road, declined to discuss the auditors' report.

Phillips has not been in the Collector's office since mid-August. The Board of Aldermen, after receiving the audit Friday night, appointed Mrs. Frances Sturdy as acting Collector. Mayor Scholl said Phillips' resignation would be requested.

The discrepancy, the Mayor said, was not apparent in any particular account, but was shown in gross as the difference between the funds on hand and what should be on hand as indicated by records of receipts and disbursements.

The audit was prepared by the St. Louis firm, M. F. Langenberg & Co.

Mayor Scholl said Phillips' average income, from fees and the salary paid him as City Clerk, an office to which the Board of Aldermen customarily appoints the Collector, who is elected, was about $100 a month. Phillips, 48 years old, is married and has four children.

TWO GROUPS JOIN IN OPPOSING CITY BOND ISSUE PROPOSALS

Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee and Missouri Consumers Issue Joint Statement.

A recommendation that two city bond issue proposals be defeated at Tuesday's election was made at a joint conference of the executive committees of the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee of St. Louis and the Missouri Consumers' Association yesterday.

In a joint statement the committees assailed the propositions as adding more than $1,000,000 to the bonded indebtedness without consideration of the fact that the city's deficit as of last April was more than $2,000,000. The recommendation also opposed the bond issues as adding to the burden of the low-income taxpayer.

One proposal, for the issuance of $750,000 in bonds, would represent the city's share of WPA work. The second, for $500,000, is for the city's share in the purchase of new fire-fighting equipment and the building of new fire engine houses.

JOHN RANDOLPH HEARST WED AGAIN; BRIDE IS A MODEL

Newspaper Executive, Son of Publisher, Married to Fanne Wade at Elkton, Md.

By the Associated Press.

ELKTON, Md., Nov. 5. — John Randolph Hearst, 29 years old, New York newspaper and magazine executive, was married today to Fanne Wade, 23, a model.

The son of William Randolph Hearst and Miss Wade were accompanied by the bride's mother, Mrs. John Wade and several friends. The Rev. C. M. Cope officiated. The marriage party arrived by train from New York and left in five taxicabs for Wilmington, Del., after the marriage.

Hearst was divorced by Mrs. Gretchen Wilson Hearst in West Palm Beach, Fla., last April 27. Mrs. Hearst obtained custody of their son, John Jr., four years old.

COMMUNIST PARTY TO BACK NEW DEALERS IN ELECTION

Statement Assails Republicans as Anti-Labor; C. Arthur Anderson's Defeat Urged.

The Communist party yesterday issued a statement through Alfred Wagenknecht, district secretary, declaring it would support New Deal candidates in Tuesday's election.

The statement charged the Republican party an' its candidates were "anti-labor, anti-New Deal and opposed to progressive legislation obtained under the Roosevelt administration." Defeat of Congressman C. Arthur Anderson was urged.

It was stated the party would support the proposed amendments to increase the pay of State legislators and to reduce the old-age pension age limit from 70 to 65, and oppose the proposed increase in the State gasoline tax.

YOUNG MEN'S C. OF C. FOR MANDATORY AUTO INSPECTION

Favors Enabling Act to Let Cities Pass Own Motor Regulations.

The board of the young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce has indorsed the proposed mandatory motor vehicle inspection law for St. Louis, it was announced yesterday by William Suedmeyer, chairman of the organization's civic development committee.

He said the young men's division would support an enabling act, which would permit cities in Missouri to pass their own motor inspection laws, and suggested that such laws require inspection of brakes, wheel alignment, headlights, horns, windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, tail light and license plates twice a year.

It was recommended also that the inspection be under the jurisdiction of the Director of Streets and Sewers, and that each vehicle be required to display an "inspected and approved" sticker. The board declared compulsory inspection would materially aid in reducing traffic accidents.

Amnesia Victim Regains Memory.

A young man, victim of amnesia, identified himself at City Hospital yesterday as John William Kurtz of Forest Park, Ill. Kurtz, 22 years old, appeared at Police Headquarters earlier in the day and said he was unable to recall his name. After his recovery he told hospital attendants he did not know how he got to St. Louis.

RIVERFRONT PARK PLAN TO BE REVIVED

Diverting of Mississippi River Channel Likely to Come Before Army Engineers.

The proposal of the City Plan Commission for a recreational area development on the North St. Louis riverfront, originally advanced nearly 10 years ago, is expected to be revived at a public hearing to be held by the Army Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors at the Federal Building Nov. 17.

Congressman John J. Cochran, a member of the House of Representatives Committee on Rivers and Harbors, obtained the passage of a resolution by that committee directing the Army engineers to reconsider plans for improvement of the Mississippi River between East St. Louis and its confluence with the Missouri, thereby opening the way for the riverfront proposal.

The plan is to divert the channel of the Mississippi to the east side of Mosentine Island, opposite Bellefontaine and Calvary cemeteries, so that the island could be joined to the mainland on the Missouri side.

This would add nearly five square miles of territory to the northern part of the city. When the proposal was first made there was coupled with it a plan for an airport, park, and an elevated highway, estimated to cost, in all, about $22,000,000.

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association and the City Plan Commission, Cochran said, still were interested in the proposal and would present arguments for it at the hearing called for Nov. 17.

Addition of the island to the Missouri bank of the river would require an act of the Illinois Legislature, relinquishing any claim to the island.

The Mississippi River channel between the island and Chain of Rocks Bridge long has been a problem for army engineers because it is not deep enough in some places and the velocity of the water's flow is great.

3 KILLED IN STOVE EXPLOSION

Mother of Children Who Perished Is Not Expected to Live.

SAGINAW, Mich., Nov. 5.—A fire which resulted from an attempt to kindle a stove fire with kerosene killed three children today and burned their mother.

Roland Clements Jr., 4 years old, died instantly, and his brother, Jimmy, 6, and his 3-month-old sister, Sharon Lou, succumbed several hours later. Their mother, Mrs Roland Clements, 23, was not expected to live. Fire Chief Frank W. Bender, who said Mrs. Clements poured kerosene into the living room stove, said the explosion was more severe than usually caused by kerosene and ordered the fuel to be analyzed.

1,400,000 Likely to Vote in State Tuesday; Amendments Arouse Greater Interest Than Candidates

Proposed Gasoline Tax Rise, Age Pensions, Pendergastism and Supreme Court Fight Expected to Bring Heavy Balloting.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

Interest in proposed Constitutional amendments to lower to 65 years the eligibility age for old-age pensions and for a one cent increase in the State gasoline tax, rather than interest in candidates, is expected to result in a heavy vote in the State general election Tuesday. A total in excess of 1,400,000, possibly 1,500,000, is anticipated.

There has been little indication that the campaigns of candidates for United States Senator have aroused the electorate, though there has been some showing that the Supreme Judgeship race has attracted attention because of the issue of the interest of Thomas J. Pendergast, Kansas City political boss, in the judiciary.

State Senator Albert M. Clark of Richmond, Democratic candidate for the 10-year vacancy on the court, had Pendergast's indorsement when he entered the race and still has it. He is opposed by Thomas F. McDonald of Webster Groves, Republican, a former president of the St. Louis Bar Association, who has the backing of a nonpartisan group of lawyers as well as the Republican organization.

Clark Seems to Be Leading.

While former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, Republican candidate for United States Senator, has professed to see an uprising of the farmers against the New Deal, and seemingly is convinced that he will win, there is no confidence of success emanating from Republican State headquarters. In their private discussions Republican party leaders generally express the opinion that United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Democrat, will be re-elected by at least 150,000. Democratic leaders' estimates run from that up to a figure in excess of 400,000.

There is some hope at Republican headquarters that McDonald will pull through on the issue of Pendergatism, and seemingly there is little doubt that he will run considerably ahead of the rest of the Republican ticket. His success is likely to depend on the size of the Democratic majority for United States Senator. If Senator Bennett Champ Clark's majority should not be much in excess of 100,000, McDonald is considered to have a chance to win. If it should go above 150,000, his chances are much slimmer.

Predictions by Leaders.

Pre-election statements were issued yesterday by the chairman of the Democratic and Republican state committees. Chairman James P. Aylward, Democratic, predicted that his party's majorities in the State "will range from 250,000 upward."

Chairman Barak T. Mattingly, Republican, said that "reports are most encouraging," and that from the information furnished by county chairmen, "we will not only elect six or seven Republican Congressmen, but in addition I confidently predict the election of our entire state ticket."

Figures on 1936 Election.

In the 1936 presidential year election, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, who had Pendergast's support, ran about 75,000 votes behind President Roosevelt, while Jesse W. Barrett, the Republican candidate, ran about an equal number of votes ahead of Alf M. Landon, the result being that while Roosevelt carried the State by 413,152, Stark carried it by only 264,199. The difference was attributed to the anti-Pendergast vote which scratched Stark and voted for Barrett.

While the total vote in that election was about 300,000 more than is expected to be cast this year, and as a consequence the number of scratches might be expected to be fewer in the total, there are conditions which might make the number of scratches actually greater.

Pendergast Issue.

The Democratic primary contest for the six-year judgeship between Judge James M. Douglas and Judge James V. Billings, in which Pendergast control of the Supreme Court was the outstanding issue, aroused intense interest, much more than has been evident in other anti-boss campaigns in which other offices than the judiciary were involved. Pendergast's candidate, Judge Billings, lost that fight by 119,498.

Just how much of this anti-Pendergast vote will carry over into the general election to oppose State Senator Clark, McDonald's opponent, is problematical. If United States Senator Clark's majority should be 150,000, and State Senator Clark should run 75,000 votes behind him, McDonald would have a chance to win, but if the Democratic majority for United States Senator should go to 200,000, there would need to be 100,000 scratches, which, in the vernacular, would be a good many scratches.

In the United States Senatorial race, Senator Clark will get some Republican votes on the basis of his opposition to the President's bill to increase the size of the Supreme Court, the bill for the reorganization of the executive departments, and his stand against large expenditures for armaments. On the other hand, he will lose some Democratic votes because of his opposition to the President on the court bill and the reorganization bill, and possibly some votes of Democrats who believe in building up the national defenses. These gains and losses may offset each other, or one may be somewhat greater than the other. There is no way to tell.

What G. O. P. Must Do to Win.

But for the Republicans to win this election it will be necessary for them to wipe out a Democratic majority of 262,156 of the somewhat comparable off-year election of 1934, which was increased to 413,152 for Roosevelt in the presidential election of 1936.

Judge Douglas is considered to have had his real fight in the primary and even Republican leaders expect his election. He is opposed by former Supreme Judge Conway Elder, Republican.

The only other State-wide contest is that for State Superintendent of Schools, the candidates being Lloyd W. King of Monroe City, Democrat, the incumbent, and C. D. Snodgrass of Tuscumbia, Republican. King is expected to suffer material losses on the Pendergast issue, he having joined with Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown and State Auditor Forrest Smith in the primary in publicly opposing Judge Douglas and supporting the Pendergast candidate. However, King's losses, it is thought will not be as extensive as those of State Senator Clark.

Congressional Contests.

In the 13 congressional races, the Republicans seem to be certain of success in only one district, the Seventh, now represented by Dewey Short, Republican. They have some slight hopes of carrying the Sixth District, in which Congressman Reuben T. Wood, president of the State Federation of Labor, Democrat, is opposed for re-election by former Lieutenant-Governor Phil A. Bennett.

Seventeen State Senators and the full 150 members of the House of Representtaives are to be elected, the Democrats being virtually certain to control both Houses of the Legislature, though some Republican gains are likely in both Houses.

Propositions 4 and 6.

Of the eight proposed constitutional amendments and one proposal submitted under the referendum, which will be on the Statewide ballot, the chief interest is in No. 6, which proposes to increase the gasoline tax to carry out a prescribed 10-year road building program, and in No. 4, which proposes to reduce the old-age pension eligibility age from 70 to years to 65.

Other proposals on the ballot would increase the pay of members of the Legislature, make the State Treasurer eligible for re-election, authorize a tax of 10 cents on the $100 valuation for support of county hospitals, increase the gasoline tax one cent without setting up a definite road program, make many complicated changes in the Constitution involving road building, taxation and technical legislative procedure, and make sheriffs and coroners eligible for re-election.

BOUNDARY SHIFT FORCES VOTERS TO GIVE AFFIDAVITS

75 in Centerville Township, St. Clair County, Must Swear They Are Residents.

Seventy-five voters of Centerville Township, in St. Clair County, will be required to present affidavits attesting that they are residents in order to vote in the election Tuesday.

Owing to the inequality in the number of voters in two of the eight precincts, township officials in July changed the boundary lines so voters of Rocky Point would vote at Centerville Station.

After 75 had registered in the new precinct, State's Attorney Louis P. Zerweck advised that the change, made without sanction of the County Board of Supervisors, was illegal and that it was too near election day for a second, legal change to be made.

EX-GOV. CAULFIELD ASSAILS 'CRAZY LAWS'

Nominee in Campaign Talk Denounces New Deal Acts as Unsound.

Former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, Republican candidate for United States Senator, asserted in an address last night that Missourians generally "are tired of the unsound acts of the last five and a half years."

Speaking at a Sixteenth Ward rally, he declared that in his final campaign tour, which ended yesterday, he learned that voters in all sections of the State were aroused by the "crazy laws of Senator Bennett C. Clark (his opponent) and other New Dealers" and planned to vote Republican Tuesday "to start making a change."

"Visiting 100 counties of Missouri during this campaign I found the farmers are on fire and vehement against the impracticable and drastic Agricultural Adjustment of 1938, for which Senator Clark voted," Caulfield said. "They are also angered over the policy of the administration in permitting millions of dollars worth of foreign farm prdoucts to come into the United States under the reciprocal trade acts, for which the Senator also voted.

"There is going to be a huge protest vote cast against Senator Clark and other New Deal candidates because of this."

"Business men throughout Missouri, particularly the little business men in the various cities and towns, also want a change and are disgusted with the way things have been done," he continued. "They are tired of seeing agricultural and industrial production curtailed and having oft-repeated promises unfulfilled during five and a half years with no sound or true recovery."

Caulfield declared that labor is "disgusted because there are 2,000,000 more unemployed" than there were at the start of the Roosevelt administration.

"Real Democrats of Missouri are aroused because the Democratic State party was turned over to the Pendergast machine by Senator Clark following the victory won against the machine in the August primary in the Supreme Court judgeship fight," Caulfield declared. "They don't like it that Senator Clark named Aylward (James P. Aylward, of Kansas City), a chief cog in the Pendergast machine, chairman of the Democratic State Committee."

HOOVER ASSERTS U. S. 'WALLOWS' ALONE IN SLUMP

Declares in Reply to Roosevelt Speech That New Deal Track Is Mighty Bumpy.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 5.—Former President Herbert Hoover replied to President Roosevelt's Hyde Park address with a denunciation of the New Deal tonight in which he charged the administration with "coercive" tactics and with responsibility for the nation's economic difficulties.

He defended "free enterprise."

Asserting New Dealers sought to justify their actions by contending the people were "neglected and starving" when the Democrats went into office six years ago, the former President said: "This is a prevarication."

He said it was "recognized by every authority" that the worldwide post-war depression was overcome by recovery processes in 1932; that America alone hesitated when Roosevelt was elected; that "Mr. Roosevelt's artificial structure" failed to withstand the shocks of adverse court decisions and "coercive action against prices and bank credit," and that a second depression resulted.

Depression vs. Recession.

"Depressions and recessions," he said, "feel very much alike. But, believe it or not, there is a difference. A depression is an economic mudhole in which the whole world wallows together. A recession is the same mudhole when we wallow in it alone. There is another distinction based on whether a Republican or a Democrat happens to be President. Give us the election of a new Congress of independent men, and watch America come back."

"Mr. Roosevelt last night seemed to be proud that his depression is less disastrous than the worldwide depression of 1929-32," the former Republican President commented. "He said: 'That the slump (of 1937) did not become a major depression is the best kind of proof that we are on the right track.' It is a mighty bumpy track."

As to National Guard.

After charging "disunity in America" was one of the "evil forces" springing from the policies of the Democratic administration, Hoover said: "Mr. Roosevelt last night again mentioned the need of national unity. How about these policies of organizing workers against workers? Of section against section?

"Mr. Roosevelt said: 'I am proud of the fact that I have never called out the armed forces of the state or the nation except on errands of mercy.'

"Mr. Roosevelt omitted to mention that the Governors have had to call out the National Guard, which is part of the armed forces, not once but 90 times during his administration to put down conflict stirred by New Deal policies.

"He neglects also to mention that in the Hoover administration no Governor ever had to call out a single soldier to put down industrial conflict. In fact, the National Guard was called only once and that was to compel the inoculation of cows. All this stirring of conflict makes for neither social justice nor social security."

"Lagging Behind Britain."

In response to the President's assertion, "Our economic and social progress of the past five years has definitely given to the United States a more stable and less artificial prosperity than any other nation in the world has enjoyed," Hoover charged that New Deal policies had caused the United States to lag far behind Great Britain in economic recovery. He said "A dozen other democracies" also could be cited as proof of his charge.

"Mr. Roosevelt last evening eulogized the free and secret ballot as a method to elect free men," Hoover continued. "The ballot may be secret, but there is no secret about those pressures on relief workers on how to vote. And to vote for yes men seems a vain performance if the purpose is to elect free men."

The former President spoke under auspices of the State and county Republican organizations. It was his third major address of the present campaign, the other two having been made at Kansas City, Mo., and at Hartford, Conn.

"Free Enterprise" System.

Hoover conceded the "free enterprise" system had "weaknesses," one of which he said was "in organization and streaks of wickedness in the financial system," another being "that in the national concentration on production we gave too little heed to the fair diffusion among all the people of this triumph of production."

Nevertheless, he said, the system created "an unparalleled economic middle class of more than 80 per cent of the people. . . . Not 5 per cent of the people in Russia or 10 per cent of the people in Germany or Italy today enjoy the standard of living which 80 per cent of our people possessed at that time."

Hoover cited currency devaluation, the mounting public debt, pump priming, governmental restrictions on production, "abundant life" arguments and references to "objectives."

"You will find every one of these powers and these ideas, he said, "somewhere along the Berlin-Rome-Moscow axis."

As consequences, the former President said, we have 11,000,000 or more unemployed, 30,000,000 "living on relief of some sort of pay from the Government, and farm prices "lower on the old gold basis than ever before."

He predicted the public debt would rise to more than $40,000,000,000.

"The New Deal slogan," he said, "might be two families in every garage."

Hoover Predicts Republican Victory in Seven States.

PENDLETON, Ore., Nov. 5.—Former President Herbert Hoover predicted at a Republican rally here last night that in the coming election Oregon, California, Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Kansas would go Republican, and that if the trend continued a Republican President would be elected in 1940. The ex-President said New York was the key state, so far as success or failure of the New Deal was concerned. The Republican party had an even chance there in the election, he said.

NAZI PAPER SAYS ROOSEVELT SHOULD REFORM U. S. FIRST

Suggests He Stop Denouncing Authoritarian States and Cleanse Own Land of Gangsters.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Berlin newspaper Boersenzeitung, commenting on President Roosevelt's pre-election speech Friday night, declared the United States should clean up its gangsters before criticising authoritarian states.

"We think Mr. Roosevelt, in the heat of an electioneering campaign, is losing more and more the sense of reality and truth," the paper said.

"He once more criticises 'terrorism' in authoritarian states.

"He should leave it alone, for we could treat him to a lecture on terrorism in his own country that would leave nothing to be desired as far as authentic material.

"Mr. Roosevelt should cease attacking states where order reigns and which are well-tried guarantors of peace. Rather he should set about to cleanse his own country of terrorists and gangsters."

JAPANESE GROOM WARLORD TO HEAD SETUP IN CHINA

Gen. Wu Pei-fu Said to Have Pledged Unqualified Economic Co-operation With Tokyo.

ONCE LED ARMY BEATEN BY CHIANG

Elimination of American and Other Western Interests Predicted If Scheme Succeeds.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, Nov. 5.—The framework of a new Central Chinese Government under the auspices of Japan and the nominal leadership of a retired Chinese warlord is expected to be announced shortly.

This was learned today from sources which said Japan's leading political manipulator, Lieutenant-General Kenji Doihara, conferred for two hours yesterday with Gen. Count Juichi Terauch, commander of Japanese forces in North China, and reached an agreement on details of the plan.

These sources predicted the new government would mean eventual elimination of Western, including American, economic interests in China.

Considered noteworthy by informants on these developments was the fact that Major-General Seicchi Kita, Japanese military attache for China and often called father of the Peiping provisional government, did not attend the Doihara-Terauchi conference.

Kita was in Nanking at the meeting of the United Council of China. The council was organized in September to supervise affairs common to the Japanese-sponsored governments at Peiping and Nanking.

With Kita were Wang Keh-min, Chinese head of the Peiping Government and chairman of the new council, and other Peiping officials.

New Government Plan.

It was said the new central government would absorb the Peiping and Nanking governments. It was understood it would not be proclaimed until after a "people's council" had been convened and had elected high officials.

The prospective head of the new government is Gen. Wu Pei-fu, 60 years old, who has been involved in hostilities in China since the turn of the century.

He was reported to have been considered in September as possible chairman of the United Council of the Peiping and Nanking governments, but Chinese sources said his wife then would not permit him to work for the Japanese.

In 1927, Wu, as commander-in-chief of the allied anti-Red army, suffered defeat at the hands of the national revolutionary army under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Government with which the Japanese are at war and which they hope to supplant.

Wu's Guarantees.

Wu was understood to have accepted the post, at the same time guaranteeing unqualified economic co-operation with Japan and an anti-Communistic policy in return for permission to raise a new Chinese army on the basis of Japanese withdrawal of troops from China within four years.

It was said that Wu, long in obscurity and previously clinging to a stand that the new Chinese government should be independent, had been forced to emerge by Doihara, who some time ago advanced 1,000,000 yen ($277,000) to him for promotion of a new government.

Informed Chinese circles said Wu's promise of unqualified economic co-operation represented a great Japanese triumph. One source termed it a concession by "ignorant but well-meaning militarists which they—(the Japanese) have never been able to wring from Wang Keh-min.

WAGE-HOUR ACT REGULATION ON CHILD LABOR SUSPENDED

Hearing to Be Held on Requirement That Employment Be Between 6 A. M. and 7 P. M.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Katherine F. Lenroot, chief the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department, suspended today the child-labor regulation which limits employment of minors 14 to 16 years of age to the hours between 6 a. m. and 7 p. m.

This regulation was issued under the Fair Labor Standards Act. It permitted the employment of children under 16—the age limit set by the act—in certain occupations which were deemed harmless to health; but restricted their employment to the 6 a. m.-7 p. m. period.

Miss Lenroot said the suspension was ordered because of representations made to her that in certain occupations the regulations would give rise to problems requiring additional time for adjustment. A public hearing will be conducted later.

Cameron of Ford Co. to Speak Here.

W. J. Cameron, an executive of the Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich., will be the principal speaker at the annual sales conference, sponsored by the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held Nov. 18 at Hotel York.

OFFICIAL PROPOSES BROAD ATTACK ON JOB PROBLEM

Suggests Government's Monopoly Committee Co-operate With Business in Effort.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Richard C. Patterson Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce, proposed today that the Government's monopoly investigating committee co-operate with business in a major effort to solve the unemployment problem. He spoke before the Harmonie Club.

Patterson, a member, said the Monopoly Committee intended to make a "complete inventory of the Nation's business and financial structure" rather than a "mere study of monopoly."

He said the committee was created to study "weaknesses in our economic structure."

"Certainly there are inequities in our system of taxation which should be removed," he said. "Certainly there are short circuits in our system of distribution to be repaired."

He expressed the opinion that "management today is gradually becoming aware of an enlarged social responsibility," and added, "if business expects to set its own house in order it must analyze its policies to determine which of them are consistent with the social responsibilities which accompany the privilege of making profits."

ROOSEVELT CONFERS WITH TARIFF COMMISSION HEAD

Later, He Inspects Possible Sites of Low-Cost Housing Project at Poughkeepsie.

By the Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—President Roosevelt spent most of the morning reading newspaper comment and telegrams on his speech calling for election of experienced liberals to office and conferring with Raymond B. Stephens of New Hampshire, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission.

In the afternoon, the President, accompanied by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his son, motored for an hour around nearby Poughkeepsie and outskirts, inspecting possible sites for a low-cost housing project.

Himself driving, Mr. Roosevelt stopped at the Nelson house in Poughkeepsie, where the temporary White House offices are located, and picked up the Morgenthaus. Almost unnoticed, the President returned an hour later, stopped his car in front of the hotel and, pulling out a cigarette, chatted for 10 minutes with Morgenthau before the latter left to return to his home in Fishkill, N. Y.

About 100 persons gathered to watch the unusual informality of this curbstone conversation, before the President drove off to inspect his new stone cottage near Val-Kill.

Returning to the "big house," his boyhood home, he conferred a while with local School Board members before dinner.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY REGISTRATION

104,564 Names, a Record, on Rolls for Tuesday's Election.

Registration in St. Clair County for Tuesday's election is 104,564, a new high, County Clerk D. A. Prindable announced yesterday after completing the tabulation of the revised list of voters. The previous high registration was 97,166, two years ago.

The greatest increase was in East St. Louis, where 6095 names were added to the polling lists for a total of 48,725.

Press Comment on Roosevelt Campaign Speech for 'Liberals'

Varied Editorial Reaction in Different Parts of Country to President's Radio Appeal to Voters.

FOLLOWING are excerpts of newspaper editorial comment in different parts of the country on President Roosevelt's campaign speech at Hyde Park, N. Y., Friday night, calling on the voters to support "liberal" candidates:

Baltimore Sun: Far from being the stabilizing tendency which the President says it is, the program of his administration has worked just the other way, largely because the New Deal has tended to discourage capital investment in new plan and equipment for American industry. The utilities and business in general have been reluctant to commit themselves to large new enterprises in a period in which Government policies have made the future difficult to read. The utilities in particular have held back because they could not be sure that publicly subsidized plants would not be erected to compete with any new establishments in which they themselves might invest. Business in general has been subject to all sorts of uncertainties as a result of the administration's wage and labor and tax policies, and in the case of the undistributed profits tax on corporations, new investment out of current funds was positively discouraged.

New York Herald Tribune—"How to make a speech in a campaign without discussing any of the issues" would be a very accurate title for the President's fireside chat last night. Perhaps after his sad experience in his efforts to purge the Senate of any but 100 per cent New Dealers, he may be pardoned for being cautious of blunt statements and direct attack in an effort to purge Mr. Dewey out of Albany. The cautious defensive talk that resulted may not alienate as many as did his earlier attempts at purging. It can hardly gain votes.

It had been rumored that the President would at least admit that his laws needed improvement, and specify just what he thought ought to be done to the Wagner Act. But he pinned wreath after wreath on Senator Wagner without so much as hinting that any change was necessary. The President had apparently not heard of Mr. O'Brian's stirring campaign on this issue, and the abject retreat of Senator Wagner before it.

Minneapolis Tribune: President Roosevelt, speaking in his dual role of chief executive and party leader, would have the nation believe that the fate of democracy itself in this country is inextricably intertwined with the personal political fate of his leadership, and that of those who agree with him. With the blandness of self-content, the President arrogates to himself and to those within the charmed circle of his shifting approval, exclusive devotion to a "system which will provide efficiently for distributing national resources and serve the welfare and happiness of all who live under it."

Boston Herald—President Roosevelt's address lacks entirely the fervor which is expected in a pre-election admonition to the faithful, and altogether is about as calm and unprovocative an utterance as he has made since he took office.

Cleveland Plain Dealer—Republicans are likely to say this morning that, except for the eleventh-hour embarrassment of New York's Democratic candidates, hard-pressed by their Republican foes, the President would not have taken to the air for this preachment.

In his pro-Lehman, pro-Wagner, pro-Mead, pro-Murphy pronouncement last night Mr. Roosevelt deals only with the pleasanter aspects of the program. He says nothing about unbalanced budgets, deficits, the unparalleled bigness of the national debt, the failure of pump-priming and of managed economy; or of the sinister political power of millions on the Federal payroll when it serves the purpose of loyal party men to wield this power.

Chicago Daily News will say tomorrow—The President argued Friday that the people should vote for New Dealers in order to save Democracy from the Fascism and Communism which the Republicans, "unconsciously, perhaps," are bringing about!

Is not this a strange twisting of fact and meaning?

The New Deal, by condoning sit-down strikes and destruction of property, by stirring up class hatred, by espousing the side of one class against another, by continually denouncing and threatening the minority, by attempting to override Congress and the Supreme Court and concentrate all powers in the hands of the executive, by attempting to regiment the people and to dictate to them how they shall run their lives, is not only building up the machinery of a dictatorship, but is stimulating in large sections of the population the bitter enmities and hatreds which, in other hands less fortunately situated than we are, have led to dictatorship.

St. Paul Pioneer Press — The President's chief motive in putting his hand into politics here and there during this final election campaign has been to head off rising young Republican stars who promise to shine brightly on the national horizon, men like Mr. Dewey and Mr. Simpson in New York, Mr. Stassen in Minnesota and Senator Lodge in Massachusetts.

Des Moines (Ia.) Register: From a dispassionate view, it would seem extremely improbable that we shall go back in the near future to what Mr. Roosevelt identifies as "old-line tory Republicanism." The conditions for a complete reaction are not present as they were in Harding's time, and to some degree in Taft's. Yet the forces of moderation are unquestionably swelling. If a Republicanism that represents the new, youthful, vigorous, liberal characteristics, which are inherent in the party, despite their suppression at times in the past—if that type of Republicanism now comes to the fore, as it doubtless will, the alternatives to New Dealism are by no means what the President, however sincerely, wishes us to believe they are.

Kansas City Star: With 50-cent wheat and more than 10,000,000 men out of work, the President was somewhat embarrassed in recalling his old contention that "we planned it this way." His suggestion that without the New Deal it might have been much worse brings to mind the doctor with a sure preventive of colds. When a reproachful patient appeared with a bad cold in spite of many preventive shots, the doctor would console him with the thought that without the shots he might have had pneumonia.

Washington Post—Reading between the lines of the President's speech last night it is easy to see the great importance which he attaches to Tuesday's contest. There was a clear suggestion that it is to be regarded as a vote of confidence on the New Deal as a unified program, the intimation being that those who vote Republican will thereby serve as an impediment to social progress.

In view of the virtual certainty of a continued Democratic majority in both houses of the next Congress, the importance attached to the coming election by Mr. Roosevelt might seem a little exaggerated. The date in the President's mind, however, is not next week, but 1940. It is not so much the composition of the next Congress but the bearing of of that Congress on the next Democratic nominating convention which concerns the White House. To have that Congress safely acceptable to Mr. Roosevelt, leaving all third-term talk aside, the administration must in the ensuing months retain legislative power behind its program—whatever this may be. The next Congress, in the President's opinion, must be New Deal rather than Democratic. The failure of the purge makes this not less, but more, essential.

Omaha World Herald—There are many Democrats, Republicans and independents, who sincerely sympathise with the major part of Mr. Roosevelt's purposes, yet who honestly criticise methods, deplore palpable failures, are deeply alarmed by unsound fiscal policies, and by the spreading of fear and prejudice rather than appealing to reason in political and economic controversy.

They are not endangering the republic, but strengthening it, by speaking their minds. When the President seeks to convey the impression that criticism, free political action and free discussions are unworthy and menacing, he pays but a shabby compliment to his own cause.

Dallas (Tex.) News: The Roosevelt administration in the only liberal government that the President recognizes and liberal government is lost unless it is made continuing. Mr. Roosevelt recalled the advances made under Theodore Roosevelt. He declared that most of the gains were lost under four years of William Howard Taft. Here is a plain intimation that what Mr. Roosevelt regards as a conservative Democrat will be unwelcome to him as the nominee in 1940. Is there then not only a mild intimation that the party knows who will make a liberal candidate, but an outright threat to make a Bull Moose attack if, for instance, John N. Garner is nominated?

Father Kilfoil Gets New Post.

General View of the Shaw's Garden Chrysanthemum Show

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Jewel Box, Shaw's Garden Display Chrysanthemums

Show in Forest Park Opened Yesterday, That at Floral Display House Starts Today.

It is chrysanthemum time in St. Louis again. Great mounds of the vari-colored Oriental blossoms will be on display under the greenhouse glass of Shaw's Garden and Forest Park throughout the month.

The third annual "mum" show opened in the Jewel Box in Forest Park yesterday afternoon and the thirty-third annual display at Shaw's Garden will open in the Floral Display House at 9 o'clock this morning. A band concert is to be given at the Jewel Box today from 2:30 to 5 p. m. Both shows will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Appropriately, a Japanese setting, complete with tea house and stone temple lanterns—the latter mementoes of the World's Fair of 1904—has been arranged at Shaw's Garden. The bloom is the royal flower of Japan, and the highest decoration in the gift of the Mikado is the Order of the Chrysanthemum.

"It took two weeks to arrange this show," Paul Kohl, floriculturist at the Garden under its director, Dr. George T. Moore, told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "And we have been growing the plants in our own greenhouses ever since January.

"There are more than 3000 plants in the show, and many of those now on display will be replaced by later-blooming varieties in two or three weeks."

From Half an Inch to 7 Feet Tall.

The show flowers range in size from single-stemmed giants like the butter-yellow Mrs. Roosevelt, which stands seven feet high, to the half-inch Baby Dolls—a bush variety. Some of the flowers with particularly pliable stems have been trained to fall over reed fences in cascades. Others are overhead in hanging baskets. Some of the giants have been massed as a background for the whole display, but most of the varieties have been planted in great beds that look like heaps of white and brown and yellow and blue and purple velvet snippets.

Unlike lilacs that are named for the great personages of history and literature so that there is a very dark Toussaint L'Ouverture and a lily white Jeanne d'Arc, there is little romance in the names of chrysanthemums. Exceptions might be the Mrs. Roosevelt, the deep red and yellow Mrs. David Lloyd George and the rich maroon and gold Melba—always a favorite at the shows.

One of the blooms is named for Elmer D. Smith of Adrian, Mich., now the leading hybridizer of the flower. Many of his varieties are included in the 250 on display here. In all, there are more than 2000 varieties of the plant, ranging from exotic blooms to mere weeds, and they have been under cultivation in China and Japan for almost 3000 years.

Rise of the Chrysanthemum.

They were first mentioned in Europe in 1689 by Breynius, and the first chrysanthemums were introduced into England in 1789 by Pierre Louis Blancard. They were brought to the United States in 1847 and were popularized largely through the work of Dr. H. P. Walcott and John Thorpe. The latter, in 1890, founded the Chrysanthemum Society of America.

Far removed from the popular football flowers that are adding bright touches of color to stadium crowds these fall Saturday afternoons are the more exotic Oriental chrysanthemums. Some of these have tubular or hairy petals. Others are filmy as spider webs or long and slender as a mandarin's fingernail.

INDUSTRIAL UNION COUNCIL OPPOSES GASOLINE TAX RISE

It Votes in Favor of Change to Make Minimum Age of Pension Eligibles 65.

The St. Louis Industrial Union Council went on record this week as opposing the proposed increase of one cent in the State gasoline tax and favoring a change in the State old-age pension laws to make the minimum age of pension eligibles 65 years, to coincide with the Federal minimum age limit. The two propositions will appear on the ballot Tuesday.

Previously the Council had voted to adopt a resolution favoring passage of city bond issues No. 1 and 2, which would finance the city's share of a WPA work relief program and modernize the St. Louis Fire Department.

Personal Improvement Lectures.

R. R. Klauke, sales manager of the Krey Packing Co., will open a series of lectures on personal improvement at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. His subject will be "Growing in Your Work." Speakers on following Tuesday nights will be Prof. Isaac Lippincott, Dr. Paul Zentay, W. H. Bryan, Anita B. Croft and Prof. Harold Pflug.

RACHMANINOFF ALTERS SYMPHONY ROUTINE

Plays Puckish Beethoven C Major Instead of Following His Prior Program.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

The St. Louis Symphony Society introduced a novelty into its weekly pair of concerts last night by arranging with Sergei Rachmaninoff, its distinguished guest artist, for the performance of a different piano concerto than the one played Friday afternoon. The Saturday evening choice was the Beethoven C Major, which Mr. Rachmaninoff played before a near-to-capacity house.

Under his poetic stewardship, the C Major concerto turned out to be Beethoven without the frown. Sunny, elegant and filled with delicate curves, shadowy nuances, unexpected breadth in certain passages and a puckish humor, it may have struck certain hearers as being far from characteristic even for early Beethoven. With all due respect to that viewpoint, it must still be said that there was nothing in the interpretation that couldn't be logically justified. Moreover it was wholly ingratiating.

The orchestra under Mr. Golschmann kept the accompaniment well within the limits designated by the soloist.

The other numbers on the program were the same as Friday afternoon—the overture to Mozart's "Abduction from the Seraglio" and the "Fantastic Symphony" by Hector Berlioz—both played with imagination and a fine display of virtuosity.

Neighbor Accused of Killing Boxer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A Coroner's jury found today that Donald Warden, 27-year-old former boxer, had been fatally shot by Rubin Jersky, 25, a neighbor, in a dispute over the parking of an automobile, and recommended Jersky be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder. Police officers pressed their search for Jersky, who, with his wife and baby, was missing from his home after the shooting.

PHILIP D. ARMOUR JR. WEDS JULIA RUSH BIDDLE HENRY

Bride of Descendant of Founder of Packing House Fortune Socially Prominent in Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5. — Julia Rush Biddle Henry of Philadelphia and Philip D. Armour Jr. of Lake Forest, Ill., both members of wealthy and socially prominent families, were married today in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas Charlton Henry and the late Maj. Henry, a veteran of the Seventy-ninth army division during the World War. After the ceremony, a reception was held on Mrs. Henry's Chestnut Hill estate.

The bridegroom is a great-grandson of the founder of the Armour packing house fortune. His father was vice-president of Armour & Co. until he resigned in 1931 to become a director.

TWO STATES WILL CONTINUE FIGHT FOR GREEN'S TAX

Special Master Finds Massachusetts Was Colonel's Home— Supreme Court Must Approve.

BAY STATE'S LEVY IS $4,947,008

His Domicile Place "He Could Obtain Political Advantages and Freedom From Taxation."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Massachusetts' chance of getting $4,947,008 in taxes from the estate of Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of the wealthy Hetty Green, improved today. John S. Flannery of Washington, special master, recommended to the United States Supreme Court that Massachusetts be held to have been Green's legal domicile at the time of his death in 1936.

Adoption of the recommendation would mean that Massachusetts, to the exclusion of New York, Florida and Texas, would be entitled to collect an inheritance tax from the estate, which has been valued at $36,137,335.

New York State, however, prepared to make certain exceptions to the master's recommendation and to ask the court for an early hearing. Texas also announced it would renew its claim.

The Supreme Court appointed the master last year to determine the issue of the domicile.

Texas, which claimed Green as a resident, had sued against the three other states in which Green maintained residences. Texas sought to impose a tax of $4,685,057, Massachusetts $4,947,008, New York $5,910,301 and Florida $4,663,857.

Federal Share $17,520,987.

The Federal Government already had collected its levy of $17,520,987.

Texas contended that, if the other states collected their claims, there would be insufficient funds to pay the amount claimed by Texas. The claims totaled $37,727,000, or $1,589,000 more than the estate's value. Green's sister, Mrs. Hetty Green Wilks, is sole legatee. Under a separate agreement, the widow, Mrs. Mabel Harlow Green, receives $18,000 annually.

Asserting that "conduct is of greater evidential value than mere declaration of intent," Flannery dismissed Green's own often repeated statement that Texas was his legal residence.

"He was nomadic in his tastes," said Flannery, "and evidently regarded domicile as something distinct and apart from home or residence. Home to him was where he happened to be for the time being with his wife and domestic establishment. To him domicile was a mental state where he could obtain certain political advantages and freedom from taxation."

Green's Idiosyncrasies.

In his 57-page report to the court, based upon 11 volumes of testimony and 1400 exhibits, the special master reviewed Green's wanderings and idiosyncrasies at length.

Asserting Green got his large fortune as a result of "inheritance, tax avoidance and income accumulation," the master emphasized the importance of the whole domicile question in tax cases, "in this era of expenditures and high taxation by governmental agencies, when the bulk of individual wealth is in intangible property which may be moved from place to place by migratory millionaires to escape taxation."

Flannery reported that Green quit Texas as a resident as early as 1911; that his palatial estate on Star Island, Miami, Fla., was but a temporary abode for a few months each year, and that he never intended to make New York his permanent home.

Avoided State Taxes.

On the other hand, he said that for many years before his death Green developed his estate at Round Hills, South Dartmouth, Mass., and that it was his "principal, predominant and permanent home."

Green never voted in Massachusetts, however, and successfully convinced Massachusetts tax officials in 1928 that he was a Texan.

The master said that although the Federal Government was successful in getting large slices of the Green income, Green paid no income or personal taxes to any state.

Florida, New York and Texas will be permitted to file objections with the court, which may later hear oral arguments on the domicile question.

How State Would Benefit.

At Boston, Attorney-General Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts said some idea of the relative size of the tax could be gained by the fact it alone would "equal approximately all the inheritance taxes received in Massachusetts in 1938; the yield of 1 cent on each gallon of gasoline used annually; about 50 per cent of the annual yield of taxes on business corporations; about 25 per cent of the yield from the 1938 income tax."

"If used in the general fund," the Attorney-General said, "it would reduce the 1939 State tax by about 30 per cent, and, on the basis of a $5,000,000,000 local valuation, would benefit the property taxpayer $1 on his tax bill on each $1000 of value."

Green's Astonishing Career Brought Out at Hearings.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—In the prime of his existence, Col. Edward H. R. Green was just 315 pounds of whimsy.

Spread through 1400 exhibits and 11 volumes of millions of words, taken at hearings to determine which state has the right to tax his estate, is an astonishing if disjointed biography.

Looking through those millions of words, savoring the memories evoked by this witness and the next, you see the Colonel in all the glory of his vast insatiable curiosity, a strange old fellow, lurching around with difficulty on an artificial leg, talking to laborers, bankers and politicians, children, scientists, aviators.

Here are some samples:

The Colonel, going off for a weekend in the country, jiggling a pocketful of diamonds, carrying $3000 in cash and overseeing the loading of one of the 30 trunks in which he kept rare stamps and coins.

The Colonel star-gazing through his telescope, or hitting a mule on the head in the Texas river bottom, determined to drill for oil where the mule expired, and finding no oil.

The Colonel to whom all traffic lights in Miami were green; the Colonel with his special chair to hold his massive body; the Colonel with a box at the Polo Grounds, tickets for the first night of the new musical comedy; the Colonel giving $5 gold pieces to policemen in Fifth avenue, and the rare sight of the Colonel stalking of a snowy winter's dusk down Fifth avenue to have unexpectedly an urchin leap upon his back, fell him and ruin what was left of the right leg, most of which had already been cut off.

The Colonel experimenting with a fog-dispelling device, flying in his dirigible, gazing fondly at the airplane he owned but never rode in; writing checks for storage of the automobiles he had long since stopped using; the Colonel distributing nickels to guests at South Dartmouth and the whole lot playing the Colonel's slot machine.

The Colonel on the move from Massachusetts to Florida to Texas to New York, generous, high-spirited, loving horse play and vaudeville, sending his friends rum and good whisky, and racing the first automobile that ever went to Texas through a barrage of peaches and tomatoes while the astounded natives screamed laughter at him.

How Green acquired his artificial leg was told at the Texas hearings. The witness gave this version of it:

"Green suffered a severe injury to his leg when he fell under a hand car while working on a railroad. When the doctor advised his mother (Hetty Green) it would cost $450 to save it, or $50 to cut it off, she said: 'Cut it off.'"

THEOSOPHISTS MEET TONIGHT

First Session Under New Charter at DeSoto Hotel.

Theosophists of the St. Louis area will assemble at 7:45 p. m. today at the DeSoto Hotel for their first meeting under a new charter as the Lucius H. Cannon Lodge of St. Louis. The charter, recently granted by the International headquarters of the Theosophical Society at Point Loma, Cal., is named for the late librarian of the Municipal Reference Library branch of the Public Library, at the City Hall, who died two years ago.

Cannon, who was admitted to the Theosophical Society in 1890, and was leader of the St. Louis Lodge for several years before his death, was the compiler of a series of bulletins on smoke abatement and other municipal problems. The meeting Sunday night will be led by Charles Klingel, his successor as leader of the local lodge.

RESCUER TELLS HOW C C C BOYS DIED IN FIRE

Witness at Inquest Says He Led Group of Survivors Out of Forest Trap.

By the Associated Press.

EMPORIUM, Pa., Nov. 5. — One of the first rescue workers to reach the scene of a forest fire on Oct. 19 in which eight lives were lost testified at an inquest today one CCC worker died "on his knees with his head against the rock" on which three other had clambered to safety.

Helge Anderson, 34 years old, told a Coroner's jury of six woodsmen he was passing by and was asked to help in rescue work.

Anderson testified he saw four bodies in a 100-foot radius at a point where a pocket of flame trapped the CCC crew. Their clothes had been burned off "and their shoes were still burning" when he arrived, he said. He helped bring two bodies down, he said, on stretchers made from canvas tied to saplings.

Anderson said he started into the woods with Moyer Erickson, 28. They reached a group of survivors, he related, and with them began to climb to the top of the hill. He said two of the CCC members with him complained "they were sick" and "broke away from me and my party."

At the top of the hill, Anderson added, he saw Harry Mackey, a CCC worker, who told him he escaped "by running through the fire."

Erickson testified he helped carry two boys out of the woods in blankets because stretchers were not available. Stephen Jacofsky, one of the boys who died later in a hospital, was still alive. Erickson helped carry him Jacofsky, Erickson said, told bert Mohney, the foreman, the boys the fire had them and to "get out of there."

Earlier, William E. Houpt, forester, testified the fire about 2500 feet up the hill first saw it. He pointed map how the fire continued top of the hill, then followed contour of the ground tened into a slight gully.

Houpt said "So far as I Mohoney's only fire-fighting structions were received at a sonnel" meeting Oct. 13.

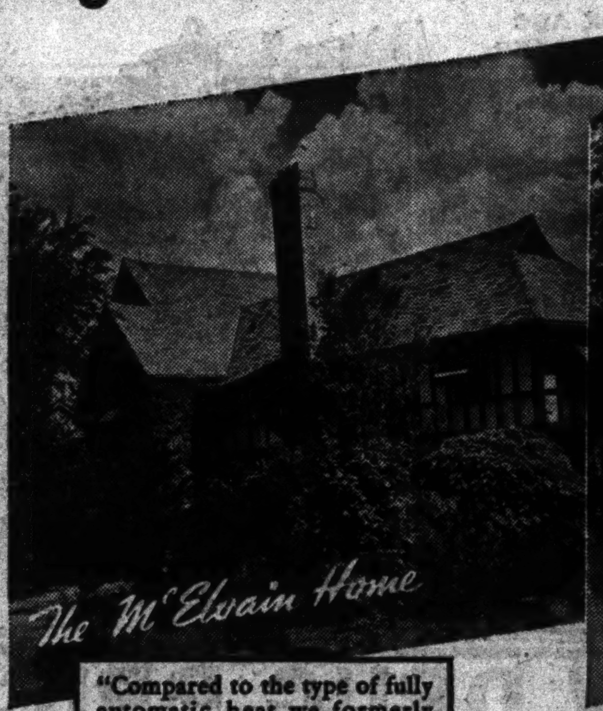
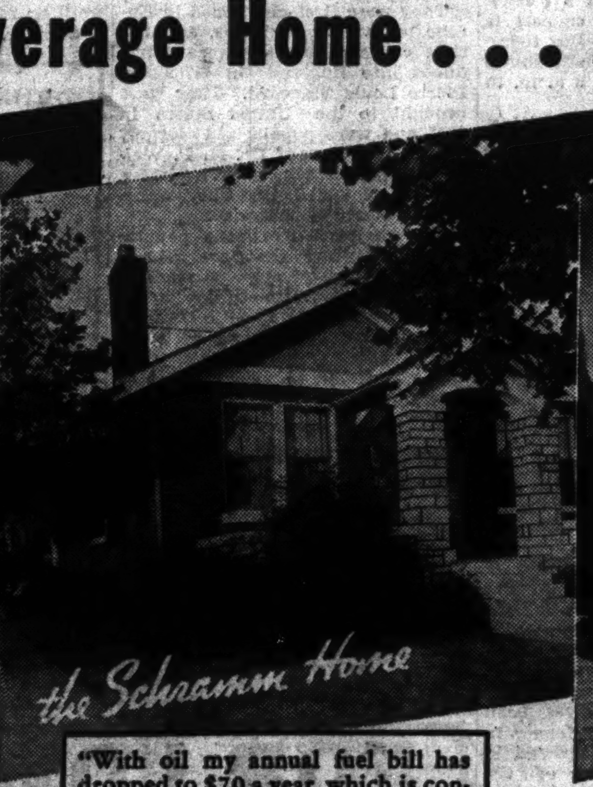
Big Home . . . Average Home . . . Apartment House



The McElvain Home

"Compared to the type of fully automatic heat we formerly had, oil heat costs considerably less." — Dr. R. C. McElvain.



the Schramm Home

"With oil my annual fuel bill has dropped to $70 a year, which is considerably less than it was before we had oil heat."—Joseph J. Schramm.

The McCune Apartments

"By heating one half of my four-family apartment building with oil and the other half with another type of fully automatic heat, I found oil heat costs 25% less."—Lee McCune.

They all Say____

OIL HEAT COSTS LESS

Experiences of homeowners in every size and type of dwelling confirm fact that oil heat costs less

HEATING experts agree oil heat costs less than any other fully automatic fuel. This fact finds hearty support among homeowners who have compared different types of fully automatic heat in their own homes. In big homes—smaller homes—and apartment houses all point to substantial savings achieved by oil heat.

This all-around economy explains why oil is today the most popular form of fully automatic heat in Metropolitan St. Louis.

In turn, this popularity—national as well as local—has made it possible to produce oil burners by mass production methods, lowering the cost that YOU—and every other homeowner can now afford to have oil heat.

As a result, over one-third of the oil burners now being sold are going to families with incomes of less than $50 a week. And a high and rapidly growing percentage have incomes of less than $35 a week.

Today—through the FHA—you can buy an oil burner without a single cent down and take as long as three whole years to pay.

HEAVY FIGHTING AT MORA DE EBRO IN EASTERN SPAIN

Rebels, in 15-Mile Semi-Circle, Trying to Capture Important Town From Government Forces.

STIFF RESISTANCE BY LOYAL ARMY

Insurgents Report They Have Conquered Half of Territory on Right or West Bank of River.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, Nov. 5.—Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's fiel commanders threw the full force of their army today against remaining Spanish Government defenders on the right (west) bank of the Ebro River.

Insurgent dispatches, reporting Franco's forces already had conquered half of the Government territory on the right bank, said the Government troops were fighting desperately to retain their hold on that side of the river.

Fierce fighting was in progress in a 15-mile semi-circle near Mora de Ebro, a major objective in the heart of the Ebro front in Northeastern Spain. Insurgent radio stations last night reported capture of this town but today's official insurgent dispatches did not confirm it.

Rebels Hold Eight-Mile Stretch.

Advices from the insurgent front near Caspe said the red and gold insurgent flag now was flying along an eight-mile stretch of the Ebro right bank which had been held by the Government since July.

Large groups of Government militiamen, with field artillery and complete equipment, were reported encircled in the Caballos and Pecha Mountains, and near Moravet and Pinell. This section is on the right bank about 10 miles east of Gandesa and about 18 miles north of Tortosa.

Insurgent dispatches said the only connection the Government forces had maintained with the left bank were a few light pontoon bridges, some half-demolished, north of Miravet.

Some of these bridges, the dispatches declared, were under the fire of insurgent artillery, while others were targets for insurgent bombers which made flight after flight over the river despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Both insurgent and Government dispatches indicated, however, that in spite of steady insurgent gains during this week's steady insurgent offensive, the operation was far from being a walk-over.

Beyond the constant jockeying back and forth of lines in offensive and counter-offensive, the insurgent gains of the last week, if they are consolidated and held, will be the first of great importance in the Ebro region since the Government first crossed the river and established itself in the hills around Gandesa.

Border reports indicated that when and if the insurgents succeed in conquering the entire right bank, they will make no attempt to force a dangerous crossing to the left bank, which is well fortified by Government troops.

Rebel Cruiser Holds Captured Spanish Freighter at Emden, Germany.

By the Associated Press.

EMDEN, Germany, Nov. 5.—The crew of the Spanish insurgent auxiliary cruiser Ciudad de Alicante held the Spanish Government freighter Rio Mira in Emden Harer capturing her in the North Sea.

Reliable informants said the crew of the Rio Mira had been imprisoned by the insurgents.

The Rio Mira was brought into the harbor by the insurgent crew yesterday. The Berlin Embassy of the insurgent Government said no information had been received on the incident, and the German Propaganda Ministry and harbor authorities also declined to divulge any information concerning the incident.

The Rio Mira, which had been in Emden Friday to replenish her fuel supply, was the second Spanish Government ship to be attacked in Northern European waters this week. On Wednesday the freighter Cantabria was bombarded and sunk by the insurgent auxiliary cruiser Nadir off England's east coast.

OLD HEADS REINSTATED AT UNION PRINTERS' HOME

Action on Order of International That Sustains Ousted Superintendent's Charge of Politics.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Nov. 5.—The reinstatement of Mr. and Mrs. James McCoy as superintendent and matron of the Union Printers' Home here was announced today by the board of trustees following a four-day session. The board acted on instructions approved by the International Typographical Union at its convention at Birmingham, Ala.

The board dismissed Mr. and Mrs. Dowell E. Patterson of Charleston, S. C., appointed to succeed the McCoys last July.

The changes will be effective Nov. 12.

The International convention ordered the reinstatement after hearing McCoy's charges that his removal was prompted by politics.

PHYSICIST ASKS HEIFETZ TO AID IN VIOLIN TEST

Harvard Professor 'Suspects' Cheaper Fiddles Are as Good as Stradivarius.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5. — A Harvard physicist, Dr. Frederick A. Saunders, whose experiments over three years have led him to "suspect you can get the same tone from instruments now rated as much cheaper" than the Stradivarius and other instruments of the master makers, expressed the hope today that Violinist Jascha Heifetz, owner of a Stradivarius and a Guarnarius, would help him test his theory. Heifetz arrived in Boston today for two concerts.

Dr. Saunders said he expected Heifetz would play for him and for science in his laboratory, equipped with literally tons of testing apparatus.

Scores of instruments—"from $5 fiddles to rare old violins"—have been used by the professor, himself a violinist, in his experiments, which consist of making "photographic" analyses of violin tones. When Heifetz plays and the tonal picture is recorded, comparison will be made with graphs tracing the tones of cheaper violins.

Electrical Engineer to Speak.

U. S. JUDGE DEFENDS DISMISSAL OF OIL MEN

Patrick T. Stone Files Brief in Appelate Court in Madison (Wis.) Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—United States District Judge Patrick T. Stone of Wisconsin filed a brief in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today defending his dismissal of 11 defendants in the oil monopoly trial at Madison, Wis., earlier this year.

During the trial Judge Stone deferred ruling on defense motions for directed verdicts of acquittal of 11 defendants but entered an order, for purposes of the record, denying the motions without hearing arguments.

W. P. Crawford, special assistant to the Attorney-General in prosecution of the cases, charged Judge Stone had no right to enter a dismissal order later nullifying his first action after the jury had returned a verdict convicting the 11 of conspiracy.

The Appellate Court ordered Judge Stone to show cause why his dismissal order should not be expunged from the record and the 11 defendants ordered to trial again.

Declaring deferred rulings were common practice in the State and Federal courts of Wisconsin, Judge Stone in his brief said:

"Respondent did not arbitrarily usurp the function of the jury by weighing the evidence nor did he arbitrarily refuse to consider and ignore any substantial evidence. A careful review of the entire record disclosed that there was no substantial evidence of the guilt of any of the defendants who were dismissed."

The defendants who benefited by Judge Stone's ruling were Henry M. Dawes, Chicago, president, Pure Oil Co.; Edward G. Seubert, Chicago, president, Standard Oil of Indiana; Allan Jackson, Chicago, vice-president, Standard Oil of Indiana; B. S. Reid, Chicago, general manager, Chicago division, Socony-Vacuum; C. L. Jones, New York, vice-president, Socony-Vacuum; Dan Moran, Ponca City, Ok., president, Continental Oil Co.; Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, Ok., president, Phillips Petroleum Co.; W. G. Skelly, Tulsa, Ok., president, Skelly Oil Co.; Jacob France, Baltimore, president and general manager, Midcontinent Petroleum Corporation; Arthur V. Borque, Tulsa, Ok., secretary and treasurer, Western Petroleum Refiners Association, and the Globe Oil and Refining Co., Kansas.

Judge Stone sustained convictions of five other individuals and 12 other corporations, assessing fines totaling $65,000. Eighteen other defendants were granted new trials.

SENATOR CLARK TALKS ON FLOOD CONTROL ACT

1938 Measure Largely Corrects Unfairness of Earlier One, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—The Flood Control Act of 1938 authorizes large expenditures to protect Missouri areas from flood dangers and substantially modifies the 1936 act which made drastic requirements on local communities for contributions, United States Senator Bennett C. Clark, seeking re-election, said tonight in a campaign address here.

"Many communities in the most desperate need were unable to make contributions, and I regarded the provision as unfair and short-sighted," the Senator declared. "This has been largely corrected by the 1938 act.

"The Mississippi River improvements are being carried out as rapidly as possible. Great works have been authorized to protect Kansas City from floods of the Missouri and the Kaw. The act of 1938 carries a large authorization for the protection of the White and Black rivers against dangerous floods. Surveys have been authorized for the Grand and Chariton rivers in North Missouri.

"We may look forward to the day when the nation will be protected from disastrous floods. I am glad to have borne a part in bringing about corrective measures."

Cost Less Than That of Floods.

Clark asserted that while the program will cost great sums of money, this cost will be much less in the long run than the losses which would be suffered through floods. He promised, if re-elected, to continue efforts toward complete solution of the flood control problem.

Describing the long campaign of flood control advocates for comprehensive handling of the problem, he said their efforts at first were "berated, ridiculed, abused and thwarted."

"Shouts of 'pork barrel' went up in the House and Senate and in the press and magazines at any attempt to secure action," he continued. "What bitter irony do these cries seem today, and how remorseful should these cynics feel as they contemplate the wreckage in the wake of the extraordinary floods of 1936 and 1937, with their loss, direct and indirect, of probably a billion and a half of our national wealth, with pestilence following in their train and known deaths far into the thousands."

Praise for Wage-Hour Law.

Earlier in the day, speaking at a Democratic rally at Eldon, Clark termed the wages and hours law "a modest start in the direction of putting a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours of labor," and said he looked forward to the enactment "some day" of a law limiting hours of labor to 30 a week.

DICKMANN ON RADIO ASKS VOTES FOR BONDS

Mayor Supports Fire Department and WPA Issues Totaling $1,250,000.

Passage of the Fire Department and WPA bond issues was urged yesterday by Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann. The Fire Department proposal, calling for the issuance of $500,000 in bonds, and the WPA proposal for $750,000, will be voted on Tuesday.

Residential and industrial sections in the West End, South St. Louis and North St. Louis are not as well protected against fire losses as similar districts downtown and in the central part of the city, the Mayor said in a radio address.

In the downtown area there are six 1300-gallon-a-minute pumpers, while in outlying districts there are only 750-gallon pumpers, he pointed out. "Should a blaze of extreme magnitude get under way in the outlying districts the big downtown pumpers would be called into action," he said. "But those pumpers would have to make the trip from downtown with consequent loss of time."

If the Fire Department proposition were passed, he asserted, new fire-fighting equipment would be purchased, several fire stations would be consolidated and the present overhead reduced about $75,000 annually. New consolidated stations would be placed on streets adjacent to widened thoroughfares, removing them from congested side streets where traffic slows fire engines, he added.

"St. Louis faces an emergency and we can't haggle about the $500,000 that is needed for fire protection," the Mayor said. "It is a small sum compared to the $87,000,000 bond issue we voted some years ago for public improvements. Let us picture a man, or a community, expending $87,000,000 for a city beautiful and neglecting to provide an adequate fire department for protecting it. Such things are not being done."

With Federal Aid.

In his statement on the WPA bond issue proposal, Mayor Dickmann said the city spent $3,000,000 on WPA projects in the last three years and the Federal Government spent $52,000,000 for public improvements and services here.

Of the total by the Government in the city, $46,000,000 went for wages of 38,000 workers, 4000 of them women, he said.

"WPA workers have built 50 miles of new streets," the Mayor continued. "They have resurfaced 21 miles of streets. If the new streets had been built by the city, the cost to taxpayers would have been from $10 to $15 a front foot of property. With the WPA doing the work, the cost was between $1.50 and $2 a front foot.

"Included in our plans, based on the passage of the bond issue, is the building of 41 additional miles of new streets at this low cost and the resurfacing of 50 additional miles. For the resurfacing work the cost to the taxpayer is nothing, the same as in nearly all other WPA improvements.

"Many miles of unsightly wiring have been placed underground and we wish to continue this work. When the express highway was built, it was estimated that it would cost the city $25,000 a year to maintain the banked sides of the highway. The rip-rapping of the embankments at a cost to the city of only $7000 will save this annual outlay of city money.

"Flood control work on the River des Peres, along with the rip-rapping of the banks, has cost the city $75,287. One flood would do in property damage many times that amount of money."

38,000 Workers Affected.

Sewing projects have enabled the city to save more than 70 per cent on clothing for residents of institutions, he continued. "WPA gave us the beautiful Memorial Plaza and refurnished public buildings," he said.

"In addition to all of these material benefits to our city is the humanitarian phase of the work by which these 38,000 WPA workers are able to have a weekly wage. Without this wage, with winter coming on, certainly these workers are going to be hard put if the WPA bond issue fails to carry, for this is the only way the work can go on.

"I cannot impress too strongly upon every voter that the WPA bond issue must be carried. If it fails it will mean certain chaos; if it passes it will solve for some time to come the potential crisis which we face."

M'NINCH CALLS RADIO MEN TO CONFERENCE

Communications Chairman Wants to Take Up Use of 'Flash' and 'Bulletins.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Terror caused by a simulated news broadcast led Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Communications Commission to issue a call today for a conference with radio chain presidents on the question of limiting radio use of the terms "flash" and "bulletin" to important bona fide news.

Using a news bulletin technique, the Columbia Broadcasting System presented last Sunday night an adaptation of H. G. Wells' play, "The War of the Worlds."

Although it was explained at the start of the program and subsequently that the story was a dramatization, the broadcast account of the landing of strange men from another planet caused hysteria in many sections of the nation.

McNinch, who commented immediately that the incident was "regrettable," announced today he had asked William S. Paley, president of Columbia; W. E. MacFarlane, president of the Mutual Broadcasting System, and Lenox Lohr, president of the National Broadcasting Co., to meet with him next week. While McNinch did not specify the day, it was indicated the meeting might be Tuesday.

The purpose of the conference, McNinch said, is to discuss "subjects pertaining to broadcast programs and especially the frequent and, at times, misleading use of the newspaper term 'flash' in radio programs of various types." He added:

"I have heard the opinion often expressed, within the industry as well as outside, that the practice of using 'flash' as well as 'bulletin' is overworked and results in misleading the public.

"It is hoped and believed that a discussion of this subject may lead to a clearer differentiation between bona fide news matter of first-rank importance and that which is of only ordinary importance or which finds place in dramatics or advertising.

"After having discussed this matter with the three national networks, I shall have further conferences with others in the industry along the same general lines."

Prior to the conference, the commission is expected to listen to an electrical transcription of "The War of the Worlds" broadcast.

CHILD BRIDE'S HEARING OFF

Indefinite Postponement of Case of Ruth Howard.

By the Associated Press.

ASHLAND, Ky., Nov. 5.—County Judge George G. Bell announced today at nearby Catlettsburg that the scheduled hearing for Ruth (Peachy) Whitt Howard, child bride, on a charge of juvenile delinquency has been "indefinitely postponed." He did not elaborate.

School records show the girl is 12 years old. She says she is 14. Her mother gave her age as 16 when the license was issued April 11 for her marriage to Wilburn Howard, 60. Howard is under $1000 bond.

A REAL HUDSON PRICED AMONG THE LOWEST

With Hudson's Revolutionary New Auto-Poise Control and New Salon Interior

We are proud to announce the biggest money's worth that so low a price ever bought. It's the completely new, 86 horsepower Hudson 112 De Luxe—priced down among the other lowest priced leaders, yet a real Hudson, through and through.

The new Hudson 112 is the only car in its price group that's built side by side with a great line of higher priced companion cars—sharing their fundamental design, profiting by the high standards established in producing them.

You need only spend a few minutes at the wheel of a new Hudson 112 to see what an amazing difference results from this. There is literally nothing about the car—in size, appearance or the "feel" of its silken-smooth performance—to suggest low price. In fact, it does not suffer from comparison with cars costing hundreds of dollars more.

So we invite you today to come in and see and drive a car that rises far above its price class in everything by which you judge a fine automobile.

These Great New Features . . . Among Many Others . . . Are Standard in this Lowest Priced Hudson

★ New Auto-Poise Control—one of the greatest forward steps ever taken in giving the driver complete control of his car under all conditions. Wheels hold their course automatically, even in heavy side winds and on rough roads. No other car has anything like it.

★ New Dash-Locking Safety Hood (exclusive)—hinged at the front—wind just closes it tighter. Hood latches operate from a lever inside the car, next to the steering wheel—when you lock your car you lock your hood. Battery and engine parts safe from theft.

★ New Carry-All Luggage Compartment (concealed trunk)—a wholly new way of mounting the spare tire gives more room than you get in most other touring or trunk models, yet the back of the car is beautifully streamlined—there is no "bulge." Tools ride in a recessed space of their own, and tire and tools can be removed without disturbing an ordinary load of baggage.

See if any car at any price ever pleased you so well.

And the New Luxury of Hudson's Sensational Airfoam Seat Cushions Can Be Yours At Small Extra Cost.

Beautiful Beyond Belief

WITNESS TELLS HOUSE COMMITTEE OF NAZI THREATS

Bernhard Hoffmann, Milwaukee Says Bund Seeks Overthrow of U. S. Government.

ANOTHER REPORTS ANTI-JEWISH MOVE

Negro Attorney Charges President Johnson of Howard University Is 'Advocating Communism.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—House investigators were told today that some German-Americans had been warned their relatives in Germany "would suffer" if they criticised policies of the Nazi Government.

Bernhard Hofmann of Milwaukee told the committee investigating un-American activities that friends had informed him frequently of receiving such threats.

One German-American woman told him only last week, he said, that she had been warned anonymously to stop "making remarks about conditions in Vienna."

The witness, a rosy-cheeked, middle-aged radio salesman, said he was president of the Wisconsin Federation of German-American Societies and of the Milwaukee German-American Federation.

Speaking with a decided German accent, Hofmann said he had received threats—some of them anonymous—because he would not join the German-American Bund. He said the Bund was trying to overthrow the American form of Government.

College President Accused.

Another witness, James A. Cobb, Washington Negro attorney, told the committee that President Mordecai W. Johnson of Howard University here was "advocating Communism."

Cobb, a former law professor at Howard, said the school received about $600,000 annually from the Government. The witness added that "by his advocacy of Communism" Johnson was trying "to destroy the very Government whose largess he is receiving."

Politically important names in Wisconsin were mentioned in testimony by Leroy Schulz, vice-chairman of the Protective League of Milwaukee. Schulz said the league was allied with the German-American Bund, and that he had joined it out of curiosity rather than sympathy. He said it was formed to educate people to "buy Gentile."

Schulz detailed numerous conversations he said he had had with officers of the organization. At an executive meeting last May 25, he said, A. C. Pagenkopf, a director, asserted that "we in America must do as the other countries are doing in persecuting the Jews."

Pagenkopf said, the witness continued, that "the only way to start a move which will rid this country of the Jews is to drag them down the streets by their hair or hang them on the nearest limb."

Bund Activities.

Schulz said that George Froboese, Midwest leader of the German-American Bund, had been nominated for the Board of Directors in the Protective League but declined—saying he did not wish to have his name connected with the Protective League because it would draw unfavorable publicity.

Schulz said he talked last Sept. 10 with Ernest Goerner, described as a publicity man for the Bund in the Milwaukee area.

Goerner said, Schulz testified, that "all our troubles and sufferings can be laid at the doors of the Jews."

In another talk on Oct. 18, Schulz said, both Goerner and his wife asserted "that dirty Communist rat, Gov. LaFollette, must be defeated at any or all costs."

"However," the witness continued, "they stated that in the event he should be re-elected there was no doubt in their minds that blood would flow before long."

From its investigator, John C. Metcalfe, the committee received an affidavit signed by Irving Rassmussen, described as a counter man in Bowers Lunch in Milwaukee.

The affidavit said that John C. Schafer, Republican candidate for Congress in the Fourth Wisconsin District, had told a woman in the lunchroom Oct. 9 "that he was a Silver Shirt."

Schafer asked her, the affidavit continued, "if she had ever heard the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun; he also imitated the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun and told her that was the way they (the Silver Shirts) were going to get rid of all Jews."

"Silver Shirt" Story.

The affidavit said Rassmussen ascertained Schafer's identity after talking with another customer, "who is known as Viola Wold, employed at the Four Aces Cafe."

Metcalfe also introduced a copy of a letter he said was written by Goerner to Julius P. Heil, Republican candidate for Governor of Wisconsin, which said: "Instead of running on the Republican ticket, it would be more correct and honest for you to run on a Communist ticket."

Legion Commander Urges Support of Dies Committee.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 5.—Stephen F. Chadwick, National Commander of the American Legion, called tonight for public support and confidence in the Dies Congressional Committee investigating un-American activities.

Speaking over the radio in connection with a meeting of Minnesota Legion commanders and adjutants, Chadwick asserted the Dies committee was appointed at the request of the Legion and added: "In our recent convention we indorsed the action of Congress in providing the committee and as the committee delves deeper into this abhorrent mess, we are supporting it."

Chadwick also urged a strong national defense program as "the only insurance against having an unwelcome war thrust upon us."

"If the language of force is to become the universal language among the nations of the world, we want to be understood by all," he said. "And our message must be 'Leave America alone.'"

Woman, 74, Hurt in Fall, Dies.

Mrs. Margaret McFadden, 1207 North Fortieth street, East St. Louis, died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital there of complications that developed after she suffered a broken right hip in a fall Oct. 5 at her home. Missouri Needs a New
10-YEAR ROAD PLAN

VOTE YES 6 NEW ROAD PLAN

...WE ARE AT THE CROSSROADS

Are we to follow the do nothing highway policy advocated by big special interests, or are we to adopt a progressive, new 10-year road plan to take the place of obsolete laws? ● In December this year we will reach the end of the 10-year state highway program adopted in 1928. Continuation of activities under that plan would be without definite or coordinated objectives. ● Constitutional Amendment No. 6, to be voted on in November, has been prepared to meet the present emergency. It is a new 10-year road program drawn up by highly trusted citizens. It is not founded on wish or guesswork. It is based on the findings of the $600,000 Highway Planning Survey, conducted by the State Highway Department under the supervision of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. ● Approved by the State Highway Commission and by the engineers of the Department. Endorsed by civic, business and other organizations, in all sections of the State. ● Amendment No. 6 retains the sound and essential features of existing laws, corrects their conflicting and inequitable provisions, improves efficiency and economy of operation, prevents deterioration, provides for safer highways and for the largest feasible extension of the system.

A Pay-As-We-Go Plan • No Bond Issue
No Property Tax • Limits Motor Taxes

Cardinal Features of New Program

1. Fulfillment of outstanding Bond and Interest obligations and reducing bonded debt from $100,000,000 to $39,000,000.
2. Prohibits diversion of highway funds for any purpose other than highway use.
3. Assures the State against loss in Federal Aid.
4. Divides the state highway system into three classifications—(a) State Trunk System; (b) State Supplementary System; and (c) State City System.
5. Protection of the investment in the State Trunk System through guaranteed maintenance.
6. Reconstruction to replace obsolete roads; modernization and improvement of the highways to meet changing traffic conditions.
7. Reasonable extension of traffic relief routes, if, where and when needed, as determined by the Highway Planning Survey.
8. A definite expansion of 5,000 miles in the Supplementary system based on traffic needs revealed by the Highway Planning Survey—this mileage to be placed under State maintenance at once; this mileage is the limit permissible for feeder-road Federal aid.
9. Equitable distribution of Supplementary Road mileage to the counties on a basis of Rural Population, Automobile Registration, Value of Farm Products, and Area.
10. Removes present restrictions which prohibit the Highway Department from building highways into or through cities of over 2,500 population. There are and have been no such restrictions on cities of lesser size.
11. Provides for placing the Highway Department on a "pay-as-you-go" basis, and stabilizes basic income by fixing and limiting the motor fuel tax and passenger car license fees for a period of ten years.
12. Removes obsolete restrictions, thereby providing for economic and modern operation.
13. Guarantees a fair and constant distribution of funds between the State Trunk System, the State Supplementary System, and the State City System, thereby enabling the Highway Commission to make long-time plans for improvements for each system.
14. Provides the Highway Commission with an emergency fund to be expended at its discretion on the State Trunk System or the State Supplementary System. This assures a balanced road program throughout the 10-year period.
15. Protects all former agreements for refunds or other obligations contracted under the present law, and not fulfilled at the time this amendment becomes operative. Refunds to farmers for taxes on gasoline used in farm equipment is continued.
16. Limits collection costs of basic revenues to 2½% of receipts.

LEHMAN IS TARGET IN DEWEY'S 'REPLY' TO THE PRESIDENT

Though Billed as Republican Critic of Roosevelt Speech, He Mentions It Only Obliquely.

SAYS GOVERNOR'S AID FAVORED GANGSTER

Charges New York Secretary of State Also Appointed Dutch Schultz a Deputy When Sheriff.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — Taking his text from President Roosevelt, Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for Governor of New York, repeated tonight his charge that Gov. Herbert H. Lehman relied for re-election "upon the discredited and repudiated forces of old and reactionary political power."

Although billed as a reply to the President's nation-wide radio address indorsing Democratic candidates, the speech Dewey prepared for his closing rally in Brooklyn made few references to the President's speech. He renewed his attack on corruption and charged that the murdered gang leader, Dutch Schultz, was appointed a deputy sheriff in 1925 by Edward J. Flynn, now Democratic Secretary of State.

Several oblique allusions were made to the President's speech, however. In the beginning, Dewey said:

"I have carefully read all the speeches made by our opponents in this campaign—all of our opponents. Tonight not one of the major issues before the people have been met by them. Instead, they bring a single indictment against me.

"I stand before you accused of one crime: I was born in the twentieth century. To that charge I plead guilty. I am of the twentieth century. We look forward, not backward."

In his address last night, the President declared that he, too, at Dewey's age (36 years old) was invited to run for Governor but declined and has since decided that he had neither the experience nor knowledge necessary for the job at that time.

Quotes Roosevelt on Ideas.

"It was well said last night by the President, and I quote," Dewey added later, "'New ideas cannot be administered successfully by men with old ideas, for the first essential of doing the job well is the wish to see the job done at all.'

"That is what the President said. I agree. This year we offer the people of New York not only the wish to see things done, but the will to see them done well. There are many tasks before us."

While Dewey made his final major speech, Gov. Lehman climaxed his campaign for a fourth term with an accusation that Dewey was "shadow-boxing" with the issues and that the Republican party had injected "racial and religious intolerance," against which both Dewey and the President have spoken, into the election.

Dewey, continuing his attack on Democratic politicians supporting Lehman, quoted the President: "By their promoters ye shall know them."

Assails Machine in Brooklyn.

Saying he was promoted by no man, Dewey asserted Gov. Lehman had not dared repudiate the Brooklyn machine which, he said, has fallen down three times in five years in its job of law enforcement.

"Instead," Dewey declared, "he relies upon it for support . . . Our opponents still rely upon the discredited and repudiated forces of old and reactionary political power in Albany, Buffalo and here in New York City."

To the Governor's charge Thursday night that Dutch Schultz was appointed a deputy by a Republican Sheriff of Cayuga County, Dewey replied that Schultz was appointed a Bronx deputy in 1925 when he was an ex-convict and "trigger man for Legs Diamond and Owney Madden and was preparing to build up his own vast racket empire."

While the Cayuga County Sheriff was read out of the Republican Party, Dewey said, Flynn was promoted from Bronx County Sheriff to City Chamberlain and finally was appointed Secretary of State by Lehman at $12,000 a year and chosen a Democratic National Committeeman.

ST. LOUIS ARTISTS IN NEW YORK SHOW

Joe Jones Represented by "Self Portrait," J. B. Turnbull by "Tiff Miner."

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Two portraits in oil by Joe Jones and James B. Turnbull, St. Louis artists, are included in the group of 109 paintings by contemporary American artists who were invited to participate in the annual exhibition now on view at the Whitney Museum of American Art.

The display is the first of a series of three shows of American art, including paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture, to be held by the museum this year. According to the museum's custom, the artists are invited and each enters a work for the exhibition without the advice of a jury. The current show is the second in the series of annual displays held by the museum since it departed from its plan of holding biennial exhibitions.

Jones, a former house painter, has contributed "Self Portrait," a large three-quarter figure. A departure for the artist, who usually stresses social propaganda in his paintings, "Self Portrait" is still representative of his vigor and skill.

Turnbull's canvas, entitled "Tiff Miner," portrays a one-legged elderly man in working clothes seated against a board fence. Turnbull has deftly caught a rather querulous expression. The figure is well drawn, with the exception of the hands, which seem too large and bony even for a man who has worked with them all his life.

Jones has won many awards, including a Guggenheim fellowship in 1937. Turnbull studied at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

The exhibition will be continued to Dec. 11.

Auto News And Notes

THE THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL St. Louis Automobile Show will open next Sunday, Nov. 13, in the Arena, on Oakland avenue, for a run of seven days, closing Saturday night, Nov. 19, it is announced by Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary of the Greater St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and manager of the show.

Doors of the Arena will be open to the public from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily. Admission will be 25 cents per person. All children under 12 years of age, accompanied by adults, will be admitted free.

Modes of travel by air, land and water will be on exhibition at this year's show when, for the first time airplanes will be placed on display with trucks, tractors, motorboats, passenger cars, Diesel engines and accessories and equipment. As in the past, the main feature of the show will be a comprehensive exhibition of all lines of American-made passenger cars.

Elaborate plans have been made for decorating the Arena. The main building will be decorated in flags and bunting, while the east building, which will house passenger car exhibits only, will be decorated in green and white rayon.

The show will be held under the auspices of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association Inc. Members of the Show Committee are: W. H. Willcockson, of Willcockson Motors, president; Joseph A. Schlecht, show manager; G. M. Berry, of the Berry Motor Car Co.; A. R. Lindburg, of Arthur R. Lindburg Inc.; Guy W. Oliver, of the Oliver Cadillac Co.; W. J. Rasmussen, of South Side Chevrolet; George Weber Jr., of the Weber Implement & Auto Co., and Joseph Heutel, of the Sunset Auto Co.

THE NEWEST CAR—THE Mercury 8—was announced the past week by the Ford Motor Co. as its representative in the lower medium-price field, to fill a place in the Ford-Lincoln line between the De Luxe Ford V-8 and the Lincoln-Zephyr. The Mercury 8 is a big car, measuring more than 16 feet from bumper to bumper and having a wheelbase of 116 inches with a V-type 8-cylinder engine developing 95 horsepower, and hydraulic brakes. In its modern streamlined styling the Mercury 8 bears a family resemblance to the Lincoln-Zephyr. Despite this resemblance, the new car has a distinct styling of its own. Four body types are available on the Mercury 8 chassis and eight color options. The body types are a town-sedan, a sedan, a sedan-coupe and a sport convertible.

All bodies are extra wide, seating three persons comfortably in both front and rear seats. The belt and cowl lines are low, giving driver and passengers wide visibility. Running boards are narrow and the bodies are widest at seat level. The unusual roominess of the bodies and the large luggage space at the rear are both achieved without excessive overhang. A characteristic of the Mercury 8 is the quietness of the interiors. With the windows closed, passengers may converse without raising their voices even when the car is traveling 70 miles an hour or more.

Interior styling and choice of appointments are as distinctive as the exterior of the car. The instrument panel is tilted to permit the instruments to be read easily. The dial of the 100-mile speedometer is formed in a long arc corresponding to the curve of the two-spoke steering wheel. The speedometer and gauges are in a group in front of the driver.

PRICES OF THE 1939 FORD V-8 cars at the factory have been fixed at $580 to $705, transportation and Federal and State taxes extra, and of the De Luxe Ford V-8 at $680 to $895. Reductions in prices of Ford V-8 trucks and commercial cars up to $50 are announced.

PRICES OF THE FORD MOTOR Co.'s new Mercury "8" at the factory range from $894 to $994. The prices include much equipment over and above that which usually is listed as standard, but Federal and state taxes are extra.

POLAND TO HOLD ELECTION OF LOWER HOUSE TODAY

Senate Will Be Chosen Next Sunday; Czech Cession Expected to Swell Vote.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Nov. 5.—Poland will elect a new Sejm, or Lower House of Parliament, tomorrow in the first of two Sunday elections to name a new Parliament under the 1935 law. Senate elections will be held Nov. 13.

Because of the controversy over the law, which resulted in an opposition boycott of the 1935 elections, interest is as great in the size of the vote as in the successful candidates.

Thousands who stayed away from the polls in 1935 may vote tomorrow, in recognition of the Government's success in acquiring Teschen from Czechoslovakia after the Munich Four-Power accord which gave Sudetenland to Germany.

Teschen will not vote, because Poland acquired the territory after the election was announced.

The 208 seats of the Sejm will be filled tomorrow. Of the 486 candidates, eight are Jews and 14 Ukrainians.

PROMOTION of W. A. Riggs to be manager of the International Harvester Co.'s motor truck branch, 4010 West Pine boulevard, is announced.

W. A. Riggs.

Riggs succeeds E. A. Dunsmoor, who has been transferred to be branch manager at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Riggs is well known in truck circles here, for he was assistant branch manager for International Harvester at East St. Louis from 1929 to 1932. Then he served as assistant branch manager at Dubuque, Ia., and in the St. Louis area.

In October, 1937, he was appointed branch manager at Davenport, Ia., whence he has been transferred to be manager here.

THREE NEW LINES OF CARS for 1939 presented by the Hudson Motor Car Co. have entirely new styling and numerous engineering improvements. They are the Hudson "112" with 86 h. p. engine and overall length of 187⅝ inches; the Hudson Six with 96 h. p. engine and overall length of 193 7-16 inches, and a Country Club series with an overall length of 199 inches and either six-cylinder 101-h. p. engine or 122-h. p. eight-cylinder engine, plus a special eight-cylinder Custom Sedan 206 inches long.

All the new Hudsons have a new chassis stabilization system called auto-poise control to hold the car steady and wholly under control under all conditions of travel and road surfaces. Airfoam seat cushions, which are standard in all Hudson Country Club and convertible models and optional on Hudson "112" and Hudson Six closed cars, are made of latex, or milk of the rubber tree, beaten into a foam and so treated that air flows through it freely. Cushions of this material have been used on streamline railway trains and transcontinental airliners.

All models now have remote control gear shifting with lever on the steering wheel post. This control may be combined with automatic clutch to eliminate clutch pedal pushing. Hudson's automatic selective shift is optional on all cars except the "112." Performance has been stepped up.

A new "weather master" system gives clean circulating air in a Hudson car, heated in winter or cooled in summer. Luggage compartments are completely concealed. Trunk models may be had when more carrying space is wanted. Dash locking of the hood is provided for safety.

THIRTEEN HUNDRED FORD dealers, salesmen and community leaders from Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois attended an all-day meeting in the Municipal Auditorium to see the new 1939 de luxe Ford, Ford V-8 with 85 and 60 h. p. engines, the wholly new Mercury "8," the Lincoln, Lincoln-Zephyr and some of the new Ford trucks and commercial cars. M. N. Johnson, manager in St. Louis for the Ford Co., and J. T. Rechtin, assistant manager, outlined the Ford advertising, sales and general merchandising campaigns. There was also a sound picture address by J. R. Davis, general sales manager for the Ford Co., outlining future operations of the company in regard to dealers and salesmen.

APPROXIMATELY 150 GENERAL Motors truck dealers from the Chicago and St. Louis zones will meet at the Coronado Hotel here Wednesday to preview the 1939 line of GMC trucks, which has been expanded by the addition of 12 models powered with the GM Diesel engine. H. T. DeHart, manager of advertising and sales promotion for General Motors Truck, will represent the factory at the meeting. Others who will attend will include W. A. Casey, central regional manager, and Clyde Mathis, central regional service manager. E. C. Sanner, manager of the St. Louis zone, will be in charge of the meeting, assisted by O. H. Dickey and A. S. Caputi, district representatives.

L. C. GILWORTH, FORMERLY sales manager for the Sinclair Refining Co. in Metropolitan St. Louis, has been promoted to general agent in this area. He succeeds W. D. Cross Jr., who has been transferred to Philadelphia.

L. C. Gilworth.

Gilworth joined the Sinclair Co. 12 years ago in Davenport, Ia. Later, he was in the Chicago district for three years.

Then he was in charge of the Southern Illinois territory for Sinclair with headquarters in Alton. Fourteen months ago, he was transferred to St. Louis as sales manager in the metropolitan district.

A MEETING HELD BY THE Berry Motor Car Co., the Packard distributer, at the Roosevelt Hotel Tuesday night, to discuss merchandising and servicing the new Packard cars, was attended by 150 dealers, sales executives, salesmen and service men from Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Iowa. A sales session in the afternoon was conducted by R. E. Chamberlain, merchandising manager for the Packard factory; R. W. Miller, regional manager, and G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co. A service meeting in the evening was conducted by Jack Harrison, supervisor of Packard factory field service men.

THE 1939 GRAHAM-PAIGE cars, announced by the Archer-Mann Motor Co., retain the "spirit of motion" styling with forward-leaning radiator grille but with added streamlining effects. Running boards are now optional at extra cost. Basic cars in the Graham-Paige 1939 line are a two-door trunk sedan, a combination coupe seating six persons on two full-width seats under the roof, and a four-door sedan.

These cars have a 90-horsepower engine and 120-inch wheelbase. But to these basic models may be added a supercharger equipment group, a custom equipment group, or both. So there are really in the line a 90-horsepower Special, a 90-horsepower Custom Special, a 116-horsepower Supercharger and a 116-horsepower Custom Supercharger. The Custom or Supercharger equipment group is installed at the factory at an extra $130 cost.

A gear shift lever on the steering wheel column is listed in the optional equipment group as an accessory. Interiors of the new cars have been improved and refined. The 90-horsepower Special engine has a high compression castiron cylinder head of new design. When the Supercharger equipment, with its 26 additional horsepower, is ordered, the castiron cylinder head is replaced by one of aluminum.

The new Graham-Paige coupe design lengthens the roof line somewhat beyond that of a regulation coupe, to gain space for another full-width seat with 39 inches of leg room. Easy access to the rear compartment is provided, as the coupe model door is 45 inches wide from hinge to latch and the backs of the front seat fold forward and inward to make passage room. Trunk space in this coupe model is exceptionally large, and additional room can be obtained by removing the rear seat. The coupe, like the Graham-Paige two-door sedan, has four side windows. Both the four-door and two-door models have no-draft ventilation as a practical necessity for rear-seat comfort when window widths are increased to almost four feet.

AWARD PINS FROM THE Studebaker Corporation were given to five members of the MotoRite, Inc., at a dinner Thursday night at the Roosevelt Hotel. Those who received the pins in recognition of years of service were: C. P. Cruce, 20 years; Robert A. Moman and John F. Grassmuck, 15 years each; Clarence Harter, 10 years, and Norman Mero, five years. MotoRite, Inc., a Studebaker sales and service firm, was organized by C. P. Cruce and Robert Moman in 1928 on Delmar boulevard, and a year ago moved to 4067 Lindell, at Sarah.

TWO NEW FORD CARS, THE 1939 Ford V-8 and the 1939 de luxe Ford V-8 were announced Friday. They are individually styled and both have hydraulic brakes. The de luxe Ford V-8, with wholly new streamlines, has a distinctive appearance of its own. At the same time, both it and the Ford V-8 share a family likeness with the Lincoln-Zephyr and the new Mercury 8. The de luxe has a deep hood with long lines unbroken by louvres, low radiator grille in bright metal, and wide-spaced headlamps set into the fenders. The words Ford De Luxe, in script letters of chrome, are divided at the front of the hood. The hood handle is concealed in a vertical extension of the radiator ornament. The 1939 de luxe has an 85-horsepower V-8 engine of even more rugged construction than the 5,000,000 already in use. The Ford V-8 is offered with the same engine as the de luxe, or with the 60-horsepower V-8 engine.

A feature of the bodies of both cars is their silence, a result of exhaustive road and laboratory research into the cause and correction of car noises. The bodies are of all-welded steel construction and have safety glass throughout, clear-vision ventilation and ventilating windshield. All body types have large luggage compartments.

The interiors of the de luxe car are luxuriously appointed. Cushions in all body types are of entirely new construction to allow freer spring action. They are notably deeper, and the paneled effect in the tailoring gives them added smartness.

The Ford V-8 for 1939 has a full grille and unobtrusive louvres at the rear of the hood sides. Headlamps are recessed into the fenders. Decorative touches include a radiator grille ornament which incorporates a compact hood latch and handle.

Both the new Fords have the modern gauges, glove compartment, cigar lighter, ash tray, choke, throttle and other controls grouped on newly-designed instrument panels. Both have headlight beam control operated by the touch of a toe, and a beam indicator on the panel. The de luxe Ford also has a new instrument that shows at a glance the strength of the battery.

The parking brake lever, which actuates the brake shoes in the rear wheels by steel cables, is under the instrument panel to the left.

COMPLETION OF A NEW Dodge truck factory, said by its engineers to be the world's most modern plant for the exclusive manufacture of commercial cars and trucks, is announced. The plant is part of a $6,000,000 commercial car and truck manufacturing and sales program on which the Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation is embarking. The plant will be devoted to building and manufacturing commercial vehicles of capacities ranging from one-half-ton to three tons. Planned by Albert Kahn, architect of international repute, in collaboration with the corporation's production and engineering executives, the factory has a total floor space of 693,163 square feet, occupies 40 acres of ground and is located northwest of Detroit on Mound and Eight-Mile roads in Macomb County. It has a normal manufacturing capacity of 700 trucks per day.

75-Passenger American Plane Gets Final Government Test for Trans-Atlantic Service in 1939

Super-Clipper Ship Puts U. S. Far Ahead in Commercial Aviation Competition With European Countries.

By TED P. WAGNER
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WITH the flagship of a new fleet of Pan American Clippers now in the hands of engineers of the new Civil Aeronautics Authority, for official check of its sea and airworthiness preparatory to licensing for trans-Atlantic passenger, mail and express service, it appears likely Americans will be cabling British friends "see you in London tomorrow" before many months have been torn off the 1939 calendar.

Pan American, with a record of millions of miles flown across the Pacific and down to Rio, completed its exploration of Atlantic flying more than a year ahead of its British, French and German competitors. But airmen of Europe hopped the Atlantic last summer as if it was somebody's duck pond.

Nazi flyers made 14 round trips, the last one in mid-October when their Nordmeer was catapulted off the mother ship Friesenland and headed for the Azores and home.

The United States entry is far ahead of the others, however, and Europe will have to hurry to catch up. The fare, number of crossings weekly and exact routes have not been announced, but those details are being prepared.

Details of New Craft.

For the inauguration of its trans-Atlantic service Pan American has ordered two Boeing 314 flying boats, among the largest aircraft ever built in America. Four others have been ordered for use in the 8200-mile trans-Pacific service to the Orient, which entered its fourth year this month.

The first of these Super-Clippers, the one now being checked by the Aeronautics Authority engineers, was launched in June at the Boeing plant at Seattle, Wash. Test pilots have put the big transport through some 5000 miles of actual flight, 450 miles of water taxiing and 80 takeoffs and landings.

With a wing span of 152 feet and four roaring Cyclone engines, developing 6000 total horsepower, the new Clipper carried loads which brought its gross up to 82,500 pounds, a clear lift of 38,000 pounds. Aeronautical engineers expect the ship to carry 85,000 pounds gross within licensing limits. And the test pilots report that the controls of this air giant can be worked with two index fingers. The tail assembly is actually larger in area than the wing of some of the transport planes seen at our own municipal airport.

Seventy-five passengers will be carried in the Pan American Atlantic service. On the longer Pacific hops passenger capacity will be reduced to 40 or 50 persons. There will be a crew of 10, including pilots, navigators, engineering officer and radio operators, who will work on a flight deck entirely apart from the passenger quarters.

What Others Are Doing.

Germany and France have not announced details of the type of plane eventually to be used in trans-Atlantic passenger service. The planes Germany employed last summer were survey planes; mail carriers, but not designed for profitable passenger traffic. France used a flying boat large enough for passengers, but obsolete and not now intended for regular commercial service.

The British, who also did some surveying in 1937, plan to carry passengers over the Atlantic in the improved Empire flying boat types. The first of these, the Cabot, may get into the competition next summer. On their Empire routes the British are now using the Ensign land type air liners, the largest in Europe. There is room in the Ensign for 40 passengers, without cargo, or 27 passengers and about two tons of mail. It is probable Britain's trans-Atlantic planes will approximate the Ensign capacities.

Germany's Deutsche Lufthansa took the lead in the 1938 Atlantic flight survey, completing the 14 round trips with characteristic dispatch. Imperial Airways of Great Britain and Air France also were in the game.

Three seaplanes and one land plane carried the Nazi swastika back and forth across the ocean with a schedule adherence which could not have been more strictly maintained in a regular commercial operation. Starting in July, the Nordmeer and the Nordwind began shuttling across the Atlantic, with a plane arrival scheduled every Monday afternoon at New York and a departure every Monday evening. The flights went in and out of New York with a clocklike regularity through August, September and part of October, the only change being a shift to Sunday as the arrival and departure day. The Nordmeer and Nordwind are low-winged seaplanes, launched by catapult. Wing span is 80 feet and each has a gross weight of 37,478 pounds, including a useful load of 15,432 pounds.

In August the four-engined Brandenburg, a land plane, made the first westward non-stop flight from Berlin to New York in 24 hours, 56 minutes. Three days later, on Aug. 13, the Brandenburg departed from Floyd Bennett Field and landed at Berlin 19 hours, 55 minutes later, the fastest crossing over the 4580-mile route.

Improved German Plane.

Next to appear on the Nazi survey program was the Nordstern, an improvement over the Nordmeer and Nordwind. Speedier than its companion seaplanes, Nordstern covered the 2397 miles from the Azores to New York in 13 hours, 40 minutes for a record east-west crossing by a seaplane. The Germans are building another trans-Atlantic seaplane, the Seeadler. Fitted for catapulting from the motherships Friesenland and Schwabenland, the Seeadler probably will make its Atlantic debut early next year.

Deutsche Lufthansa officers were so pleased with the survey results, totaling 96,260 miles, that they are planning a mail service to the United States in 1939 with their catapult planes. Trans-Atlantic passenger-carrying will be largely turned over to the new Graf Zeppelin, which made its final trial flight at Friedrichshafen last Monday with 80 passengers aboard. The new Graf is slightly smaller than the Hindenburg, which was destroyed by fire at Lakehurst, N. J., in 1937.

British Imperial Airways injected something original into the Atlantic picture by using the pick-a-back plane Mercury for the ocean survey. Mercury, which flew from London to New York and return in July as the test of a new idea in long-range flying, is the upper component of the Maia-Mercury, a composite duck and duckling arrangement. The Mercury is a relatively small seaplane powered by four 340-horsepower engines. With a wing span of 73 feet, the duckling has a gross weight of 14,000 pounds and a range of 2400 miles when taking off unaided. Launched in mid-air from its mother duck, the Mercury is capable of flying at 28,000 pounds gross weight, the additional fuel giving it a range of more than 6000 miles.

Mercury's Long Flight.

Mercury was scheduled to make a second trip to New York. Instead, it flew non-stop 6045 miles to Alexander Bay, South Africa, the longest flight ever made by a seaplane.

France made its 1938 Atlantic survey with the 40-ton flying boat Lieutenant de Vaisseu Paris, built eight years ago. The bulky Lieutenant arrived at Port Washington, L. I., Aug. 31 after a flight from Lisbon and Horta. The plane returned to France by the same

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

THE biennial test of national political strength Tuesday will disclose what chances the Republican party has for a comeback in 1940.

Control of Congress is not at stake because it is mathematically impossible for the Democrats to lose the Senate, and even the most optimistic Republicans concede that this year they cannot overcome the overwhelming Democratic majority in the House.

But on Tuesday 432 House members, 35 Senators and 32 Governors will be elected in a nation-wide sampling of sentiment regarding New Deal performances and non-performances, and Republican promises and criticisms.

If the Republicans gain more than 40 House seats, elect five or six Senators, and capture four or five Governorships, the results will be interpreted as more than the normal off-year swing from the party in power. If Democratic losses are below these figures, the Democrats will claim victory. If the Republicans gain as many as 60 House seats, they will have real cause for jubilation.

Even these meager Republican victories would not have much effect on the swollen Democratic majorities in the Senate, House and State capitals. The Senate now has 76 Democrats, 15 Republicans, two Farmer-Laborites, one Progressive, one Independent and one vacancy; the House has 328 Democrats, 88 Republicans, five Farmer-Laborites, seven Progressives and seven vacancies. There are now 39 Democratic Governors, seven Republican and one Farmer-Labor and one Progressive. Maine re-elected Gov. Barrows and three House members, all Republicans, in September, by the usual majorities which revealed no definite trend.

Where Republicans Have Their Best Opportunities.

States which will exemplify the change of sentiment, if there is a change, will be New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Kansas and California. The Republicans have chances in other states, notably Massachusetts, Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado and Oregon, but local situations and personalities of the candidates rather than New Deal or anti-New Deal convictions will be important factors in these elections.

The more optimistic Republicans, for publication at least, argue that next Wednesday may show Republican gubernatorial victories in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Idaho. To observers, Wisconsin, in the past under the control of the La Follette family, is a question mark. Gov. Phil La Follette is running for re-election under the insignia of the new National Progressive party against Julius P. Heil, Republican, while the Democratic senatorial incumbent, F. Ryan Duffy, is battling against Herman L. Ekern, National Progressive, and Alexander Wiley, Republican. Some observers forecast that Duffy, who has given almost complete homage to the New Deal and recently received the friendly blessing of the President, would run third. In the other states the Democrats insist the Republicans are making such a poor showing that there is really no contest.

For the nation as a whole, the Democrats have the advantages and minor disadvantages which accrue to a party which has been in power six years, including the building of an efficient national political machine by Postmaster-General-Democratic National Chairman Farley, and the help of augmented local machines under such bosses as Hague in New Jersey, Guffey and Earle in Pennsylvania, Horner in Illinois and Kelly and Nash in Chicago, Crump in Tennessee, and Pendergast in Missouri.

Tabulated, the Democratic advantages may be summarized as follows:

1. Control of the national and local governments.
2. Efficient political machines.
3. Labor support.
4. WPA and farm subsidies.
5. Sponsorship of humanitarian legislation.
6. Negro support.
7. Upturn in business.
8. Republicans' lack of funds, leaders and issues.
9. President Roosevelt's international policies, particularly his activities during the Czechoslovakian crisis.

The Republican advantages are generally the following:

1. President Roosevelt is not heading the tickets.
2. More than 10,000,000 unemployed despite New Deal promises.
3. Federal expenditures, the unbalanced budgets during the last six years and taxes, present and future.
4. Dissatisfaction with the AAA farm programs and their administration.
5. President Roosevelt's unsuccessful attempts to reorganize the Supreme Court and the executive branches of the Government.
6. Resentment of political pressure on WPA beneficiaries and of local political machines.
7. Enemies made by officeholders.
8. Reports that "visionaries" and "reckless spenders" are in control of the Government.
9. The administration's refusal to be specific about amendment of the Social Security and Wagner Labor acts.

The above factors, all or in part, enter into virtually every local contest but are most strikingly evident in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Kansas and California.

Dewey's Candidacy Adds Interest in New York.

New York, as the most populous State and the possessor of 47 electoral college votes, is vitally important in every election. This year it has the added attraction of presenting a possible Republican candidate for the presidency in 1940, in Thomas E. Dewey, District Attorney of New York City, who is trying to defeat Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, a candidate for a fourth term after extraordinary pressure had been exerted by President Roosevelt and Chairman Farley to convince him that party loyalty demanded that he run against the 36-year-old racket buster whose local successes have made him a national figure.

Also in New York, the two Democratic candidates for the Senate, Senator Robert F. Wagner and Representative James M. Mead, typify the "liberal" Democrats President Roosevelt has relied upon for his New Deal program.

Wagner is seeking re-election on his sponsorship of the most far-reaching and advanced humanitarian legislation enacted in recent American history, notably in the field of social security, labor relations and housing. He is opposed by John Lord O'Brian of Buffalo, an Assistant Attorney-General in the Hoover administration whose legal ability has been recognized by the Roosevelt administration through his retention in important anti-trust suits. He is generally regarded as a "liberal" Republican.

Representative Mead of Buffalo is seeking to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Royal Copeland against Edward F. Corsi of New York City. During his nine terms in the House, Mead has been identified with labor and social legislation. He is chairman of the Postoffice and Post Roads Committee, a position more important than it sounds. He was put on the Democratic ticket partly because he comes from upstate New York and is a Catholic, just as Corsi was picked by the Republicans in an attempt to attract Italian votes. Both parties in New York select "balanced" tickets as lures to the minority groups.

Republicans Lacking in City Organization.

Dewey's brief but colorful career as a successful metropolitan rackets prosecutor and his presidential aspirations have made him the most spectacular candidate in the campaigns this year throughout the nation. If he wins against a Governor who has served 10 years at Albany, four as Lieutenant-Governor under Franklin D. Roosevelt and six as Governor in his own right, he seemingly will have demonstrated that he has political appeal which could be built up into nation-wide popularity. Unfortunately for him the Republican party is woefully lacking in organization in New York City, whereas the Democrats, despite Mayor LaGuardia's nominal Republican allegiance, have everything the old Tammany machine had and more. Furthermore the American Labor party, LaGuardia's true love, has indorsed the Democratic slate. This is supposed to mean between 350,000 and 400,000 votes. Dewey

Engineer Finds Hope for U. S. In Cherishing Resources, Nation No 'Treasure-House to Be Looted'

David Cushman Coyle in "Roads to a New America" Argues Wealth Is in Limited Store of Minerals and Soil.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

AN engineer looks at the United States in David Cushman Coyle's latest volume, "Roads to a New America." He finds that from Atlantic to Pacific we have ravaged the national patrimony like a devouring host, and that the process of devastation has been fantastically accelerated by technological invention. Since declines in birth-rate and immigation promise a stationary population of 140,000,000 by 1955, he holds that "no possible source of increased business can be imagined except increased buying power among consumers."

America's wealth, the author argues, does not consist in money and securities, a mere "form of belief" that may be dissipated over night, but in a definitely limited store of minerals and soil. When these are transferred from country to city in the guise of plant and animal foodstuffs, or when they are sold abroad without equivalent return in kind, then by so much is the national capital forever depleted. The export of a bale of cotton grown on sloping land, he calculates, is a method of exchanging 50 tons of eroded topsoil for an ounce and a half of gold, which can be put to no better use than to "bury it in Kentucky and have the army sit on it."

The trend in technology, says Coyle, has ceased to be toward the creation of new industries, like radio and the motor car, and has turned to a feverish contrivance of job-killing machines. These impoverish another sort of national wealth, our stock of human skill. Under present economic conditions, declares he, wealth flows from poor to rich as inevitably as rivers descend to the ocean. In consequence, the Treasury budget is no longer an account to be balanced annually, but has become perforce a pump, the only one available, for transferring money from creditor to debtor areas—as the sun draws water from the sea and restores it to the land.

To New Generation.

However, the book's outlook is the opposite of hopeless. Our destruction of natural resources, though appalling, has not yet advanced to irreparable extremes. America's future may be safeguarded and its vision fulfilled if citizens can be taught that the United States is a country to be loved and cherished, and not a treasure house to be looted with maximum rapidity. Coyle's dedication is to "the oncoming generation, to whom our generation owes an explanation."

In the economic field, a middle way is advocated between laissez-faire gospel, with its total rejection of Government regulation, and the Marxist evangel of capital's overthrow. A distinction is drawn between finance-capital, which has managed to place itself more or less outside the law of supply and demand, and the capitalism of small and medium-sized business. The latter, maintains the author, "is of prime importance because, with all its weaknesses and inefficiency, it still remains the chief area of freedom."

A graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnique Institute, Coyle was structural designer of such edifices as the New York Life Building and Roerich Museum in New York, the State Capitol of Washington and the United States Chamber of Commerce Building in this city. Of late he has directed his professional experience upon the stresses and strains of human society, and has acted as consultant to such establishments as the National Planning Board, the Resettlement Administration and the Federal Trade Commission. One of the purposes of his new book is to forward the program of the National Resources Committee. The White House is said to regard his ideas with particular respect.

Wrote Books for Fun.

The social engineer has the further distinction of being a best-seller who has indeed won fame, but who has never earned a penny through his writings. His most popular work, "Brass Tacks," sold 600,000 copies, and other books such as "Age Without Fear" and "Business vs. Finance," brought his total circulation to about 1,050,000. He explains that he wrote his volumes "for fun," and presented them to the National Home Library because of its thronging clientele. This enterprise markets books at 15 cents which cost 19 cents to manufacture, and makes up the difference through subsidies. "Roads to a New America" (Little Brown & Co.) is his first work to be issued by a commercial publisher.

The American Ways.

In 1800, he begins, the word "democrat" had almost the same meaning as "Red" today possesses, and no one would have been so astonished as Thomas Jefferson if he had been told that in 135 years a group of conservatives would call themselves "Jeffersonian Democrats." But the United States, instituted as a strictly limited federation with strong brakes upon the popular majority, has developed for better or worse into "a strongly federalist nation in which a growing power rests with the voting population as a whole."

The essence of democracy is defined as "the power to change by legal instead of violent means either the form of government or the men who make and administer the laws." If Americans are to preserve a fair amount of liberty, they must provide sufficient personal security for all the people to prevent their being driven to desperate measures. In one crisis after another, it is declared, the American nation has been able to develop effective unity without losing the democratic framework of its institutions, and "what we have done before we may hope to do again."

But in the immense task of restoring and building the country, "we cannot be content with a formless patchwork that will again fall about our ears in the next heavy storm." We must review in a scientific spirit the American ways of thought, the continent's resources, the economic forces and maladjustments of the present century, the existing economic system, with its faults and virtues; and the possible uses of government in readjusting for public good the balances of this system.

Colonial Cultivation.

The bane of agriculture, cash-crop farming, began during colonial times with the cultivation of tobacco in Virginia. Vermont has always practiced subsistence tillage, with the result that its "hills are green from century to century, while the cotton and tobacco lands of the South are torn and gullied." Tractors, gang plows and combines made it profitable to sow the dry plains in wheat, and thus let in dust storm and desert.

Our ancestors hacked at the continent with axes and one-horse plows, but "we tear into it with giant power." Hauling machines snake logs through the forest, tearing down young trees in the path and leaving tracks for gullies to destroy the land. Steam shovels and coal-loaders speed the miner's work. Rotary drills go down to oil beds previously out of reach. Miles of gill-nets clean the codfish off the Newfoundland banks. In our hands, technology "is an instrument for liquidating our assets faster and faster. If this is the best we can do with science and invention, the glory of America, like that of Babylon and Yucatan,

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Opportunities for Local Heroism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE St. Louis Award Committee has properly determined that no person has during the past year merited the recognition sought to be bestowed. It is indeed unfortunate that among all our people no one has risen to heroic heights. It could have been the man or woman:

Who put some Circuit Court Judges upon a plane to command respect;

Who put Gully Owen and Bev Brown in their proper place;

Who properly punished those who looted closed St. Louis banks;

Who prosecuted and convicted the election thieves;

Who brought us cheap natural gas;

Who developed a smokeless fuel at the price of soft coal;

Who made Eads Bridge free of tolls;

Who caused the railroads to use the Municipal Bridge;

Who made the railroads smokeless;

Who extinguished the handbooks;

Who took the School Board out of politics;

Who provided a planetarium;

Who gave us a museum of natural history;

Who carried out the 1928 recommendations of the City Plan Commission for a central river-front plan;

Who put the merit system in all city offices;

Who gave us proportional voting for the election of Aldermen;

Who tore the cover off of what went on in the reorganization of a large local life insurance company;

Who gave us an intelligent and impartial National Labor Relations Board administrator;

Who took real estate out of the doldrums;

Who made possible county and city co-ordination;

Who made the wealthy recognize their obligation to local charity;

Who was responsible for a pennant-winning baseball team or a nationally recognized football team.

But nothing like this happened. Perhaps next year—who knows?

HOPEFUL.

Rainbows—For the Rich Only.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DOROTHY THOMPSON'S radio dissertation on hats was more than amusing. She could also have mentioned the cheap-permanent singed curls which many hats adorn.

Some of us can afford to be exotic, but it is a pity to see poor girls rigged out from head to foot in cheap, impractical clothes, tinted all colors of the rainbow. Something should be done about this. If unwearable, gaudy wearing apparel is not bought, it will not be made.

MRS. J. H. STEINMESCH.

When Life Does Not Begin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM one of the number who have reached the forbidden age of 40, and I can add my statement to what one of your letter writers has said: that men of 40 are locked out of industry.

I do think it is high time that something be done in order that men 40 or over, who are robust and healthy, should be given a chance to work the same as younger men. Henry Ford says that the best part of men's lives is from 40 to 65, and you get better work out of them; they are more loyal and will stick to their jobs longer than younger men.

I urge the Post-Dispatch to check up as to just what industries have age limits barring men over 40 and let the public know who are shutting the doors.

I am an American-born citizen, but because of my age I am unable to find work.

ANOTHER ONE OVER 40.

Parade Without Glamour.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ARMISTICE day approaches. Must it be observed with military parades in which soldiers in uniform march to stirring music? Why not have a parade like one which was staged in Paris in 1924? On that occasion the regular parade was followed by one of the army of mutilated veterans of the World War, men carried on stretchers, men in wheel chairs, men on cruthes, men with an arm or a leg amputated, men who were blind.

More parades of that kind might help to take some of the glamour away from war.

J. H. W.

Thinks Mr. Anderson Is Slipping.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANYONE who classes himself even remotely as a liberal certainly had cause to shudder upon reading C. Arthur Anderson's speech delivered at Triangle Park recently. Great liberal during the primaries, he now reverts to his regular personality and vies with Horsefield the Great in being the savior of the nation from the big bad liberal in the White House and from the terrible labor leaders who dare to awaken workers to better their conditions.

There seems to be no other choice than to vote for the Socialist party candidate, George A. Kovaka. He should gather many protest votes this year, especially from those who know the reforms Socialists have made in the cities of Milwaukee, Wis., Reading, Pa., and Bridgeport, Conn. Congress needs a few Socialists.

TWELFTH DISTRICTITE.

IN TWO DAYS.

Unless the changing times have made valueless all the old-fashioned barometers for gauging elections in advance, the Republicans may expect to make substantial gains next Tuesday in congressional membership. Unbiased observers predict about 50 new seats for Republicans in the House, where the Democrats now have an unprecedented majority of 225. The barometer in use here is the one which shows that, in every midterm election since 1870, save one, the party in power has lost ground in the lower house. The exception was in 1934, when the Democrats gained 10 seats to bring their total to an all-time high of 322.

If the rule fails again this year, it must appear that the only thing that can save the Republican party from going the way of the Whigs is the development of new leadership of the most brilliant kind. There are symptoms of such new leadership in such persons as Kenneth Simpson of New York and Robert Taft of Ohio, but they are as yet merely symptoms. The leadership which still prevails is of the Hoover-Old Guard type and it is responsible for the vast confusion among Republican ranks in the current campaign.

What is the voter to think when he sees one group of Republicans running as rugged individualists, another as modified New Dealers and a third as Townsend Utopians? In New York, there is the fantastic sight of John J. O'Connor, an old-fashioned Tammany Democrat, running for Congress as a Republican. The Republican campaign is planless—and deliberately so.

It is the theory of the high command that the thing for the party to do in this election is, as one commentator puts it, to "make the most of your opponents' mistakes, emphasize those errors, promise in generalities that you will do much better, but don't give any specific formula as to how you are going to do it." It was in accordance with this strategy, that the Glenn Frank platform committee, designed to lend intellectual unity to the party, postponed its recommendations until after this election.

This strategy has worked before and it may work again. It is best employed, of course, in times of great hardship, or when the national administration is for other reasons highly unpopular. As for the first point, the Democrats have in their favor the fact that, whereas the experts were predicting last spring that the Federal Reserve index of business conditions would be around 70, it is now running over 90. Business and employment are showing improvement, and new estimates of the national income for the current year are around 61 billions, or only about nine billions below 1937.

As for the second, the election will be of value in determining by actual votes whether the country is still going along with the Roosevelt policies or whether, as one important survey indicates, it prefers to return to policies of a less exciting kind.

Mr. Roosevelt, the Republicans remind themselves comfortingly, is not running in this election. Yet Mr. Roosevelt provides for the Democratic party a binding philosophy, well expressed in Friday evening's radio speech at Hyde Park, of a progressive and aggressive democracy. When he emphasizes the need for safeguarding our kind of government from the totalitarianism of Germany, Italy and Russia, he is using language of the most effective sort to all who have given thoughtful consideration to the recent European crisis.

The issue in this campaign, as usual, is the New Deal. Is it losing ground to the extent that the people are willing to restore to power a party that comes before it with a program of negation? In two days we shall know.

HOW TO SAVE THE COUNTRY.

How to save democratic capitalism in America is no longer a huge, worrisome question mark. The problem is solved with comparative ease and in readily intelligible terms by Dr. Russell Weisman, professor of economics at Western Reserve University, in a book entitled "Key to Recovery."

All we need to do, he says, is to revise the Revenue Act, balance the budget, assure sound money, adopt a fair wage policy, restore international markets, eliminate the rigidities which handicap private enterprise and bring about a rebirth of the spirit of individualism.

There it is in a nutshell. It's as simple as A B C. Aren't economics professors wonderful?

A REPORT FROM THE SHEPPARD COMMITTEE.

The Sheppard committee investigating campaign expenditures has at last discovered something which it is willing to put in the public record as irregular. It finds that between March 21 and April 20 some 450 men were placed on the Federal aid road payroll in Northern Illinois and that most of them were discharged the day after the primary. The real purpose of the hiring, the committee suggests, if it does not say so in so many words, was to aid the Horner-Lucas-Courtney ticket. This would seem to be the committee's intention in announcing that the work cards of these temporary road workers were either signed or initialed by the campaign manager of this ticket in northern part of the State.

If the Senate committee has found misuse of Federal funds, it has only begun to discharge its duty in Illinois. Meanwhile, those who have held Gov. Horner in high regard as a public official of unquestioned integrity will expect him to do some investigating of his own. The issue in the campaign between Representative Lucas and District Attorney Igoe was the issue of bossism and government by and for predatory interests. State's Attorney Courtney of Cook County joined the Governor in his war on the Kelly-Nash machine. It is their place, their reputations being what they are, to take the lead in accounting for the committee's disclosures and in fixing any blame which may be due.

PRECEDENT IN THE STRACHEY CASE.

The barring of John Strachey from the United States has a broader aspect than the fortunes of one individual. Mr. Strachey's account of his experiences, in the current New Republic, makes clear what a dangerous precedent will be established if his exclusion stands.

Because the American Consul-General in London canceled Strachey's visa while the British lecturer was en route to the United States, he was refused entry to this country. It is the Government's contention that the London official's word is final; that neither the Department of Labor nor the courts can set it aside. Such a policy, of course, puts inordinate authority in the hands of a minor official. It forbids the usual inquiry by immigration authorities when charges are made against an alien seeking entry. It means also that any alien, whether visitor or resident, can be deported, with no right of appeal, whenever the Consul who issued his visa gives the word.

Strachey has been admitted temporarily under $500 bond, but forbidden to lecture, while the courts decide as to the Consul's authority. Our Government's right to bar or deport undesirable aliens should not be impaired, but a practice that prevents suspected persons from stating their side would be most unjust.

A GUIDE TO THE AMENDMENTS.

In previous editorials, the Post-Dispatch has treated at length the nine State amendments and two city propositions that will be voted on next Tuesday. Below, in succinct form, is the result of our study:

No. 1. To increase the pay of State legislators. Since the present miserly stipend is not enough to live on, it throws legislators into the arms of the lobbyists that swarm in Jefferson City seeking special favors. Yes.

No. 2. To make the State Treasurer eligible to succeed himself. This would nullify the prudent provision in the Constitution which guarantees that no man will have charge of the public's funds for more than four years in a row. No.

No. 3. To authorize a special tax for county hospitals. Designed to apply to St. Louis County, this amendment is now unnecessary because the county has made other arrangements. No.

No. 4. To reduce the old-age pension limit from 70 to 65. Since the old-age pension system is a racket in Missouri, this provision will add thousands of "cheaters" and "chiselers," as Gov. Stark calls them, to the rolls. It will cost many millions of dollars. It will lead, no doubt, to an increase in the sales tax. Let the officials clean up the old-age pension racket before they ask the people to extend it. This can be done before Jan. 1, 1940, the Federal deadline for 50-50 contributions. No.

No. 5. Increases the gasoline tax from 2 cents to 3, but contains no program for future road development. No.

No. 6. Increases the gasoline tax from 2 cents to 3, but does contain a program. Yes.

No. 7. This is Reel 1 of ex-Senator McCawley's famous What-Is-It, which contains a long series of assorted proposals for reconstructing the State Government. Its passage would cause endless confusion. No.

No. 8. This is Reel 2 of the same movie. No.

MIDWEST VISTA.

Lilacs laughing in a Chicago suburb, nasturtiums dazzling a Minnesota garden, peas chattering to Wisconsin in French accent, Nebraska hesitating between strawberry shortcake and cherry pie, Iowa and Indiana wreathing November mornings with violets, and Missouri's orange ranches in the golden blaze of a bumper crop. That's what the Baltimore Evening Sun, which doubted our recent report of cherry blossoms in Illinois, may see if it will just peep over its urban horizon at our prairies.

MR. DOOLEY REVIVED.

What scholarship needs is more men like Prof. Elmer Ellis of the University of Missouri. Subject to the same pressures that goad his colleagues in the academic groves to periodic publication of their research results, this Missouri historian has just turned out a piece of editing refreshingly different from that which professors usually produce. No delving into musty antiquities or pursuit of shadowy abstractions here. What Dr. Ellis has done is to go through the writings of that famous observer of the recent American scene, the late Finley Peter Dunne, to bring together a delightful collection which he calls "Mr. Dooley at His Best."

What a capital idea it is! Here in one volume of some 300 pages—bound in shamrock green, as the contemporary Mr. Dooley books invariably were—is the sage of "Ar-rchey Road" holding forth on McKinley and Bryan, on the tariff and panics, the evils of prohibition and divorce, golf and baseball, woman suffrage and modern education. As Martin Dooley, "doctor of philosophy," pours out his Irish wisdom on the patient Hennessy, the era of Fitzsimmons comes alive, "Tiddy Rosenfelt" is alone again "in Cubia," and the Supreme Court is deciding the famous dependency cases at the century's turn to provoke the historic line: "No matter whether th' Constitution follows th' flag or not, th' Supreme Coort follows th' iliction returns."

As definite a part of American folklore as Uncle Remus, so someone has said of Mr. Dooley. Yes, and infinitely more the spokesman of the people, whose wise comments are frequently as pertinent today as on those snowy winter nights when Archey Road motormen sought the warmth of Mr. Dooley's glowing stove.

TIDINGS FROM A REARMING WORLD.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, British Secretary for War, tells the House of Commons that the September crisis disclosed "startling deficiencies" in the country's defenses.

At the same time, a spokesman for the American Navy Department admits delays and defects have occurred in the program of warship construction.

Russia's air fleet is inefficient, according to the celebrated Lindbergh report, and other observers report wrecking and purges have weakened other military branches.

German equipment broke down appallingly on the march into Austria, correspondents reported last spring, and German planes, others have written, have made a poor showing in Spain.

France's weapons were described as wholly inadequate at the time of the Czech war scare.

If there is still any hope of arms limitation, it seems to rest wholly at this moment on human error, procrastination and disorganization.

FINAL ORDERS.

Europe's Crisis and American Trade

Barter system, as developed by Germany, is dangerous both to country accepting it and to other exporting nations, speaker says; outcome of recent crisis means Fascist commercial expansion and threat to our interests; America is urged to push multilateral pacts and adopt economic preparedness program to avert loss of markets.

From an Address by Eugene P. Thomas, President of the National Foreign Trade Council, at National Foreign Trade Convention, New York City.

THE growth of exchange restrictions and other protective mechanisms after the collapse of 1929 acted as barriers to trade so complete as to give rise to a system of barter whereby nations without exchange resources sought to obtain needed raw materials in return for manufactured goods. Nominally it was termed compensation trade. In fact it was barter. The apparent results of the operation of the system were initially so favorable in piercing the general barriers of trade that its operation has been greatly extended and the resultant abuses clearly exposed.

Take the increased sale of Brazilian coffee to Germany under the alleged stimulus of a compensation agreement. It soon became apparent that the coffee was not being consumed within Germany but dumped with demoralizing effect upon what formerly had been considered Brazil's natural markets. Coffee continued to be sold in Germany only as a luxury article. The excess which Germany ostensibly bought was either sold to create free currency, sometimes not even being shipped to Germany in the first instance, or was rebartered to obtain raw materials which it needed more than coffee. Brazil financed Germany, and Germany for a time threatened to control Brazil's own markets.

Brazil, of course, received payment not in free currency, as she did for coffee sold in the United States, but in marks utilizable only to purchase from Germany products of restricted categories, determined by Germany. These products surfeited the markets of Brazil and their importation, in excess of demand, drove to substantial discount the compensation marks, so that coffee sellers in the end realized substantially less than had they sold directly in the free market.

Brazil soon perceived the harmful effects of this so-called compensation, but suggestions of its discontinuance were met by threats of force. Germany would discontinue even her limited purchases of coffee for internal consumption, and shift them elsewhere, unless Brazil continued the compensation system. Moreover, Germany was considerably a debtor under the arrangement and in a position to impose her terms of payment. Brazil was not economically prepared to meet force with force.

Naturally, this situation has not been viewed with indifference by the American exporter. German sales to Brazil have increased while American sales have decreased. Under more compelling pressure from Germany, Brazil, unwillingly we feel sure, has been forced to continue to favor Germany, at least until recent months, when a gratifyingly firmer attitude has been displayed.

Faced with this type of discriminatory competition, American traders have raised their voices for measures offering effective protection to American trade.

We do not overlook the many broader advantages which multilateral trade offers: stimulation of trade, more stable price structure and the maintenance of international credit and free exchange to aid in the development of economic resources. But even prior to the recent crisis in Europe, the disadvantages and discriminations we were suffering from in our current trade were sufficient to cause us to weigh them against the ultimate advantages of our fixed policy.

What are the economic implications of the recent European crisis? (1) That the threat of aggression will be employed to attain economic objectives. (2) That we should be prepared resolutely to withstand such threats. (3) That since the ultimate objectives of these threats are economic, we shall be blind to the challenge if we fail to place our economic house in order, reinforced by all the resources of the nation.

A natural portent of present trends is the further extension of Germany's hegemony over Eastern Europe, depriving us of markets there which we had hoped to retain. Daily events already make this clear. We must face this situation realistically. We must envision the probable creation of an economic bloc in Central Europe completely controlled by Germany and subjected to the compensation system of trade. This will serve to bring differences into clear relief and certainly will call for closer co-ordination of trade among nations of the liberal, internationalist group.

Just as the state of military preparedness was the underlying factor in the recent European armistice, so the economic preparedness of the nations opposed to threats of force will determine the outcome of the economic issues now so clearly shaping.

Dictatorships assert the decadence of democratic nations and their inability to act quickly and decisively. Democracies rely upon strength and initiative derived from their democratic institutions. The greater danger to the maintenance of democratic institutions lies in unpreparedness. What is urgently called for is vision to foresee and determination to meet the problems of the future, so that we may meet them without resort to dictatorial powers.

The developments of the European crisis have served merely to dramatize a trend. We are facing a more definite alignment of economic groups. Our first duty is to assert our economic leadership to assure the complete adherence and support of all liberal trading nations. We should make every effort to extend the reciprocal trade agreements program within that group.

While recognizing inherent differences with those pursuing nationalistic trade policies, we must yet be ready to treat with them with a view to improving the mechanics of trade with them and limiting trade conflicts so far as possible. To meet these responsibilities, broader legislative authorization will doubtless be required, admitting of greater flexibility of policy and powers to meet particular situations. Our economic defenses will not be secure without the authorization required to control foreign exchange when and to the extent necessary.

I am not advocating economic belligerency, but merely preparedness to meet all eventualities. Preparedness, and a readiness to use it, will, I firmly believe, be the most effective means of assuring peace.

The Great Northwest

Books in the News

THE "great, free and independent empire" which Jefferson in 1813 predicted would rise out of the Columbia River wilderness is, a century and a quarter later, the sprawling news run of Richard L. Neuberger and the lively subject of this New York Times writer's latest book, "Our Promised Land" (The Macmillan Co., New York).

It is a "vast expanse of land and water and sky," this American Canaan, one that reaches a third of the way across the Canadian frontier to the North and embraces something like a seventh of the whole area of the 48 states. Every conceivable kind of person and interest followed Lewis and Clark into its mountains and valleys, its plains and riverbanks, its towns and cities—the "sundown side of the Rockies," as Mr. Neuberger likes to call this "last frontier."

This young reporter is literally eating up his assignment, as every section of his book proves. The Grand Coulee Dam, which is appropriating a small share of the mighty torrent of the Columbia River so refugees from the Dust Bowl may have subsistence farms where drouth will never come again; the gigantic hydro-electric project at Bonneville; the phenomenon of Borah, the labor battles—these and many other things in the Northwest are exciting news stories and Mr. Neuberger revels in their telling.

Two of the sharpest portraits he draws are of Dave Beck, burly Seattle teamster, and lean Harry Bridges, once allies in the cause of labor, but sworn enemies since the soft-spoken political philosopher from Australia induced the longshoremen to start the general strike which tied up San Francisco in 1934. Powerful leaders, they are fundamentally different, the writer finds. Beck believes labor and capital should be "intertwined in the weaving of the fabric of the profit system," but Bridges thinks "labor should operate business on a nonprofit basis."

What about the future of Burton K. Wheeler, whose term in the Senate has only two years to run? Mr. Neuberger has looked into that and finds the former Montana idol is suspended between Heaven and earth like Mohammed's coffin. The support he won for his break with Roosevelt and the New Deal is of "a passive variety," but this is not true of the antagonism Wheeler has incurred. The writer says there is little doubt that Congressman Jerry O'Connell is taking Wheeler's place as Montana's dominant liberal.

An informative if not heartening chapter is that on Oregon's use of the initiative and referendum these past 36 years. Widely heralded as "absolute government by the people," it has been invoked to set the length of hotel sheets and other trifling uses until suspicious citizens have made a practice of voting No. All in all, the great Northwest is still a Promised Land but the promise, its keen reporter-at-large tells us, remains unfulfilled.

SOME of the most vigorous recent columns of an American public enlightener are collected in "The Dissenting Opinions of Mister Westbrook Pegler" (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York). The title is apt, since Mister Pegler's specialty is dissenting, and many readers are likely to dissent from his opinions as well. But no matter how much some may want to quarrel with numerous of his ironbound attitudes, none can deny that he is a master of salty and forthright expression.

How Farmers of Northern China Harass Japanese With Constant Hit-and-Run Guerrilla Warfare

80,000 in "Conquered" Area Use Many Ruses to Ambush Troops and Wreck Trains, and Say They Can Go on for Years.

TO get the answers to many pertinent questions hidden in the guerrilla camps, the Associated Press sent one of its war correspondents a 1000-mile march through north China to Sian, the northwest capi- l. He succeeded in passing through the lines of the Japanese at Poat- g, and a short time later was with the famous "hit and run" fighters —one of the few newspapermen to accomplish this feat since the war gan. Two and a half months later, after visiting 18 guerilla head- rters, he reached Sian. There he wrote his story. Now, once more, is in another guerrilla territory. For this and other reasons, his me is not revealed. His story appears below.

IAN, China—Armed bands of hinese farmers using hit-and-run ctics are constantly upsetting apanese military plans in North hina.

Little has been written about ese guerrilla fighters, due to the apanese army's success in pre- nting foreign correspondents om leaving the larger cities to in- stigate rural conditions in "con- ered China."

idden in the guerrilla camps the answers to many pertinent estions.

Who are the guerrillas?

Who are their leaders?

How are they supplied?

Are they really successful in hting against mechanized forces, d how long can they continue to ht?

To find the answers to these estions, the Associated Press sent correspondent southward from iping on June 11, 1938, with in- uctions to go through the Jap- ese troop cordon along the rail- y, make contact with the guer- las, and if possible, proceed from to 1000 miles overland through errilla territory to China's north- st capital, Sian.

Unlimited Manpower.

Two and a half months after he pped quietly out of Peiping the iter completed this journey— of the few white men to get ugh since the war began)—on ot or horseback crossing 24 moun- n ranges, visiting 18 military adquarters commanding a total 280,000 armed farmers. All were ked by telephone or radio op- ting from a central headquar-npower resources of the guer- s are unlimited, for the pop- tion in their territory now ex- ds 45,000,000. Local food supplies more than ample. Village ar- als are producing broad swords, enades and rifle ammunition suf- ient for constant sniping and rprise attacks, but not for posi- nal battles such as Chiang Kai- k's armies are fighting.

Guerrilla commanders believe y can continue their Indian tac- for years, thus forcing the panese to spend an extra billion a year in her campaign to con- er China.

Such are the key facts gathered m the journey through Guerrilla d, but the story is best told from beginning.

Close-Up of a Guerrilla Attack.

At the zero hour of a guerrilla ack, I arrived by train at Pao- g, 90 miles south of Peiping. For o days I took refuge inside the d city gates while Chinese mers kept up a sporadic fire at Japanese guards on the dieval walls.

One squad of Chinese burrowed moles under the city gate, erged in the night behind the panese sentries and killed a re of guards sleeping in the gate

y and night, the Japanese d their machine guns and ar- ry at apparently empty fields, ause the guerrillas were hid- in the wheat stalks.

No Japanese ventured from the y. Their airplanes came from ntsin, but found no visible tar- s for their bombs. Both north south of the city railroad cks had been torn up. One mili- train had been derailed.

This was a sample of guerrilla wer, indicating how a mass of mers armed only with rifles uld terrorize a small garrison ose artillery, tanks and air force re useless against their tactics. course, the guerrillas cannot re- pture the railways or the large es, but by a process of attrition y hope to wear down the Jap- e power in a prolonged war.

A Countryside in Arms.

I had not pro- ded more than five miles when quad of young Chinese leaped behind a grave mound and cked the way. They were clad poorly-fitting cotton uniforms, green in color to match the er crops, and were armed with home-made hand grenreat crowds of farmers greeted at every town and village, for people here had not seen a igner since the war began. y man, woman and child was ring an arm band to indicate mbership in a mass organization ch was helping to feed and the guerrillas. The arm ds serve as passports for the l people, and help to shut out anese spies.

Twice we passed guerrilla units 200 or 300 men, moving up to railroads for raids on Japanese garrisons. They were singing at the top of their lungs. Most of them were of the age of American high school and college students, thin, but wiry, poorly dressed and poorly armed, but with reckless enthusiasm.

High Command of College Boys.

When I reached the central headquarters, I found that the "brain trust" for these 80,000 guerrillas operating on the plains south of Peiping is composed of Peiping university students, who dress in the same homespun cotton as the ordinary guerrilla privates.

The collegians are amateur strategists. The highest monthly salary among them is 90 cents American money. At their headquarters I found a copy of Lawrence's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," translated into Chinese and used as a source book on guerrilla warfare.

The guerrilla "brain trust" includes a handful of veterans from the Manchurian volunteers, men with seven years' experience fighting the Japanese, and a score of officers loaned by the Chinese red army, now called the Eighth Route Army.

When I was investigating the methods of this unique staff, a Japanese plane flew over and dropped 13 bombs.

Train-Wrecking as a Hobby.

The hobby of organizing train wrecks, stealing rails and chopping down telephone poles has been taken up by two former professors in Christian universities in Peiping, at the potential daily expense of nearly 5000 yen to the Japanese army. I met them in a village 140 miles south of Peiping, as they were returning from an expedition in which a Japanese military train and 20 Japanese soldiers were the victims. Surviving guards on the train had fled to the nearest garrison post, enabling the professors to make a leisurely examination of the damage and to cripple the locomotive boiler with explosives.

The professors told me how the guerrillas had first used dynamite. The technique was that used by Lawrence in Arabia — burying a charge under the rails, with a long detonation wire leading into the fields where the operator lay hidden.

After the supply of explosives had been exhausted, the professors taught their guerrilla pupils how to pull up the inner rail spikes, especially on the curves. This usually caused the tracks to spread when a locomotive passed over, and it always took the Japanese from one to four days to clear away the wreckage.

Wooden Spikes for Steel.

This system of wrecking was employed until May, when the Japanese began running light armored cars over the line early each morning to spot the points tampered with during the previous night.

"So now we have a new trick," said one of the professors, grinning as he produced a small piece of wood shaped and painted to resemble a rail spike. The dummies are substituted for steel pins removed, making it almost impossible for the Japanese to discover the mischief. This trick accounted for 30 derailments south of Peiping in the three months the Chinese say.

As a rule the guerrillas do not try to capture trains after they are wrecked, as they usually carry a full complement of armed guards.

Train wrecking is only one of the duties of these professors. Most of their time is spent in organizing thieving parties to carry off rails and telephone wire. This is all considered a part of China's economic resistance, which its sponsors believe will result in an increasingly heavy drain on Japan's finances.

A Village of Wreckers.

Evidencing their belief in this kind of resistance, 200 farmers in a village near Paoting have agreed to devote two nights a week to demolition work under the direction of guerilla officers. In one night they can tear up 10 rails, carry them two miles inland and bury them in a corn field. They can also chop down a mile (28 poles) of telephone standards and carry off insulators and wire.

For such a night's work the Japanese engineering office receives a replacement order for 10 rails, 240 spikes and screws, 10 fish plates, telephone poles and wire. Total replacement cost is yen 4780.60, according to estimates supplied by the Lunghai railway engineering office in Sian. In a year this one village can cost the Japanese 500,000 yen. If 1000 villages can be similarly organized, China's wrecking genuises estimate, Japan will have to increase her army budget by 500,000,000 yen. The Chinese authorities have sent 2000 agents into the field to organize all farmers in the railway zones into a great, centrally directed machine of destruction.

To meet this threat the Japanese have built steel garrison houses at every bridge of any size, and organized a corps of unarmed Chinese

FROM a national point of view, aside from the state-by-state results as they will affect relative party strength in the next Congress, election day next Tuesday will find sharp interest in senatorial and gubernatorial contests from California on the west to Massachusetts on the east. This pre-election map indicates the states and contests which for a variety of reasons have attracted unusually heavy interest beyond state and regional scope.

must rely on upstate New York for his real majority and work to cut down Lehman's expected lead in New York City.

Postmaster-General Farley, who is also Democratic State Chairman and as such is directing the New York campaign, has predicted that Dewey's majority outside New York City will be only 350,000, while Lehman will carry the five metropolitan boroughs by more than 860,000, thus giving the Democrat a net lead of more than half a million. Chairman William S. Murray of the Republican State Committee has forecast a 600,000 upstate advantage for Dewey to offset a 450,000 Lehman majority in the city, to elect Dewey by a 150,000 majority. The truth necessarily is between these partisan claims and it should be noted that during the past decade the largest upstate majority given to any state Republican was the 409,000 obtained by William F. Bleakley, gubernatorial candidate in 1936, and that Herbert Hoover's upstate majority in the Republican year of 1928 was only 550,000. Murray's figures may be sounder as to the metropolitan area because Dewey has made a favorable impression in a city where the rackets directly or indirectly affected almost every merchant.

Of more than incidental interest in New York is the race for Congress between Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House Rules Committee, the only Democrat successfully "purged" by the President, who lost the party nomination to James Fay, a Tammany henchman. O'Connor, much to the disgust of Republican leaders, won the Republican nomination over Allen W. Dulles, a Wall Street attorney and former diplomat backed by the young Republican element. Farley has said that he expects Fay to win because the Tammany leaders have agreed to support him. O'Connor has protested against WPA coercion, and whatever the merits of these charges, he probably would not have made them had he been sure of election.

Keystone State Is Key.

Pennsylvania, the next most populous state with an electoral college vote of 36, is the bitterest political battleground in the country this year with mud, dug up in the primaries, still flying in the election campaigns. The situation in this Keystone State was described in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday and there is little to add except to emphasize that the Republicans must carry this former Republican stronghold if they expect to do anything in 1940 with traditional Republican issues, candidates and tactics. Republicans in Washington insist that the tide in Pensylvania has been running their way for the last two weeks and that they have better than a 50-50 chance for success. Before hazarding a guess on the outcome, the writer would have to know how much money each party will throw into the State during the closing days of the campaign.

If the Republican Old Guard politicians lose Pensylvania this year they will be in a situation comparable to that of the cowboy who was thrown three times out of a saloon. They should realize that they are not wanted there anymore. That would also go for the nation as well as the Keystone State. If they win, the Annenbergs, Pews, Grundys, Weirs and Cookes can be counted on to insist on conservative national candidates in 1940.

In the adjoining State of Ohio the Democrats and Republicans have conducted campaigns in striking contrast to mudslinging in Pennsylvania. Ohio Republicans, like those in New York, think they have a presidential possibility for 1940. This favorite son is Robert A. Taft, son of a President and a Chief Justice of the United States, who is trying to unseat Senator Robert J. Bulkley. The gubernatorial candidates are Charles Sawyer, Democrat, and John W. Bricker, Republican, who was defeated for the same office by Gov. Martin L. Davey in 1936 by a majority of 127,000. Sawyer beat Davey in the Democratic primary this year.

Debates Instead of Mud.

Instead of throwing mud, Senator Bulkley and Taft calmly debated the New Deal and Republican issues. Taft implied that Bulkley was a "rubber stamp" for the White House, an imputation Bulkley did not deny although his New Deal voting record was only somewhat nearer 100 per cent than that of Senator George of Georgia, whom the President tried to "purge" in the primary.

The Democrats admit that Ohio is a "bad spot" for them and the Republicans insist they have the edge. Should Dewey be defeated in New York and Taft win in Ohio, it is safe to predict that the Ohioan will be among those warmed up for the presidential race. The Ohio Republicans also claim that they will win at least eight additional House seats, and if everything goes their way, as high as 16 more. At present the State has only two Republican Representatives in the House and none in the Senate. Impartial observers agree that there may be a gain of seven Republicans from Ohio.

Michigan will be a testing ground for President Roosevelt's labor policies. Here the President's favorite, Gov. Frank Murphy, is in a desperate battle against former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, whom he defeated by a scant 48,919 votes in 1936, when the President carried the State by a majority of 307,061 against Landon. The President actively intervened recently in the Michigan situation by denouncing Chairman Dies of the House Un-American Activities Investigating Committee for permitting a "coterie of disgruntled Republicans" to make "absurdly false charges" concerning Murphy's handling of the sitdown strike at Flint in 1937. In any local election, Michigan is a tight State, but if Fitzgerald wins, anti-New Dealers will claim that Murphy's labor record caused his defeat. There is no senatorial contest in the State this year and the Republicans are claiming from three to five additional House seats. Democrats concede that Michigan is another "bad spot" from their point of view.

Kansas a Testing Ground.

Kansas offers a better test of the administration's farm subsidy program than Michigan does of the labor policy. The senatorial candidates are Senator George McGill, who has a record of almost complete submission to the New Deal, and former Gov. Clyde M. Reed, who can be classed as a "liberal" Republican. The candidates for the governorship are Gov. Walter Huxman, Democrat, and State Senator Payne Ratner, a protege of former Gov. Landon. Kansas, the greatest wheat growing State in the Union, is said to be in revolt against the administration because of declining agricultural prices and the bureaucratic administration of the farm subsidy and allotment program. Reed has been voluble in his criticism of the AAA programs, while McGill has boasted of co-authorship of the latest law. The issue is clean cut and a Reed victory could not be interpreted otherwise than a Kansas rebuke to the President and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Huxman won the governorship in 1936 by a majority of 21,873 while President Roosevelt carried Landon's own State by 66,793. Kansas used to be considered a Republican stronghold, and in Washington the party leaders have already welcomed it back to the fold, claiming that at least one of the two sitting Democrats in the House will be defeated. In a delegation of seven the Republicans now have five.

California, always interesting politically, is more so this year because a "funny money" candidate, Sheridan Downey, won the Democratic senatorial nomination from the veteran William Gibbs McAdoo, who had the personal indorsement of his friend and wartime colleague, President Roosevelt. Now Downey has the President's personal approval as "a real liberal in mind and heart."

Outlook in California.

Although other states have their active blocs of Townsendites and members of the Old Age Annuity League, California has the spotlight on this subject because of the efficient publicity methods of its promoters. Downey supported the fantastic "$30-every-Thursday" promises. He is opposed by Philip Bancroft, conservative Republican, who has condemned the scheme and, in addition, fought the New Deal labor program. For the governorship, the aging Republican Gov. Frank Merriam is battling against Culbert L. Olson, who has not indorsed the State pension grab. Merriam won against Upton Sinclair in 1934 when Sinclair's EPIC, or End Poverty in California program, was successfully stigmatized as socialistic. This year, however, the Democratic registration overtops the Republican by 850,000, and the Democrats in Washington say that California is one of two states in which they will gain a governorship. The other is Maryland, where Gov. Harry W. Nice has the opposition of State Attorney-General Herbert R. O'Connor.

Fantastic Old-Age Plans.

In most of the other states where fantastic old-age pensions have become a political issue the wily promoters have backed Republican candidates more often than the Democratic. This is notably true in Oregon, Colorado and Massachusetts and was true in Maine. To the politicians the pension schemes, with their fiat money, transfer taxes and coupons, are a serious problem because they are taken seriously by hopeful older folks, who can't distinguish between money and wealth. At the last Congress 164 House members signed a discharge petition for consideration of the Townsend plan, and only 54 more signatures were needed to bring it to a vote.

Senator Alva B. Adams (Dem.), of Colorado, has become a typical target for the Old-Age Annuity League, Inc., and if he is defeated by Archibald A. Lee (Rep.), he can lay the blame to his denunciation of the promoters of this device as a "bunch of racketeers." Adams' chances for re-election are further endangered because his running mate, Gov. Teller Ammons, who is also seeking re-election, is on the short end of the betting in his race against Ralph L. Carr (Rep.).

In New Hampshire, lying between adamantly Republican Maine and Vermont, the Townsendites have indorsed the Republican ticket of Francis P. Murphy for Governor and Representative Charles W. Tobey for Senator, as against John L. Sullivan for Governor and Senator Fred H. Brown for Senator. Even if the Townsend's followers had not taken an active part in the campaign, Brown and Sullivan would have an uphill fight. New Hampshire is normally Republican. In the Democratic landslide year of 1936 President Roosevelt had a majority of only 3818, while Murphy won over his Democratic rival by 29,000. Democratic leaders in Washington don't even hope to win the governorship in New Hampshire, and Republican leaders say Brown is as good as defeated. Brown, in general, has gone along with the New Deal, but his defeat in this off-year election would merely mark the return of New Hampshire to its normal place in the Republican ranks.

G. O. P. Expects to Beat Curley.

There is no senatorial vacancy from Massachusetts, but the race for the governorship between the aristocratic Leverett Saltonstall (Rep.), and the hard-hitting practical politician, former Gov. James M. Curley, is making up for this lack. Republicans are confident that they will regain this Commonwealth of Calvin Coolidge. They admit, however, it will not be because of New Deal issues. Curley made many enemies as Mayor of Boston and as Governor, and these are expected to plague him. As an advantage he has the support this year of Thomas C. O'Brien, who as a Union party candidate polled 134,245 votes in the three-man senatorial race in 1936 which young Henry Cabot Lodge won over Curley by just a few more than O'Brien received. Saltonstall, on the other hand, has the support of William H. McMaster, the Townsendite he beat in the primary. To counteract this Townsend bloc, Curley, who has played political ball with young James Roosevelt, has been telling the voters that if he is elected, he will get $120,000,000 from Washington for flood relief and prevention, whereas his Republican rival couldn't get a dime.

Reversing the usual trend, the Republicans imply that they are fearful of losing one or two House seats in the Bay State, although publicly they won't concede any losses.

Rhode Island and New Jersey have interesting local issues, the former as to the governorship and the latter as to the senatorship.

W. H. Vanderbilt in Race.

William H. Vanderbilt, a 37-year-old multi-millionaire, is on the Republican ticket against the Democratic incumbent, Robert E. Quinn. The third man in the race is Quinn's bitter enemy, Walter E. O'Hara, running as an independent in the hope that he can oust Quinn one way or another. Democrats are positive they can hold the State, and Republicans are only little more than hopeful.

In New Jersey the Republicans were confident that they could send W. Warren Barbour back to the Senate if Boss Hague or totalitarian Hudson County gave merely nominal support to the Democratic candidate, William E. J. Ely, former State WPA administrator. Within the last two weeks, however, Boss Hague apparently has been impressed by Secretary of War Woodring's plea that Ely's election would make President Roosevelt very happy. The latest reports are that Hague will go down the line for Ely despite President Roosevelt's veiled denunciation in June of the curtailment of civil liberties in Jersey City.

Clark's Showing Watched.

Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota are important this year for different reasons. Politicians and political observers will scan the returns from Missouri Wednesday morning to see what majority Senator Bennett Champ Clark has piled up against former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield.

Whatever the majority, Clark will be hailed as a possible compromise candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1940, and if it is overwhelming, the interest will be proportionately greater.

In Iowa the Republicans believe they have an excellent chance of winning the governorship from Nelson G. Kraschel with George A. Wilson and concede that Senator Guy M. Gillette (Dem.) apparently has the edge over former Senator Lester J. Dickinson, who was his own candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1936. Gillette's strength arises from the fact that he has become something of a hero since the WPA Administrator and other White House politicians were unable to "purge" him in the primary. Kraschel won over Wilson in 1936 by only 2440.

Outlook in Minnesota.

Republican dopesters insist that not even President Roosevelt's indorsement of Gov. Elmer A. Benson, Farmer-Laborite of Minnesota, can stave off his defeat by 31-year-old Harold Stassen, who expects to profit by the dissension in the Farmer-Labor party ranks. The Democratic candidate, Thomas Gallagher, has Chairman Farley's public blessing, but Benson is the type of liberal pleasing to the President.

Such are the highlights of this year's campaign. In 1934 the country went against the usual biennial trend and the New Deal gained 10 House seats when the precedents for 60 years indicated there should have been a loss. It is conceivable that such a reversal might occur this year, but if it does the Democrats will be just as surprised as the Republicans. There is every indication that pre-New Deal sentiment reached its peak in 1936 and that there has been a gradual recession, which can be gauged by the returns Wednesday morning.

The important thing will not be that there has been a recession. Rather, it will be the extent. If the Republicans are to have a chance in 1940, the showing must demonstrate that they can regain many Senate and House seats and, above all, that they can recapture governorships and local offices carrying personal contacts with the voters and patronage that gets down to the grass roots.

A. F. L. FAVORS 'LASTING PEACE' BUT WON'T 'SURRENDER RIGHTS'

Editorial in American Federationist Tells of Position in Fight with CIO.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—An editorial in the American Federationist said today the American Federation of Labor was ready for "a mutually acceptable basis for lasting peace, not surrender of our rights."

The Federationist, edited by William Green, A. F. of L. president, referred to the A. F. of L.'s long fight with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"There can be no question but that wage-earners throughout the country and the nation as a whole want a united labor movement," the editorial said. "The A. F. of L. believes the difficulties in the way of unity are not insurmountable if there are sincere and disinterested efforts to make peace. Questions of overlapping jurisdictions, rights in union benefit systems, treasuries, etc., can be solved when the will to unity can prevail."

route a week later. A sesquiplane, the Lieutenant has a wing spread of 161 feet and is 103 feet long. Its six Hispano-Suiza water-cooled engines develop 5340 horsepower, giving a top speed of 162 miles an hour. The Atlantic trip was for route familiarization and experimentation in flight technique. For surface observation Air France had the weather ship Carimare in midocean to gather meteorological data on which to base further experiments next year.

Pan American, although not doing any Atlantic survey flying in 1938, was not idle. Ground bases were established on both sides of the ocean and 14 complete crews, trained in the Pacific and Caribbean service, are ready for duty. Weather experts have been making daily maps of ocean weather from reports received from ships at sea. Upper air information has been obtained from automatic radio-equipped small balloons.

"All aboard, the tourists are going to sea by air" appears to be an early certainty.

REPORT FOR 1937-38 ON PUBLIC SCHOOLS

102,566 Enrollment Is Drop of 1621 From Previous Year, Gerling Says.

Enrollment in the public schools in the year 1937-38 was 102,566, a decline of 1621 from the previous year and of 3744 from the peak year, 1934-35, it is shown in the annual report of Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gerling, made public yesterday.

The superintendent points out that enrollment in the white elementary schools fell from 66,133 in 1916-17 to 55,634 in the last year. Enrollment of white kindergarten pupils dropped in the same period from 8809 to 5867, or about 33 per cent. A similar tendency has been observed nationally.

In the same time the enrollment in Negro elementary schools rose from 5428 to 13,662 and in Negro kindergartens from 653 to 1553.

However, high school enrollment of both races increased in the same 21-year period—from 7185 to 17,737 for whites and from 717 to 2557 for Negroes. Last year's figures were, respectively, 60 and 33 higher than the year before.

New Record at Hadley School.

At Hadley Vocational School a new peak of enrollment, 2980, was attained in the last year. This type of training was started in 1926-27, with 185 pupils. Booker T. Washington (Negro) Vocational School has grown from 123 in 1929-30 to 455 last year.

The superintendent once more calls attention to the increase in cost of education as attendance at the high and vocational schools rose and that at the grade schools, where per-pupil costs are lower, fell. There were 7025 children taking up high-school work in 1937-38, including 1072 whose previous instruction, was in private or parochial schools here and 469 coming from other communities.

Enrollment in the public evening schools in the last year was 13,844, or about 500 more than the preceding year. One-third of these students were more than 30 years old and less than 4 per cent were 16 or younger. About half of the entire group studied vocational subjects, directly related to the process of making a living.

30,825 on Playgrounds Daily.

Average daily attendance at the public school playgrounds last summer is reported as 30,825, compared with 27,157 in 1937 and 20,349 in 1928.

The attendance division investigated 74,617 cases of irregular school attendance in the last year, but took only 12 to Juvenile Court. It caused the Prosecuting Attorney to serve 1016 warning notices on parents concerning their children's absences. Most of these cases were settled at conferences among school officials, parents and children, at which it was sought to remove causes of actual or potential delinquency.

Most truancy, it is noted, occurs among boys 13 to 15 years of age and 72.7 of truant children have been retarded in school work.

NEW PETITION BY MOONEY BEFORE U. S. SUPREME COURT

Life Convict Seeks Reconsideration of Refusal to Pass on His Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Counsel for Thomas J. Mooney told the Supreme Court today that the "personal discernment" of the Justices "should lead them to the conclusion that either Mooney is an innocent man or that he is the most astounding and arrant hypocrite in history."

They made this statement in a petition asking the Court to reconsider its recent refusal to pass on his conviction for complicity in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing. He is serving a life sentence in San Quentin Penitentiary.

The petition added that a review should be granted so that Warren Billings, Mooney's co-defendant, "may know what, if any, remedy is available to him." He plans to appeal to the Supreme Court, the petition said.

Pre-Election-Week Stock Market Runs True to Form, With Trading Light and in Selective Group Only

Decision Against a Rail Wage Cut and Government's Utility Suit Also Influences—Stock Average Up .01 at 50.56.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The stock market slithered to about a standoff this week, with what forward leadership there was accorded to the rails.

It was a typical pre-election week market of sidewise and selective movement. Volume dropped to around the figures recorded in late September when traders took to the bushes as the European war scare waxed and waned.

Most brokers queried held the imminence of elections acted as neither an excitant nor a depressant to prices, but said that marketeers wanted time to appraise the results, and in view of the two holidays next week, evened their positions as much as possible and kept away from new commitments.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .1 of a point at 52.5 today and this was exactly the net gain for the week. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stock was up .01 at 50.56 for the day and the week's gain was the same. The two-hour proceedings today were the most apathetic in nearly two months. Transfer of 434,410 shares compared with 613,990 last Saturday. The six-day volume was 5,853,600 shares, compared with 9,041,300 the preceding week.

At no time were there evidence of any important liquidation, although there was said to have been some selling for the purpose of establishing tax losses or gains. One report had it that several important blocks were traded over-the-counter for this reason. Buying came into the market on recessions to a certain extent, but dried up on the advances under profit-taking.

Trend of Bonds.

Bonds moved along in the same irregular and indecisive fashion, and most divisions ended at about last Saturday's closing levels. Foreign dollar loans perked up under repatriation and investment buying, and the secondary rails were favored. Low-yield industrials held about even and U. S. Government issues sagged a little.

New financing was confined largely to the municipal field, although an Argentine Government $25,000,000 loan at 4½ per cent, priced at 95½ per cent, was described by underwriters as having passed quickly into dealers' hands. There were some sizeable private flotations and Commonwealth Edison Co. announced plans for additional bond financing to the amount of $59,300,000, a considerable part to be sold privately to seven insurance companies.

In stocks, several influences united to boost the carrier shares. Last week's carloadings showed a contra-seasonal rise and new reports of operations indicated a better net in relation to gross than has been apparent for some time. Brokers attributed this to the effect of economies the roads have introduced in recent months. Then, too, there was an almost universal opinion plans to aid the roads, by legislation, or by Government loans, would be worked out shortly.

Increase in Loans.

Most other divisions coasted, although many selected stocks which have been neglected in the past month or so were traded and some reached new highs for the year.

A reported increase in brokers' loans was said in some quarters to be due in part to an increase in the volume of securities held on margin. This, one commentator said, "may bear some relation to the flattening out of stock prices in the last three weeks, as outright holders of stocks took some profits and sold securities to the public."

Again industrial activity quickened its tempo, the Associated Press index, with 1929-30 as 100, advancing to 83.6 from 81.8. For the second week in succession the rate of steel mill operations crossed last year's level. It stood at 56.8 per cent of capacity compared with 53.7 per cent the previous week and 48.6 a year ago.

The Industrial Situation.

Electric power output reached a new high for the year in a more than seasonal rise, and was only 1.3 per cent under last year's comparative, the narrowest difference in 1938. Carloadings, due largely to a boost in coal shipments, were up against the usual trend at this time of year. Residential building was at the fastest pace since 1931.

The bettered outlook for the automotive industry was reflected in a greater than seasonal production of cars and trucks. Textile mill activity also showed a more than seasonal pickup.

The market, as has been usual recently, ignored foreign developments to a pretty large degree, although a careful eye was kept on France, where a recurring financial crisis resulted in elevation of a new Finance Minister. His plans for grappling the problem are due for publication Monday. Brokers said there was little foreign buying of American shares, but that money already invested in stocks here remained where it was.

Slow Week-End Trading.

Speculative forces yawned in Wall Street today and the market finished a generally slow-going week with prices narrow either way.

With the Exchange closed two days next week, Tuesday for the elections and Friday for Armistice Day, boardroom customers apparently decided to keep decks reasonably clear in order to be prepared for eventualities.

The day's business news was moderately cheering and holders of pivotal stocks continued to display reluctance to sell.

In the closing session modest improvement was retained by Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Rubber preferred and du Pont.

Rails, utilities and mail orders followed a slim groove.

The day's bond and commodity prices were about as jumbled as stocks. Wheat at Chicago was off ⅛ to ½ of a cent a bushel and corn was up ¼ to ⅝. Cotton was ahead 5 cents a bale to down 30 cents.

Sterling and the French franc were virtually unchanged in terms of the dollar.

Copper shares, laggard recently, enjoyed a late recovery today on reports from Chile that the new government taking office next month would maintain a friendly attitude toward American interests. Anaconda and Kennecott both have important holdings in that country.

COMMODITY PRICES IN NARROW SWING

Industrial Staples Show Shade More Buoyancy Than Others.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Commodity prices continued to swing narrowly this week, with industrial staples showing a shade more buoyancy than the rest of the list.

No special pre-election dullness is the current inertia among sensitive raw materials. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important staples has hovered between 66 and 67 for the last 20 weeks.

Gains among industrial staples, strengthened by rising industrial activity, were approximately offset by a steady downward course in farm commodities.

The latest week was no exception to the rule of the past five months. The weighted commodity index advanced fractionally to 66.93 per cent of the 1926 average from 66.86 the week before and compared with 79.61 a year ago.

Metals at Year's Peak.

Industrial raw materials — Rubber, steel scrap, tin and wool — moved ahead a notch on listless volume. Although demand was comparatively light, the tempo of business continued to expand and those with commodities to sell refused to make important concessions.

Non-ferrous metals made a new peak for the year. Price changes were narrow, however.

Agricultural items, on the other hand, were moderately lower. Cotton dipped toward the end of the week after holding around nine cents a pound for several days. The grains were mixed: Important wheat and corn slipped back somewhat, less important oats and rye advanced.

Supply and demand factors were more or less evenly balanced in the livestock group. Neither hogs nor cattle changed, although lambs were buoyant.

Market-basket items gave ground on weakness in flour and butter. Cocoa improved a little.

Textiles were mixed, an advance in wool out-weighing a setback in silk.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE MARKET IS QUIET

Sterling and French Franc Continue to Move Over Like Courses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Leading European currencies showed little change in terms of the dollar this week. The British pound sterling and French franc continued to move in step, indicating continued observance of the tripartite monetary agreement.

Near midweek Paul Reynaud, a conservative, replaced Paul Marchandeau in the French Cabinet as Minister of Finance, and promptly, upon assuming office, announced that his policy would be directed toward maintaining of the tripartite money pact.

Commercial transactions for the greater part governed the steady quotations in the exchange mart. Dealings on this side of the Atlantic were light, and abroad no larger than normally would be expected in the course of ordinary business needs.

The flow of gold here from other nations continued to dwindle. The yellow metal engaged abroad for shipment this week through Friday total but $8,905,000, compared with $13,701,000 in the preceding week. Of the latest week's total, $7,107,000 was engaged in England and $1,798,000 in India for shipment to this country.

Leading European currencies were marked down narrowly in terms of the dollar today in quiet dealings.

Sterling declined 1-16 of a cent while the French franc held unchanged. The Swiss franc dipped .00½ of a cent, the guilder .01 of a cent and the belga a like amount.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY INDEX AT 1938 HIGH

Gain of 27 Per Cent From the Low Point Recorded Last May.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The sturdy power of recovery forces pushed industrial activity into new high ground for the year for the fifth consecutive time this week.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available data, advanced to 83.6 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 81.8 last week and compared with 90.3 a year ago.

From the low point in May, this measure of the business trend has rocketed 27 per cent—one of the sharpest upswings on record.

Steel mill operations, electric power output and residential construction again made new tops for the year or longer.

With automobile assemblies speeding up, the steel industry received a swelling volume of orders from both car and parts manufacturers.

Home building, at the highest level since the spring of 1931, has risen steadily since the recession bottom was established last February.

Railroad carloadings bettered the seasonal trend as a result of a heavy increase in coal movement and some improvement in industrial loads. Electric power output and cotton manufacturing activity were moderately higher.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Week	Prev. Week	Year Ago

DOMESTIC METALS ARE QUIET DURING WEEK

Prices Little Changed — Holidays Abroad Checks Trade.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Domestic metal markets were quiet last week and the prices little changed. Activity abroad was restricted by two holidays.

Steel operations rose 3 points to 5 per cent of capacity and the highest rate since October, 1937. Improved steel demand was due generally to expanded orders from automobile companies. Japanese interests bought 150,000 tons of scrap in domestic markets during the week.

Copper was unchanged at 11¼ a pound for electrolytic. Valley demand was curtailed following large sales last month. Scrap declined ¼c to 9½c and there were reports of sales of electrolytic at concessions. Export sagged as volume dropped and closed the week at 11.15c.

Lead was unchanged at 5.10c and 5. a pound, New York, and 4.95c a pound East St. Louis. Demand remained good and sentiment was improved by a fall of 5000 tons in domestic stocks.

Zinc was quiet and unchanged at 5.05c a pound East St. Louis. The market was unsteadied by easiness in the price structure abroad. Galvanizing operations have receded slightly without affecting consumption in general.

Tin gained ¼c on the week to 46. cents a pound. Business was quiet with deliveries to consumers well ahead of consumption requirements. Demand from automobile makers was regarded as improving.

Antimony, Chinese grade, was unchanged at 14c a pound. Trade remained quiet.

LOCAL STOCK TRADE QUIETER FOR WEEK

Traction Stock and Bonds Are More Active at Advanced Price Levels.

The more active stocks in the week's trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week showed mixed price changes at the close. The volume of business was under that of the preceding period.

St. Louis Public Service preferred advanced $1.00 to $1.90 on small trade. This stock sold at 90 cents less than a month ago.

In the lower group were Burkart Mfg., Sterling Aluminum and Wagner Electric. Less active but off, too, were Missouri-Portland and Griesedieck-Western among others.

There was a large turnover of Scullin Steel warrants at better level. Hussmann-Ligonier and Falstaff were improved.

In the bond section United Railway 4s sold to the amount of $39,000, the undeposited security advancing 2½ points and the deposited bonds two points.

WHEAT MOVES NERVOUSLY IN A NARROW RANGE

Corn Is Independently Strong, Rising Nearly a Cent and Helping Others Gain.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—With wheat trading still in the doldrums and speculative activity in the grain market this year at the lowest ebb on record, wheat prices continued today to fluctuate nervously in a narrow range.

Losses of as much as ⅜-cent early in the session were partially recovered later but the market closed ⅛@½c lower than Friday, after having wavered for 2½ hours within a range of only ⅝-cent.

Corn, which was independently strong, rose as much as ⅞-cent at one stage and this helped to buoy the wheat market. However, pressure of world wheat supplies on foreign markets, lagging export demand for domestic grain, prospects of increased Argentine marketings soon and improved misture conditions in the domestic southwest depressed wheat.

Closing ⅛@½c off wheat quotations were 64⅛@64; May, 65½@⅝. Corn was ¼@⅝c higher, Dec., 45½@⅝, May 49⅛@¼c. Oats unchanged to ⅛c up; rye ¼c off to ¼c up; lard 5s down to 7c higher.

Liverpool failed to follow Friday's upturn of wheat here and closed ¼@⅜ lower largely because of big wheat clearances from European exporting countries. European markets have been practically demoralized by competitive offerings and prices abroad are generally lower than in the United States. Washington comment said some opposition has developed to plans for increasing subsidized sales of American wheat abroad.

Further light precipitation was reported in Nebraska and in the spring wheat belt while the forecast was light rains or snows in most of the grain belt states. Export demand was flat and purchasing credited to removal of hedges on sales of cash wheat to the Government was less than Friday.

Corn's strength was attributed to the sharp falling off recently of country commercial offerings indicating the heavy movement period has passed. Many traders believe new Government loans will result in the holding back of a large quantity of corn. Hedging sales of corn have been comparatively insignificant recently. The Government report scheduled for release next week will help determine the new loan figure.

Oats were steadied by corn action while rye declined with wheat but both markets were quiet.

Nearby lard contracts weakened with hogs while short covering helped more deferred deliveries.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Nov. 5.—Small changes marked world wheat prices.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼@⅜d lower after opening ⅜@⅝d off.

Winnipeg wheat began unchanged to ⅛c lower. The close was ¼c lower.

Argentine wheat opened ⅛@¼c higher and closed ⅛c lower. Corn ended unchanged to ⅜c up.

Local wheat receipts, which were 24,000 bu, compared with 42,000 a week ago and 6000 a year ago, included 14 cars local and 2 through. Corn receipts, which were 87,000 bu, compared with 61,500 a week ago and 132,000 a year ago, included 58 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 2000 bu, compared with 6000 a week ago and 10,000 a year ago, included 1 car local.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Supply was rather limited and the demand was fair. Trading basis was unchanged. Local mills and elevators cleared the offerings well. Corn [illegible] 1@1½c higher. The available supply was small. Demand was good and a clearance was made. Mills, industries and elevators were the buyers. Premiums unchanged to ½c better with No. 1 yellow selling at the December price to ½c under, No. 2 yellow ¾c to 1c under and No. 1 mixed ¾c under. Oats were nominally unchanged. Demand was slow and [illegible] small supply (two cars) was carried [illegible].

DROP OF ALMOST 50 PER CENT IN GRAIN FUTURES TRADING

Ten-Month Total Is Reduced to Lowest Level on Record.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A drop of almost 50 per cent in the grain trade's volume of business as compared with last year has reduced it to the lowest level on record market statistics showed today.

Ebbing speculative interest in grain futures was blamed for the sharp decline in business. Merchandising operations in the grain pits have proceeded normally with the marketing of big crops the past summer but the volume of buying and selling required to give the market liquidity has been unusually small.

For the first 10 months of the year trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade, where almost 90 per cent of all such transactions are made, totaled 6,636,972,000 bu compared with approximately 12,940,000,000 bu in the corresponding 1937 period.

Aggregate sales of grain futures last month totaled 444,530,000 bu compared with 693,096,000 in September. In the last week of October the total was 113,110,000 bu. compared with 119,010,000 the previous week and 230,527,000 a year ago.

Traders estimated that if the current rate of business were maintained the remainder of the year total 1938 would be approximately eight billion bu, which would compare with the previous low record of 10,006,000,000, established in 1932, which also was a period of low prices. Last year transactions totaled 14,680,000,000 bu and the all-time high of 26,895,000,000 was established in 1925.

General business conditions, absence of market leaders who take the initiative in trade operations, Government regulations and the general uncertainty of the situation in grains are factors retarding volume, expetrs said.

UNSETTLEMENT IN RAIL BONDS AFFECTS LIST

Market Better Near Week's Close—Low Yield Issue Average at New High.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The corporate bond market tended lower last week.

While losses were not large as a rule, utility and industrial loans as groups all tilted downward, although the carrier bonds near the end of the period recouped most of their previous losses.

Easing tendencies in the corporate issues were attributed by traders to early unsteadiness of the rails. The carrier loans opened the week with a sizable drop as the market absorbed news the President's fact-finding board had advised against the carriers seeking to reduce expenses through the medium of a proposed 15 per cent wage cut.

It was not until after mid-week that any rallying power was seen in the rail division.

United States Government securities also were somewhat easier on the period.

The tendency, however, was for higher-priced corporate issues generally to climb even higher. The Associated Press index of 10 low-yield bonds reached a new high for the year.

Foreign bonds as a group also advanced.

New security offerings during the week were the smallest in some time. There were no large public offerings of corporate issues, although McKeesport Tin Plate Corporation revealed it had sold privately $6,000,000 of 10-year sinking fund debentures to an insurance company, and would use the proceeds to retire bank loans and augment working capital.

The capital market, however, saw public offering of a foreign bond issue—$25,000,000 Argentine Republic 10-year sinking fund external 4½s—at a price of 95½ and accrued interest. This was the first foreign "new money" bond issue to be publicly offered here in some years.

No major corporate offerings are slated for the coming week, which, due to falling of election day and Armistice day in the period, will witness closing of financial markets both Tuesday and Friday.

The market stuck to a narrow course today with the trend slightly down for the rails and utilities. There was only an occasional change of more than a point.

Columbia Gas & Electric obligations were subjected to renewed pressure on top of Friday's decline inspired by the filing of an anti-trust suit against the company by the Federal Government. The 5s of May, 1952, ended 1⅞ points lower at 94, the 5s of April dropped 3¼ to 93 on a single sale and the 5s of 1961 lost 2 at 92. Other utility loans held up well with trading interest low.

Warren Bros. 6s shot up another 4 points to 44 on talk heard the Cuban Government might soon take action looking toward meeting the company's claim against the republic for paving work. The bonds were in good demand Friday.

Other fairly strong spots included Hiram Walker 4½s, Alleghany stamped 5s, Armour 4s and Rock Island general 4s.

Holding stationary or yielding moderate sums were Illinois Central 4¾s, National Dairy 3¾s, St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s, Walworth 4s and Nickel Plate 4½s.

U. S. Governments barely moved. Declines up to 5-32ds of a point were shown by one or two longer term treasuries but the majority held about unchanged.

The foreign dollar list was bolstered considerably by a fresh demand for German Government and private loans, all of which were higher on the day as were the two Japanese Government bonds.

Transfers of $3,259,175 compared with $3,776,000 last Saturday.

NEAR MONTHS DELIVERIES OF COTTON RULE STEADY

By the Associated Press.

is destined to be swallowed by desert and jungle."

About half of our 610,000,000 acres of crop land has been touched by erosion, and 100,000,000 acres, equivalent to two large mid-Western states, have been ruined for cultivation. Another 180,000,000 acres of forest and miscellaneous land have been virtually destroyed. "It is easy to say," remarks Coyle, "that if the soil is washed away science can grow food and clothes in tanks. But where will you get the chemicals to put in the tanks?"

Nitrogen and potassium offer no serious problems, but phosphorus is a different matter. Out of some 3,000,000 tons mined annually in this country, one-third is sold abroad, all of it permanently lost to the national capital. Wherever cattle are pastured and sold off the land, there come to be areas deficient in phosphorus, while the animals are stricken with diseases such as "creeps" and "brittle-bone." The Falkland Islands, Coyle reports, have exported sheep for only 40 years, but the soil has grown so exhausted that normal horses transferred there breed down to the size of ponies. English race horses taken to Australia, another sheep-exporting country, soon lose their speed.

Several "ghost towns" in devastated forest lands of Michigan, Louisiana and Oregon are contrasted by the author with Crossett, Ark., which has been flourishing for 35 years. The difference, he explains, is simple. In one case the annual cut was greater than the yearly growth, and in the other it was less. In Crossett there was real engineering; income was income, and not liquidation of capital. But 80 per cent of our good timber is still under private ownership, and is being destroyed as of old.

Results of Shelterbelt.

It is a curious fact, Coyle says, that most people regard the Government's shelterbelt project on the Great Plains as "just another failure." If God grew no trees on the prairie, they ask, how can man put them there? The answer, he says, is that trees cannot grow on the plains from seeds, because the ground dries farther down than first-year roots can reach; but if they are started in nurseries and transplanted after the roots are long enough to reach below the bone-dry surface layer, they will prosper. The Government, in three years, planted 6500 miles of trees in this region, some of which are now 25 feet high. The plains need 220,000 miles of shelterbelt to provide tracts suitable for farming, and the Forest Service would like to plant 11,000 miles a year.

It would cost less to protect our forest resources than to support hundreds of communities left destitute by their destruction. Coyle tells of 82 families in Northern Wisconsin which in five years have cost $87,000 for relief, "leaving them no better off at the end than at the beginning." He adds that "the one family not on relief is that of the tavern keeper."

Technology he describes as being like fire, "a useful slave that cannot be trusted." The time has come, he says, to be more wary and to study where the dangers lie in the use of these unaccustomed powers. As an engineer, he approves of betterments in mechanical efficiency, but holds that "the only way to avoid being badly burned seems to be to improve greatly the distribution of national income, so that the products of technology will be widely scattered among the people."

Misuse of Savings.

Most of the depressions in our history, according to the author, were due to misuse of savings. He defines a boom as a period of unsound investment, and a depression as a period during which these investments are wiped out. Classic examples of Government misuse of savings are found in the acts of Alexander Hamilton and Andrew Mellon, both Secretaries of the Treasury. Each proceeded, by means of taxes, to the rapid repayment of a war debt. Thus a disproportionate amount of public income was inverted from the goods to the bond market. In each case there followed a runaway boom in securities, and its inevitable collapse.

"The influence of accumulated money," we are told, "seems to be more and more important as an underlying cause of business fluctuations." During good times savings grow to an amount which business is unable profitably to absorb. The traditional method has been to destroy the surplus by permitting panics to run their course. But now we must "look for less painful and dangerous ways of distributing our excess savings."

One method is to employ taxation as an instrument for transferring money from the rich to the poor, who have the largest "propensity to consume." To enable them to indulge this propensity, the poor must be relieved from insecurity, which may be best accomplished through social insurance.

How the Farmers Harass Japanese In North China

farmers who are forced to patrol the railways at night and threatened with death unless they report the demolition work of the Guerrillas. In many places, however, this system has proved a boomerang. The farmers report, all right, after they have helped the Guerillas destroy the tracks.

Use of Torch Increases Sabotage.

The Japanese threatened to burn the nearest village every time the tracks were torn up, but after burning more than 200 villages south of Peiping, they found that sabotage had increased. In Shantung, they use searchlights at some stations, but this system is prohibitively costly and impractical where villages are more than five miles apart.

In Shansi I was told that the Japanese offered a reward of $5, Chinese money, for the return of every rail removed and buried by Guerrillas, but the few farmers who yielded to this temptation to earn easy money were executed as traitors by their neighbors.

The basic weakness of the Japanese in defending the railways is their insufficient garrison strength, and their unwillingness to risk casualties by venturing from their fortresses at night.

Masquerading as the Enemy.

Masquerading as enemy soldiers is perhaps the most-often successful of the tricks used by the Chinese.

The remnants of a Chinese dare-to-die corps, which had scaled the walls and fought their way to the center of the Southwestern Hopei town of Pingshan on the night of July 7, faced annihilation when Japanese reinforcements arrived the next morning. Donning uniforms removed from Japanese bodies piled around them, 24 Chinese walked in single file past Japanese sentries, up the city wall ramp, and lowered themselves to safety on the outside before the ruse was discovered.

Every Guerrilla headquarters visited had at least 100 Japanese outfits, complete from steel helmets to leather boots. The deception is often heightened by Chinese officers speaking excellent Japanese.

Although Chinese guerrillas frequently risk death by entering Japanese encampments in this manner, they run greater risks when returning to their own lines. A near disaster occurred a few months ago in Shansa, when Eighth Route Army Gen. Lin Piao and 600 of his men, all garbed as Japanese and riding Japanese cavalry horses, were returning from a sortie in enemy territory. The masqueraders were ambushed by Chinese guerrillas and a number were wounded, including Gen. Lin.

Japanese Poor Masqueraders.

Japanese soldiers have also tried the masquerading trick, but with indifferent success, for Chinese say it is easy to spot a Japanese by the characteristic swaggering shuffle acquired in childhood as a result of wearing wooden sandals.

The Japanese have been more successful in deceiving the Chinese by filling trucks with uniformed rubber dummies, thus increasing the apparent guard strength of motor caravans.

Both sides in this war have tried the old trick of tapping wires and stealing codes. During the first six months of fighting, the Japanese were continuously in possession of Chinese Eighth Route Army codes, stolen by Chinese agents in Japanese employ. All these agents have now meen liquidated.

A telephone ruse is one of the most effective employed by the Chinese. A Japanese-speaking Chinese officer taps a Japanese telephone line and informs the headquarters at "A" that a garrison at "B" is desperately in need of reinforcements. When the reinforcements try to march from "A" to "B" they are held up by a demolished bridge, and ambushed. Shansi guerrillas claim from 200 to 1000 Japanese victims each time they use this trick.

Joining Enemy to Beat Him.

Another guerrilla stratagem is their manner of connivance with the so-called "traitor armies"—Chinese bands nominally helping the Japanese. Thirty thousands of these Chinese mercenaries are scattered throughout Hopei and Shansi.

In late June, I had a chance to observe the manner of this collusion, when 300 Japanese assisted by 500 mercenaries occupied the city of Ankuo after a 24-hour battle. This looked like a serious defeat for the guerrillas, until I was allowed to move up with the 4000 guerrillas who encircled the town they had apparently lost.

Out to the villages around Ankuo, the mercenaries gave frequent intelligence reports, telling the guerrillas where and how the Japanese were going to attempt sorties and other information which enabled the guerrillas to pull off eight ambushes which cost the Japanese half of their strength.

On the sixth night a mercenary brought news that the food supplies were exhausted, and that the Japanese were preparing to retreat after burning the town. Trying to slip away in the darkness, the Japanese were ambushed and their 50 cartloads of loot taken from them. In the confusion, a few Japanese escaped with their lives.

Next day I asked one of the mercenaries why he and his fellows were assisting the enemy.

"For two good reasons," he said. "Firstly, the Japanese give us food and $20 a month: secondly, we can fight for China by living inside the Japanese camp."

ROEMER MEMORIAL SERVICE

Exercises at 4 P. M. Today at Lindenwood College, St. Charles.

A memorial service for Mrs. Lillie P. Roemer, wife of President John L. Roemer of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, and for 24 years dean of the college, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Roemer Auditorium at the college. A new $200,000 building, to be erected in the next nine months, is to bear the name of Mrs. Roemer, whose $100,000 estate, left to her husband, was given by him to the building fund. Mrs. Roemer died Aug. 19.

The Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling of Webster Groves will make the chief address at the memorial exercises. Dean Alice E. Gipson will preside.

Designed by Beverley T. Nelson, architect, the new building will be similar in architecture to the recently completed Forsythe Walk structures, erected by the Income Investment Co.

Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the negotiations incident to the purchase of the lot, which was owned by interests represented by the Stud-Wilson Development Co.

A. C. HOEHN UNOPPOSED FOR EXCHANGE HEAD

Contest for Directorate Promises to Be Battle Royal With 13 Nominees.

The stage is set for the annual election of officers of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, scheduled to be held Tuesday, Nov. 15. A president and six directors will be chosen.

Arthur C. Hoehn, vice-president of Henry R. Weisels Co., so far, is the only nominee for the presidency of the Exchange. He is now first vice-president of the organization.

The contest for the directorate promises to be a battle royal. Thirteen nominations have been made for the directorate, as follows: H. Grant Barngrove, Ralph D'Oench, Chester A. Doerflinger, William Eichenser, Ben C. Finke, Joseph A. Goeke, Oliver F. Hannauer, J. Melvin Levi, Arthur A. Schneider, Whitelaw T. Terry, Edward M. Thornhill, Edward C. Wagner and Ancel A. Skaggs. There is still time for further nominations.

Edward L. Kuhs is the retiring president.

JOHN S. HARRIS TO BE HERE FOR LUNCHEON TOMORROW

John S. Harris, vice-president of Properties, Inc., real estate subsidiary of the Citizens' National Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles, Cal., will mingle with old realty friends at a luncheon to be given tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson.

Guests will include Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, Maj. James L. Barngrove, Edward A. Bokern Sr., Edward A. Bokern Jr., W. W. Butts, Charles J. Daly, L. Sturgis Day, John J. Dowling, Chester A. Dougherty, Frank J. Dougherty, Edward L. Kuhs, Clarence C. Lang, C. M. McDonald, Gerald B. O'Reilly, Jos. M. O'Reilly, Eugene Ruth, Albert T. Terry, Claude E. Vrooman, N. S. Wood, Henry R. Weisels and Cyrus C. Willmore.

Prior to going to Los Angeles Harris was an aggressive figure in the St. Louis realty field. Specializing in subdivision properties, he launched Hillcrest, a residential development lying west of Forest Park, and North Parkview Addition, formerly comprising the old Delmar race track. He also acted as an agent for the purchase of property necessary for the right-of-way of the Manufacturers' Railway. He is a brother of the late Fletcher R. Harris, with whome he was originally associated in the real estate business here.

Harris will attend the realtors' convention in Milwaukee with the St. Louis delegation.

A. T. & WHITELAW TERRY OPEN BRANCH IN CLAYTON

A. T. & Whitelaw Terry, realtors, have established a branch office at 8025 Forsythe boulevard in Clayton, in order to facilitate the handling of its county business. Established 65 years ago by the late Judge John H. Terry and Samuel S. Scott, the concern is one of the best known in the city.

Besides A. T. and Whitelaw Terry, the personnel of the concern includes Mrs. Earl M. Connor, Mrs. Arthur H. Feuerbacher Jr., Asa C. Jones, Mrs. Martin Lammert III, Mrs. Frederick H. Riesmeyer, Robert B. Rodgers, and Mrs. Charles E. Swingley.

LITZSINGER ROAD ESTATE PURCHASED

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Guy Buy House With Three Acres on North Side, East of Warson.

The Colonial residence of Mrs. William E. Baird, with a three-acre site, on the north side of Litzsinger road, just east of Warson road, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. William Edwin Guy. There were $40 in internal revenue stamps on the warranty deed, indicating a consideration of $40,000. Guy is an attorney.

The house was built in 1926-27 by the late William E. Baird, who was vice-president of the International Shoe Co., from plans by Study & Farrar, architects.

The first floor consists of living room, dining room, sunroom, kitchen, pantry, screened porch and terrace. On the second floor there are five bedrooms, three baths and maids' quarters.

Exterior walls are of wide clapboards, which, instead of being laid in the usual manner, lapping over one another, are laid flush. The windows are of the Colonial type with small panes of glass and traditional green blinds and shutters. The house is long and low, and, viewed from every angle, seems to hug the ground.

The roof is of old-fashioned hand split shingles. The entrance hall contains open circular staircases of graceful proportions and detail. The large living room, with fireplace at one end, has both ends paneled, and a low paneled wainscot running around the two sides. The wall above this wainscot is covered with hand-blocked Colonial paper.

A simple treatment is used in the dining room, with an introduction of quaint china cabinets at either end of the room. One of the few places where the house departs from the Colonial mansion is in the addition of a modern sunroom. This room, however, has been designed with its walls covered with lattice, so as to give something of the effect of old lattice tea house or garden pavilions found in many of the old New England estates.

Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.

PUBLISHERS GET MORE SPACE WITH NEW LEASE

Taking over additional space, Charles C. Spink & Son, publishers, have renewed the lease on their present quarters on the fourth floor of the building on the southwest corner of Tenth and Olive streets.

The company, which publishes The Sporting News, national baseball weekly, and The Sporting Goods Dealer, a monthly trade magazine, has occupied its present quarters for approximately 25 years. Founded in 1886 by the late Charles C. Spink, the firm now is headed by his son, J. G. Taylor Spink.

The renewal of the lease was made through Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, agents for the One Thousand Olive Corporation.

YOU PAY FOR Quality LUMBER Why Not Get It?
You can't reduce cost by buying cheap, unseasoned lumber. It costs as much in construction, because it is harder to work with and consumes more labor time. It costs more after construction because it shrinks, creating plaster cracks, squeaky floors and open joints. So you pay for quality lumber even if you don't buy it. For this reason, dry, on-grade lumber obviously is the best selection to make. The surest way to get dry, on-grade lumber is to buy it from Goodfellow where you get a 100-year written guarantee.

HOLC MATTERS TO BE DISCUSSED BY REALTORS

age company, will take part in the panel discussion. As previously announced, Edward A. MacDougall, New York, president of the Queensboro Corporation and chairman of the association's committee on real estate finance, will talk on amendments which may be advisable to present Federal legislation in the field. Earle G. Krumrine, Chicago, president of the National Mortgage Council, will preside.

Real estate license laws, now in effect in 32 states covering nearly 70 per cent of the country's population, and administration of these laws to protect the public against irresponsible and incompetent real estate agents, will be discussed not only in the association's states council but also in the annual convention of real estate license law officials which will meet Nov. 10 in connection with the realtors' convention.

Enactment of a real estate license law is expected to be considered before coming sessions of the state legislatures of at least four states.

R. V. Field to Lead Discussions.

Ralph V. Field, M. A. I., Galesburg, Ill., chairman of the Real Estate License Committee of Illinois' Department of Education and Registration, will lead the discussion on license laws in sessions of this states' council. J. Mortimer Clark, Sacramento, Cal., as president of the National Association of License Law Officials, will preside at its session.

Valuation of retail store properties, which will be one of the principal topics before the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, will be discussed by Morris Goldfarb, M. A. I., of Jacobson and Goldfarb, Perth Amboy, N. J.

Glenn D. Willaman, executive secretary of the California Real Estate Association, will address the states' council on the administration of a state real estate association. Paul S. Bomberger, Modesto, Cal., for seven years chairman of a committee of the California Real Estate Association on rates, rules and customs, will address both the states' council and the secretaries' council on the work this committee has done.

Charles F. Noyes, who recently mutualized his New York real estate company, and who himself has purchased some 100 buildings in New York City within the last two years, has been invited to address the general convention session on "Why I am Investing in Real Estate Today."

INSURANCE AGENCY HEAD BUYS CLAYTON ROAD TRACT

Approximately 20 acres on the south side of Clayton road, 1500 feet west of Ballas road, has been acquired by Joseph F. Hickey, president of the Mercantile Insurance Agency. The seller was a client of Duke-Young, Inc., which had only recently acquired it.

REALTY BOND PRICES REGISTER SHARP GAIN

As Shown by 200 Issues the Average Appreciation Was 2.2 Pct. in October.

A sharp increase in real estate bond prices during the month of October brought the average price of these securities above the 1937 close for the first time since January. According to the Amott-Baker average, which is based upon the market action of 200 representative issues, prices rose 2.2 per cent in October. This brings the present average price 0.6 per cent above the price on Dec. 31, 1937.

In the classification by type of building hotel issues show the greatest progress with an average increase of 6.5 per cent for the year to date. War would have been detrimental to a successful fair and detrimental to hotels which will benefit from world's fair business.

Apartment hotels are up 4.7 per cent this year. Theater issues closely follow with an increase of 4.0 per cent. Housekeeping apartments are down 6.5 per cent. Perhaps the most encouraging feature of this month's study is the broad nature of the rise. Of the 200 bond issues 102 rose in October, 56 remained unchanged and only 42 declined. In September only 53 issues rose and 87 declined.

A large two-story tenement building at the southwest corner of Montgomery and Coleman streets, owned by the Thomas M. Sayman Investment Co., has been purchased by Emily Hoke. It contains 15 flats with a store on the corner. The lot is 92 by 129 feet.

The building is opposite the old Mullanphy Hospital, now used as a home for the aged, and is about a half block east of Grand boulevard.

The real estate department of the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. handled the transaction. The Sayman Co. is a holding company for the Sayman estate, of which the bank is co-executor.

CHRISTMAN SCORES ON PLUNGE IN LAST PERIOD

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 5. — The University of Missouri cracked a battered Michigan State defense for a touchdown in the fourth quarter and weathered a stormy last-minute Spartan attack to gain a 6-0 victory today in an intersectional football game.

Approximately 10,000 spectators saw the Missourians open the fourth period touchdown drive that gave them their first victory over the Spartans in three years of rivalry.

Paul Christman, the Tigers' sophomore passing artist, started Missouri's touchdown attack with a long pass from his own 29-yard line to Stillman Rouse, who caught the ball on his 43-yard line. As Spartan tacklers pulled him down, he lateralled to Orf, who carried to the Michigan State 30-yard line.

Counsil Helps.

Miron Counsil, substitute fullback playing in place of injured Clarence Hydron, shot through the Spartan line on a reverse for a first down on the 16-yard line. Christman then set the stage for the touchdown with a pass to Clay Cooper on the nine-yard line.

Cooper and Counsil punched the defense for a yard each, and Christman broke the right side of the Michigan State line for seven yards and the score. Les Pieper's place kick was wide.

The Spartans came right back with a desperate rally that carried the ball to the Missouri 20-yard line, including a long run by John Pingel, Michigan State's triple-threat halfback.

Passes by Pingel failed to function and Missouri took the ball on its own 14-yard line and moved it out of danger.

Most of the first half was played in Michigan State territory with a brilliant Tiger running offense consistently breaking through the Spartan line.

The Tigers' first scoring opportunity came in the second quarter when Christman started a drive on his own 18-yard line by skirting left end for six yards.

Counsil used his 190 pounds to carry the ball to the Michigan State 48. A pass from Christman to Stillman Rouse and a plunge by Counsil brought the Tigers to the 23. Jim Starmer knifed the line for a first down on the 19-yard line.

After Counsil broke through for a first down on the six, the Spartans' defense tightened, and they took the ball on the two-yard line to end the drive.

Starmer Intercepts Pass.

The Spartans came back strong in the third quarter with a running and aerial attack sparked by Gerald Drake, substitute 165-pound halfback. A weak punt by Christman placed the ball on Missouri's 29. Drake peppered two passes to Bruce Blackburn that netted a first down on the 13-yard line. Drake plunged to the 10, but on the next play Jim Starmer intercepted a pass to end the threat.

Passing of both teams fell far below the standard they made up in previous games this season. The Tigers completed only four passes out of 13, and the Spartans six out of 24.

Christman, as usual, sparked the Missouri offense although an injury in the third quarter slowed him down. The Tigers bottled up Pingel during the first half but he broke loose with a series of passes and runs in the last two periods that kept the Missourians reeling.

Kinnison's great line play was an important factor in breaking up the 24 passes attempted by Michigan State and keeping the Tiger center line defense tight.

Flyers Lose Opening Game of Hockey League Season to Tulsa, 2-0

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., Nov. 5.—The St. Louis Flyers, defending champions of the American Hockey Association, started off their 1938-39 season in poor fashion here tonight, losing to the Tulsa Oilers, 2 to 0, before a crowd of 4500.

The game was characterized by lack of team-play and the Oilers' scores came about because of slip-ups in the Missourians' defense at the blue line.

Scotty Martin, bronze-skinned Indian, who is an Oiler forward, broke into the scoring column after 17:57 of the second period. Martin out-maneuvered Carbol and Matte and feinted Nelson out of position to score. Gross and Purpur, in the penalty box at the time, were released seconds later. Dyck laced home another Tulsa counter in the last minute of the period, 19:42, to be exact. Little Hank took a pass from Wakeford at the blue line and beat Nelson from 30 feet out.

Robust Porky Levine saved at least four would-be St. Louis scores in the final period and once dived 20 feet in front of his net to fall on a loose puck.

Levine Stops Charges.

The Flyers sent five down midway of the period when Walt Creasey tripped Hap Harnott. Purpur, Hudson, Hergerts, Pusie and Kendall peppered Levine constantly but couldn't penetrate Porky's tight defense. St. Louis got another break with five minutes left when Williams was assessed two minutes for holding. But again Johnny MacKinnon's men failed to muster a scoring punch.

Three minutes remained when the Flyers lost their last opportunity. Billy Kendall and Hank Dyck ran into each other and Referee Trapp expelled the pair. Billy became enraged and his motions caused Trapp to add a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

After a scoreless, penalty-less

Louis vs. Lewis.

THEY'VE quit talking about that Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis fight and settled down to business. Their 15-round battle, set for Jan. 27 at Madison Square Garden, should end two years of argument as to whether Lightheavyweight Champion Lewis' skill would offset World Heavyweight Champion Louis' advantage in weight and punch.

John Henry is a very cagey fighter but he will be very much on the long end of the betting odds, no doubt. The best way to view this affair is in the light of the matchmaking of Uncle Mike Jacobs and Joe Louis' managers.

If John Henry had a real chance to whip Joe Louis, he wouldn't have been given this match, which can draw only a comparatively small financial gate, due to limited seating accommodations.

Louis has been promised half a million dollars for a fight on the Pacific Coast next April with the title at stake. Picture his contract holders taking a chance to lose this for a fight which may gross one-fifth of that amount? It doesn't make sense.

You conclude that everybody involved thinks Louis will retain his title; and that John Henry Lewis figures that by boxing Louis he will get the losing end of the biggest gate he ever attracted and still have a title if beaten. John Henry is thoroughly discouraged over his lightheavyweight gleanings. Only 4000 turned out to see him battle Al Gainer, a pretty tough rival, in a championship battle.

A good fighter himself, the almost complete lack of colorful opponents except among the Negroes who do not draw, has tied up his earning possibilities. He'll make more money out of the losing end of a fight with Louis than in five defenses of his light-

RUTGERS BEATS PRINCETON; ONLY TIME SINCE 1869

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 5.—Rutgers scored a 20 to 18 football victory over Princeton today—the first for the Scarlet over the Tigers since the two universities inaugurated the intercollegiate game in 1869.

While the bell in the Old Queens on Rutgers' historic campus pealed out in victory, students snake-danced over the field of their new million dollar stadium and tore down the goal posts to be splintered later into souvenirs.

In the capacity crowd of 22,500 was George H. Large of Flemington, a member of the first Rutgers team of 25 side-whiskered students who invited 25 Princeton men to that original intercollegiate game and won six goals to four.

Coming from behind twice Rutgers surged over for the winning touchdown in the last quarter after capitalizing on a break. Hotchkiss, Rutgers center, recovered a fumble on the Tiger 12-yard line. Three plays later Mullen took a pass over the goal line from Art Gottlieb and Walt Bruyere place-kicked the extra point.

Princeton dominated most of the play in the first half. Jack Daniel tallied for the Tiger midway in the first quarter. Three minutes later Rutgers took the lead after Gottlieb ran a punt back 50 yards to the Princeton 40-yard line. A 33-yard pass, Gottlieb to Parker Staples, brought the ball into position and Bill Tranavitch went over from the one-yard line. Len Cooke booted the extra point.

Princeton scored twice in the second quarter.

Rutgers gained its second touchdown on a one-yard buck by Herman Grief, substitute back, a minute before the first half closed. The score came after an 83-yard march.

N. DAME, UNDER WRAPS, TAKES THE NAVY, 15-0

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5. — Notre Dame's greatest football team since the last glorious 1930 model, turned out by Knute Rockne, rolled over hapless, outclassed Navy, 15-0, today as a capacity throng of 62,000 half-soaked spectators wondered what the score really could have been if Coach Elmer Layden hadn't hooked the leash on his touchdown makers.

It was a sad, wet day for the Middies, long one of the most dangerous foes of the fighting Irish. If some of their pass receivers, who had 31 forwards pitched to them during the alternately exciting and uninteresting game, had reached a bit higher the score might have been close. But the Irish secondary, as alert as the forward wall was strong, broke up the aerial bombardment and then sailed down the field with touchdown thrusts in the second and third periods to clinch the victory.

Look at the Figures.

Statistics very often lie and today they did just that. While they gave Navy 11 first downs to Notre Dame's 6 and 127 yards gained from rushing to 150 for the Irish, the game was far from close. From the very start, the spectators expected a football slaughter. It wasn't quite that but it could have been if Layden hadn't used his second team to start. Before it was all over, the third team was on the field, forcing a safety for the final Irish score.

Navy, now twice beaten and twice tied as against a clean slate for the Irish, threatened several times. Twice it had a chance, once on the Irish three and again on the enemy three-yard line, only to miss heart-breaking passes.

Notre Dame, outplayed in the first period which saw the Middies fail in a field goal attempt after reaching the Irish three-yard stripe, struck with its first team midway

CARNEGIE TECH OUTPLAYS PITT AND WINS, 20-10

By the Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 5.—A valiant band of Carnegie Tech gridmen rose up today to pull mighty Pittsburgh from atop the nation's football perch and accomplish a feat other teams from coast to coast have been trying unsuccessfully to do for two years. Pittsburgh was beaten, 20 to 10.

The Tartans, 3-1 short enders in the Silver Anniversary meeting of the neighboring schools, made the famed Pitt forward wall look like a pile of cards and the three piledrivers in Carnegie's backfield, Merlyn Condit, Ray Carnelly and George Muha, plunged and drove furiously to accomplish the unbelievable.

The game left most of the huge throng of 61,000 in the big hilltop saucer stunned. It was crammed with thrills from the minute Curly Stebbins took the opening kickoff and ran 97 yards for a Panther touchdown until the final seconds, when the desperate Panthers took to the airlanes.

Tartan courage bested Panther prowess. Any other club might have taken it lying down after that heart-breaking (for Carnegie) dash of Stebbins. But six minutes later, Condit faded to Pitt's 33-yard line and looped a high pass over the goal to Muha.

Daddio Boots Field Goal.

Carnelly's placekick tied the score. A few plays later in the same first period, Bill Daddio, who rarely misses, booted a neat field goal from the Carnegie 12-yard line, sending the Panthers in front again.

That was the Panthers' final tally of the game and the signal for an inspired Tartan eleven to start clicking.

With seconds to go before the whistle ended the half, Coach Bill Kern of the Tartans, one-time assistant to Jock Sutherland at Pitt, shot Karl Striegel, end, into the

PARKER HALL KICKS DECIDING EXTRA POINTS

St. Louis U. First to Score, on Spectacular Play in Which McGonnigle Passes to Denny Cochran; Hartle Misses Conversions.

By J. Roy Stockton

St. Louis University's football team played its best game in many years at Walsh Memorial Stadium yesterday afternoon, and while two missed placement kicks by Johnny Hartle, the extra point specialist, forced the blue-clad Billikens to bow to the University of Mississippi, 14 to 12, a crowd of 8429 persons went home happy in the feeling that after all there was such a thing as a moral victory.

It was no small job the Billikens did as they stopped the highly regarded warriors of Ole Miss. They were meeting a team that had beaten Louisiana State easily and the best that anybody hoped for was that Coach Cecil Muellerleile's team might hold the stalwart enemy to a low score. But instead of that the Billikens took the upper hand with a spectacular touchdown, manufactured literally out of impending disaster, and at the finish were throwing a scare into the surprised warriors from down South.

It has been a long time since a harder-fighting team or a rougher one than the Ole Miss machine has performed on a local gridiron. Its tackles were deadly and the blocking was headlong and vicious. But the Billikens met the visitors at their own game and at the finish were threatening to overcome the narrow margin that stood in the way of a surprise victory.

While the statistics show that Ole Miss outscrimmaged the Billikens, 198 yards to 63, and made a dozen first downs to St. Louis' seven, Muellerleile's team found much comfort in having played a smart game, in which alertness and courage enabled it to hold a superior enemy to such a narrow margin of triumph.

Skirmish at Final Gun.

It was a rough and rugged battle, the enemy was penalized heavily for unnecessary roughness during the final quarter, and when the time-keeper signalled that the game was at an end, it seemed that the contending teams were going to disregard the signal and carry in an old-fashioned donnybrook. A St. Louis pass was knocked down as the pistol barked and when a Billiken fell on the ball, several of the Ole Miss warriors leaped for him and tried to wrestle the football, a trophy of victory, away from him. Billikens converged on the scene of extra battle, but the officials interfered and peace was restored and the football turned over to the victors.

Mel McGonnigle, the hardluck back of the Billiken squad, and Denny Cochran, loose-legged ball carrier, were the heroes of the touchdown that put the Billikens out in front early in the struggle and ultimately enabled them to make the score so close.

Fred Quint recovered a Mississippi fumble early in the first period and the Billikens put the ball in play on their 44-yard line. A McGonnigle pass, intended for Cochran, was ruled complete because of interference and St. Louis was only 35 yards from a touchdown. The going was tough, however, and after two plays saw the Bills shoved back six yards, McGonnigle faded back, as though to pass and then started an end run. Trouble confronted him in the form of stalwart Mississippi tacklers and Mel reversed his field, narrowly avoiding being thrown to the turf, and started toward the other side of the field.

He still was hemmed in by Ole Miss defenders, but the drawn-out tactics by this time had drawn all Mississippi players toward the scene of immediate action. Out of the corner of his eye McGonnigle saw a group of blue-clad comrades down field and, quick as a flash, warding off would-be tacklers, he fired a long pass toward the downfield group. Denny Cochran sped toward the flying football, took it in his arms and with a fine escort raced happily over the remaining stripes of the gridiron to put the Billikens ahead and send the surprised student body and alumni into a frenzy of cheers.

It was an accident perhaps, but it was a fine play, nevertheless. It showed alertness, an ability to seize

WULFEMEYER STARS BUT CENTRAL LOSES TO M'KINLEY, 20-12

CLEVELAND IS 6 TO 0 VICTOR OVER ROOSEVELT

Red-Haired Star of Red and Black Eleven Figures Prominently in Both of Losers' Tallies.

It might have been Paul Christman or Davey O'Brien or Sid Luckman throwing passes yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium, but students at Central High School recognized him as a classmate, Kenneth Wulfemeyer, who was a veritable catapault although his team lost, 20 to 12, to McKinley's Goldbugs.

One touchdown thrust in the second period gave Cleveland a 6 to 0 decision over Roosevelt in the second contest.

Wulfemeyer, a slim, red-haired boy, gave the Central backers a few moments of cheer as the Red and Black eleven went down to its third City High School League defeat. Wulfemeyer set up both touchdowns and scored the second himself.

Leo Milla Was There, Too.

Rivaling Wulfemeyer's performance was Leo Milla of McKinley, who, with Ed Stehlik, figured prominently in the three Goldbug touchdowns. An intercepted pass by Christy of McKinley put the Goldbugs in position to score in the first period. A lateral from Stehlik to Martin was good for 15 yards and a touchdown. Milla plunged over for the extra point.

Wulfemeyer then began making his presence felt and a toss to Leo Klos enabled the latter to run 40 yards over McKinley's goal line. Klos failed to convert.

McKinley then marched from its own 35-yard line with Stehlik sparking the drive and Milla went over in the second quarter for the touchdown and added the extra point to give the Goldbugs a 14 to 6 lead at the half.

Milla, Then Wulfemeyer.

Following a scoreless third period, the Goldbugs counted again in the final session with Milla going over for his second touchdown. Wulfemeyer once more swung into action, a pass to Klos putting Central on McKinley's 30-yard line and another to Douglas Dobbins moving the Red and Black to the four-yard mark. From there Wulfemeyer lugged the ball across for the final touchdown of the afternoon.

The victory was McKinley's first in three starts.

An intercepted pass started Cleveland on the way to its second victory in three league games. Ray Meadows intercepted Bob Osterholt's pass and the Cleveland back ran to Roosevelt's 18-yard line as the first period closed.

Then, in the second session, Cleveland moved to the seven-yard line from where Clarence Bockhorst went over. Mills' pass to Bockhurst for the extra point was incomplete.

heavyweight championship, a division which he is finding it hard to qualify for, in weight.

This One Will Draw.

PROMOTERS FOR YEARS have sidestepped arranging fights for the heavyweight championship of the world between Negroes. The last one took place in Paris just about 25 years ago (Dec. 19, 1913) when the exiled-from-home Jack Johnson fought the tough Battling Jim Johnson in Paris, France. It resulted in a draw.

While Jack Johnson held the title, no promoter in this country was willing to take a chance on the show. But in Europe, where race lines were not so rigidly drawn, they thought more liberally about it. The National Sporting Club of London had signed Johnson to a contract to fight Sam Langford over there but Johnson reconsidered the match, after beating Tommy Burns in Australia, and sidestepped it.

Bouts between Negroes, however able the fighters, drew only small houses, in the past. In a day which saw five Negro heavyweights of real quality in the field, no important money developed in any of their matches. These heavies, who fought contemporaneously, were Sam Langford, Harry Wills, Sam McVea, Joe Jeanette and Jack Johnson, who held the title from 1910 to 1915.

Famous men, all. Four of them fought together repeatedly, but for receipts that would seem pitiful for men of their caliber today.

The Louis-Lewis fight, however, should pull out the dollars. Many ring fans have expressed the view that John Henry's cleverness and his speed of hand and foot would be too much for Joe. They will pay to see the boys settle the dispute in the ring, if the ante isn't too high.

At any rate, the event may determine the value of all-Negro fight features for the future. If this one proves to be a flop, they might as well give up trying such promotions.

What Did Sothoron Do?

ALLAN SOTHORON made many friends during his major-league baseball career here and they are somewhat mystified by reference to his being on his way out as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers. One of his supporters writes: "Just what did Allan do to arouse so much opposition? Outwardly he seems to have done well with the team and to have made money for his club."

To answer that we'll have to quote a Milwaukee sports editor, R. G. Lynch, who wrote the following just after Milwaukee was eliminated in the American Association playoffs:

"Sothoron has practically forced the club to remove him. This opinion is based on Sothoron's mistakes of this season, his reluctance to give young players a chance, his inattention to business and his exhibitions in the third base coaching box, which caused comments—and even complaints—by fans here and elsewhere.

"The most glaring example occurred at St. Paul, the night of Sept. 21, when Milwaukee needed one more victory to win the play-off series from the Saints. The manager did not get to the park until 10 minutes after the game started and was not on the field when Buck Marrow, Milwaukee's starting pitcher, was hammered for six runs in the first two innings. He did not appear until the third inning, when the game already was lost beyond saving.

"Milwaukee finished with a fighting team after a floundering start, due, at least in part, to ill-advised decisions by its manager. The players finally found themselves, breaks forced Sothoron to make changes which helped and the team battled its way into the post-season playoffs. The players deserve unusual credit, because they accomplished this under the handicap of doubtful, sometimes befuddled, leadership."

That's what they think of the matter in Milwaukee. What they haven't thought of is a way to break Sothoron's three-year contract and how to let him go without paying him two-thirds as much as the entire club cost them.

Just now Sothoron is sitting pretty with an ace in the hole and another ace showing.

Mississippi Is Hard Pressed To Beat St. Louis U., 14-12

Old Man Trouble by the beard and shake him into a profit, and spectators will remember that play and its unexpectedly happy culmination long after they have forgotten the score.

Lead Doesn't Last Long.

St. Louis' lead didn't last long. Ole Miss took the next kickoff and marched to a touchdown in business-like fashion, covering 66 yards by land and air to tie the score. Starting from the Mississippi 34-yard line, Parker Hall hit the center of the line for a first down and Jimmy Tillman found a hole at guard for eight and then plunged away until he had another first down on the Billiken 4-yard line. Hall then fell back and passed to Harvey (Ham) Murphy on the Billiken 18-yard line and followed with another pass to the same Murphy in the end zone for the touchdown. Hall place-kicked the extra point and Ole Miss was ahead, 7 to 6.

St. Louis then held the enemy in check through the rest of the half and the third period was scoreless, but early in the final quarter the visitors marched 62 yards to make the game safe. Denny Cochran kicked out of bounds on the Mississippi 38-yard line and the drive started.

Hall clipped off seven yards and Whittington four. Hall faked a pass and hit a gap in center for five yards. Hall tried it again and made six and it was another first down on the Billiken 28-yard line.

The Billikens were weary and limping and the stands felt that the narrow margin was about to be increased. Hall found another hole for 14 yards and Blackwell, a substitute, went around end for five. Hall was thrown for a loss of 11 yards trying to pass, but he fell back again and when the Billikens dropped back to break up a pass, he chose to run and did real well, advancing to the four-yard line. On fourth down, with a foot still remaining between pigskin and scoring chalk mark, Lehnhardt, another reserve, cut through the right side of the Billiken line for the important touchdown. Hall again converted and Ole Miss led, 14 to 6.

With about five minutes of the game remaining, the Billikens started their final scoring drive, a march of 63 yards. Roemer took a pass from Denny Cochran for an eight-yard gain and Gall, in at fullback, was stopped at the line. Denny Cochran also failed, but Denny then passed to Roemer and Roemer lateralled to Hagan for a gain of 17 yards. Ole Miss was fighting hard now, too hard in fact, and a penalty of 15 yards for roughness helped the Bills, putting the ball on the Mississippi 21-yard line. After line plays failed, the Billikens took to the air and a groan went up when Hall intercepted a pass near the end zone. The play was called back, however, and Ole Miss was penalized five yards for roughing the passer. This made it first down on the ten-yard line and after Harris made three at the line Denny Cochran passed to Gayer, who was downed a foot from pay soil. Gall then plunged over for the touchdown. Hartle again missed his placement kick and so the Mississippi margin was two points.

Hartle was about due for a bad day, however. Statisticians recalled that he kicked 11 out of 11 last year so his record is still good. But had that educated toe been in form against the boys from the South, the Mississippi Bubble really would have been burst.

Pike Kenney, captain of the great St. Louis U. eleven of 1906, was a spectator as the Billikens celebrated their fiftieth year of football by performing so courageously against Ole Miss.

It was announced after the game that St. Louis would meet Mississippi again next season in Oxford, Miss., Oct. 21, and the occasion will be the homecoming game for the Rebels.

De Paul, Billikens' Next Foe, Loses to Catholic U., 14-13

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.

A WHIRLWIND last-period attack led by Joe Guyon and Henry Brostek gave Catholic University of Washington, D. C., a 14-to-13 triumph over De Paul today, although the Blue Demons of Chicago had gone into the final quarter leading by two touchdowns.

Brostek ran seven yards around end for Catholic's first marker after De Paul had been forced to punt out from deep in its own territory. Guyon made runs of 36 and 21 yards and then went over from the one-yard line. In each instance Frank Cairo added the extra point on placement.

De Paul scored in the second and third quarters. An intercepted pass well within Catholic territory led to the first counter. Tom O'Brien went over on a 17-yard sprint through center. Roy Quaglia missed the kick for point. A 30-yard pass into the end zone from Ed Norris to Don Johnson brought the second De Paul touchdown.

St. Louis U. will meet De Paul next Saturday in Chicago.

NORTHWESTERN LOSES, 20 TO 13, TO WISCONSIN

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 5.—Wisconsin fired its bolt today and the explosion virtually shattered the dream of a Western Conference championship which Northwestern had prayed for after its conquest of Minnesota a week ago. The scrappy Badgers conquered the hitherto undefeated Northwestern eleven, 20 to 13.

A crowd of 37,000 watched the Badgers outscore the Wildcats in a sensational second half to register the stunning upset.

Big Howie Weiss, Wisconsin's fullback, registered Wisconsin's first touchdown soon after the start of the third period, galloping 40 yards to score. Ollie Hahnenstein, Northwestern's sophomore halfback, tackled him at the goal line, but it was too late. Gage booted the extra point from placement.

A few seconds later, the Badgers took Jefferson's punt on their 38-yard line. Gradisnik and Bellin smashed for two first downs, going to Northwestern's 30. Then Gradisnik stepped back and while on the run fired a 40-yard pass to Bellin, who caught the ball in the end zone. Gage failed to kick goal.

Then the Wildcats, who had been throttled, opened up with their only power drive of the game. Ryan returned the kickoff 35 yards to Northwestern's 45-yard line. McGurn broke through for 26 yards to Wisconsin's 29. Smashes by McGurn, Ryan, and a pass carried the ball to Wisconsin's nine-yard line. Then Ryan rifled a pass, which was deflected by York, Badger back, into the hands of Grefe, who made a sensational juggling catch for the score. The goal kick failed.

The Badgers smashed right back. Gavre caught Jefferson's punt and raced back to Northwestern's 12-yard line. After Bellin picked up two yards, the Wildcats were penalized five for offside. From this point Schmitz passed to Bellin in the corner of the end zone. Hovland kicked the extra point, making the score Wisconsin 20, and Northwestern 6.

The game, brim full of excitement, reached its heights a few seconds later when Jefferson, Northwestern's Negro halfback, took Hovland's kickoff, and ran 92 yards down the sideline for a touchdown. Conteas kicked the goal.

The Badgers, now gunning for at least a slice of the conference championship, showed their superiority by scoring 11 first downs to six for Northwestern and outrushing the Cats, 101 to 88 yards. They completed five of 12 passes for 64 yards, two of them good for touchdowns, while the Wildcats made good three out of 13 for 27 yards.

Purdue Ruins Big Ten Hopes of Ohio State.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5.—Purdue punctured the Buckeye bubble today, 12 to 0, virtually wrecking Ohio State's Western Conference title aspirations with a pair of last-period touchdown thrusts which left a crowd of 54,365 gasping.

Louis Brock, 185-pound junior fullback from Stafford, Kan., was the spearhead of the Boilermakers brigade, aided and abetted by a stalwart line and a couple of great running mates.

Minnesota Smashes Iowa U. Team, 28 to 0.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 5.—Tuning up for a comeback big against Notre Dame next Saturday, Minnesota smothered Iowa's hapless Hawkeyes, 28 to 0, before 42,000 persons today.

The Golden Gophers, still in the Big Ten title race by virtue of losses by Northwestern and Ohio State, won as they pleased, leading 14 to 0 at the half and using regulars sparingly.

Iowa never threatened, getting only four first downs to the victor's 19 and reaching Minnesota territory (the 41-yard line) only once.

CLAYTON WINS FROM ST. CHARLES HIGH, 19-0

Clayton High School's football team won its fourth victory in five starts when it defeated St. Charles last night, 19-0, at St. Charles.

Ed Gleitman scored the first touchdown from the 12-yard mark in the opening period. Stanley Koenig place kicked for the extra point. Gleitman hurled a 30-yard pass to Bob Wunsch for the second score in the following quarter, while Wunsch made an 80-yard run for the touchdown in the final period.

Fred Haney Due Here Today To Talk to Browns' Owners

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5. — Fred Haney, former major league player and for the past two seasons manager of the Toledo Mudhens, left here yesterday en route for St. Louis where he is due for a conference with the officials of the St. Louis Browns. Haney did not state whether the future management of the St. Louis club was to be the subject discussed.

Haney, who is 40 years of age, formerly played infield with the Detroit Tigers and was a member of the Cardinals in 1929. Managing the Toledo club in 1937, his team finished second. Last season he did not do so well with the Mudhens as they finished in second division.

The Toledo club, at the close of the season, offered to renew his contract as manager. He also turned down offers to serve as coach made by the Detroit and Cleveland clubs.

The Browns are in the field for a new manager and many applications for the position have been received by club officials, among them one from Babe Ruth and another from Allan Sothoron of the Milwaukee club.

President Barnes and Business Manager Bill De Witt report that they have not reached any decision in the matter and that they are still engaged in taking up the merits and possibilities of the various candidates for the post.

General Manager DeWitt of the Browns said yesterday that Haney had called the club's president, Donald Barnes, recently, asking for an interview here, today. Barnes told Haney he would be glad to see him.

New Manager?

FRED HANEY.

Haney, according to DeWitt, was in St. Louis in mid-September and said at that time that if the job as Browns' manager was open he would like to talk it over with club officials. Nothing further was heard from Haney until he telephoned the other day.

NOTRE DAME DEFEATS NAVY BY 15-0 SCORE in the second period, scoring on a bewildering march of 79 yards by deceptive reverses and end sweeps.

Bob Saggau opened the drive and finished it. He and Louis Zontini, rushed the ball for gains from four to 22 yards a whack at the tired Navy wall to the 16. There, Saggau faked a pass and raced around his right down the sidelines for a touchdown. Zontini place-kicked the added point.

On Notre Dame Four-Yard Line.

In the closing seconds of the second period, Navy brought the spectators to their feet with a rally that just missed, partly because of a five-yard penalty for excessive time out. Saggau fumbled and Hal Hansen recovered for Navy on the Irish 36. Ralph Anderson, replacing the sharpshooting Louis Mayo on the Middie firing line, completed three short passes and the ball was on Notre Dame's four. But the time-out penalty and the alert Irish secondary snuffed the chance just as the half ended.

A fumble by Anderson, recovered by John Kelly for the Irish on the Sailors' 18, opened the gates for Notre Dame's second touchdown just as the rain, a thin spray whipped by a brisk wind, began soaking the customers. Six plays later and the Irish, aided by an offside penalty, were over the line. Except for a three-yard whack by Zontini, the touchdown lugging was done by Fullback Joe Thesing, who drove the Middies back, cracking the center and going over from the three-yard mark. Zontini's try for the extra point was low. For the rest of the period two 55-yard punts by Saggau snuffed whatever offensive chances the Middies had.

It was desperation that netted the final two Irish points. From behind his own goal, Cliff Lenz, another of Navy's fine aerial artists, tried to get off a pass. Rushed, he was four yards behind his goal when he made the throw. In came George Rassas. He batted the ball and it fell for a safety.

FORDHAM BEATS ST. MARY'S, 3-0

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Wilbur Stanton of Malden, Mass., enjoyed a fleeting moment of football fame here today when he trotted out on the Polo Grounds before 48,000 hushed spectators and carefully kicked a 32-yard field goal to give Fordham a 3 to 0 triumph over the St. Mary's University Gaels from San Francisco.

That was all anybody saw of Stanton, because he went right on back to the bench. But it was enough to justify the long hours he has spent practicing his specialty the last three seasons and to keep the Rams at the forefront of the nation's football teams. Fordham proved in every respect a better team than St. Mary's, but it took Stanton's boot to make it official.

A pair of beautiful runs by Mike Hearn and Dominic Principe prepared the spotlight for Stanton. Hearn skirted left end for 18 yards and Principe followed with a weaving 29-yard gain off-tackle to place the ball on St. Mary's nine-yard stripe.

St. Louis' most pretentious professional football game in several seasons is scheduled for this afternoon at Walsh Stadium, where the St. Louis Gunners will meet the Cincinnati Bengals. Kickoff is set for 2:30 o'clock.

The Gunners, playing their third consecutive non-league game, will be trying to protect an undefeated-at-home record. In four contests played here, they have won three and tied one.

The Bengals have won five of six games and among their victims were the Chicago Bears and Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League and the independent Los Angeles Bulldogs. In a game at Cincinnati, the Bengals won from the Bulldogs, 3 to 0, the only defeat given the Coast team in two seasons. Last Sunday, the teams played at Los Angeles and the Bulldogs reversed the decision by a 43-17 score.

Cincinnati's victories over the Chicago Bears, by 17-14, and over the Bulldogs, were gained on field goals kicked by Phil Martinovich. Martinovich, a halfback who, according to the Bengals' center, Chester Chesney, doesn't carry the ball, is the Bengals team's leading scorer. To date this season, he has kicked eight field goals and his record of kicking after points after touchdowns is 12 straight. Thus he has scored 36 points in six games.

A field goal-kicking duel is a possibility in this afternoon's game, as Les Post, former Soldan High and Missouri U. player, now with the Gunners, has kicked two placement goals in three attempts in the last two games.

Two weeks ago, at Cincinnati, the Bengals defeated the Boston Shamrocks, 28 to 14. Last Sunday, the Gunners trounced the same Shamrocks here by 24 to 0.

Ray Johnson, the new fullback, is likely to see lots of action for the Gunners today, and the new end, Bill Wilson, also probably will be in much of the time, although not listed as a starter. The regular starting backfield of the Gunners—Sebastian, Kane, Londe and Lehnert—is to go in at the start for St. Louis, according to advance plans of Coach Fayne Grone. Herb Dreher will start his second game at end.

On the Cincinnati side, there will be many stars, outstanding among whom, according to advance dope, are Howlett and Owen, backs. Owen is called the "Blond Blizzard." For fancy nicknames, the Gunners offer Mike Sebastian's collegiate moniker—the Rambling Rose of Sharon. Mike's home is at Sharon, Pa.

Cincinnati is coached by Dana King, former Xavier mentor, assisted by "Tippy" Dye, recently a star halfback of Ohio State.

Crowd of 10,350 Sees Ice Revue

A crowd of 10,350 turned out last night to see Maribel Y. Vinson's Ice Revue of 1938 at the Arena. The show will be concluded tonight with the third performance.

Douglas Duffy of Canada, the clever comedian, again drew the plaudits of the crowd, but Ollie Haupt and Miss Vinson pressed him for popularity. Ruth English and Louis Pitts of St. Louis were well received with their Black and White number.

The lighting effects were working better last night and enabled Miss Vinson, who, with her husband, Guy Owen, produced the show, to appear to better advantage in her two solo turns on the ice.

Other St. Louisans who were well received were Shirley Reflow, Gloria Haupt, Jeanne Schulte and Buddy Lewis.

Slavia-Bartunek Soccer Club Plays Lindells Here Today

A Cleveland soccer club that has never failed to extend the best St. Louis teams, Slavia-Bartunek, makes its first appearance in two seasons here this afternoon in opposing the Lindell club at West Side Park. The game is one of a series of intercity exhibition matches scheduled by officials of the two-club St. Louis Soccer League.

In the Cleveland lineup are half a dozen players with whom St. Louis fans are well acquainted, including the Tengler brothers, Charley in goal and Joe at left fullback; Jack Thompson at right fullback, Jimmy Gallagher at inside right, Kuthen, Schempp and Raida—all of whom have played well in previous games here. The new and unknown factors are Center Halfback Psenicka, Outside Left Rodersmarsky and Center Forward Nagy. If they measure to the class of their teammates, the Slavia club may easily prove far too strong for the Lindells.

The St. Louis team will be much the same as it was a week ago when it defeated the Burkes, 2-1. Earl Fay, injured in that game, may not start but the club otherwise is in good shape.

Meanwhile, the Burke club, recently strengthened by the signing of Alec McNab and Bill Watson, devotes its energy to practice. It will be seen in action here against both the Manhattans and Sparta of Chicago soon.

PITT BEATEN FIRST TIME IN 22 GAMES, BY CARNEGIE, 20-10

game. Carnelly's pass from the Pitt 33-yard line landed in the arms of "Chick" Chickerneo and caromed off into Striegel's hands, over the goal.

Two more scoring thrusts in the third period, with Carnegie advancing the ball on separate occasions to the Pitt 17 and 9-yard lines, were turned back by the fighting Pitt line.

In the last period Carnegie struck pay dirt again. Petey Moroz, reserve back, got off a beautiful punt to the Pitt three-yard line and Larry Peace, reserve Panther back, responded with a sad return boot from behind his goal to Pitt's 22-yard line. Six plays later Muha rammed over from the two-yard line.

The Panthers, with the game drawing near its close, opened up, but the game was already lost.

Dick Cassiano broke loose for a long dash to the Tartan 47-yard line and a series of passes advanced Pitt to the 16-yard line, but four more passes over the goal fell incomplete behind the goal and the game ended with Carnegie in possession of the ball.

Breaks 22-Game Streak.

Carnegie Tech outgained Pitt, 196 yards to 135, rushing the ball and made 13 first downs compared to Pitt's nine.

Biggie Goldberg, the Elkins (W. Va.) express, played only five minutes in the first period because of a leg injury.

The victory broke a 22-game string of conquests run up by Pitt since it lost to Duquesne, another neighborhood rival, 7-0, on a mud-spattered field in 1936. Pitt and Carnegie fought to a scoreless deadlock on 1935, but the last time the Tartans found cause to celebrate a Pitt victory was in 1928 when they came out on the long end of a 6-0 count.

Only one defeat, a one touchdown loss to Notre Dame, mars Carnegie's record this season.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Nov. 5.—Principia College bowed to the Illinois College football team, 18 to 7, here this afternoon.

Illinois College marched down field 59 yards for its first touchdown. The Blue Boys scored again in the third quarter after recovering a Principia fumble and in the fourth quarter after a 49-yard drive.

Principia scored on the last play of the game. Principia recovered an Illinois College fumble on the Blue Boy 15-yard line. Bob Andrews attempted to pass, but couldn't find a receiver and began running. He carried the ball to the five-yard line where he was hit hard, but he lateraled to Chet Casanave, who went over for the touchdown. Casanave took a pass from Andrews for the extra point.

CHICAGO SCORES, THEN HARVARD HITS NEW HIGH

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5.—After spotting Chicago's razzle-dazzling Maroons two quick touchdowns, Harvard's well-trained football forces ruined Clark Shaughnessy's magic and rolled up a 47-13 victory over their Big Ten Conference visitors today before a crowd of 20,000.

After inspecting the Shaughnessy bag of tricks for 15 minutes, the Harvards set off their touchdown barrage on the fourth play of the second period, a 25-yard aerial thrown by Torbie MacDonald to Austie Harding. Before the half ended, MacDonald set up the second Harvard counter with a 25-yard runback on Wasem's punt. Mike Cohen and Frank Foley started banging off the tackles on Chicago's 25-yard line, the latter scoring from the one-yard line.

The Maroons were a wilted lot when the second half opened.

Hamity's return of the second half kickoff was nullified when his pass to Sherman was ruled a forward and Harvard's third touchdown, made by Harding from the one-yard line, was handed over on a platter.

Harvard closed the third period with a 27-13 lead, after MacDonald twisted through his right tackle for an 18-yard scoring jaunt and that fleet hero of last week's Princeton victory launched the final by climaxing a 50-yard march with an eight-yard swoop into the Chicago end zone.

The inexperienced Maroons, unable to cope with Harvard's sturdy forwards after the first period, took to the air on the few occasions they were permitted to handle the ball after their initial success but the Johnnies refused to be caught napping again and two interceptions by Joe Gardella and Win Jameson, reserve fullback and end, started their last two scoring drives.

Gardella ran his interception for 24 yards before crashing over from the one-yard line and a 25-yard pass from Foley to Bob Burnett, the MacDonald replacement, completed the rout of the then fagged Maroons.

WESTERN ELEVEN WINS FROM COUNTRY DAY, 13-7

Western Military Academy's football team scored a 13-7 victory over Country Day School at the Codasco field yesterday afternoon. The Cadets hold first place in the ABC League with two triumphs and no defeats.

Hagenaur scored for Western from the two-yard line in the second quarter and Schaffnit kicked the extra point. Country Day rallied in the fourth period to tie the score when Carter plunged over for a touchdown from the two-yard mark, and Carter passed to Lawton for the extra point.

But the Cadets came back to win. Hagenaur counted again on a 15-yard run off tackle.

Texas U. Suffers Ninth Defeat as Baylor Triumphs

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 5.—The phenomental hurling of Baylor University's spindly, blond Bill Patterson, today added the ninth straight defeat to the grid records of the University of Texas Longhorns. The score was 14 to 3.

Coach Dana X. Bible's impotent Steers made a fight of it the first half, emerging with a 3-0 lead due to Wallace Lawson's 27-yard field goal. Except for short-lived thrusts thereafter, however, the game was all Baylor's and Patterson's.

HUSKERS COME FROM BEHIND TO BEAT KANSAS

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 5.—Taking advantage of two fourth quarter breaks, Nebraska's Cornhuskers picked up 10 points today to give them a 16 to 7 victory over the Kansas Jayhawkers before a homecoming crowd of 16,000. It was the first Husker victory in six starts this season.

The Jayhawkers, gunning for a victory, saw their 7 to 6 early fourth period lead fade quickly. Not since 1916 has a Kansas team won from Nebraska and when the Huskers forged ahead the thud of Jayhawker spirits falling resounded in the stadium.

A soggy field made ball carrying a problem and the net yards gained from scrimmage by both teams was unusually low.

In the opening quarter, Jack Dodd, fleet Husker halfback, ran a Kansas punt 60 yards for the first touchdown. Hermann Rohrig had received the punt and shoved it into the arms of Dodd. Rohrig's attempt for placement went wild.

The lone Jayhawker touchdown was set up in the third period and made in the fourth. Paul Masoner picked Harry Hopp's punt out of the air, evaded a group of tacklers and went 39 yards to the Nebraska 31. Line plays carried to the three-yard line and Eldreth Cadwalader, reserve back, plunged center for the tying tally. Chester Gibbens drop-kicked the point, setting the Kansans in the lead by one point.

Cadwalader fumbled the ball on the Kansas 27-yard line with only four minutes to play and Bill Callihan recovered for Nebraska. George Knight passed to Lloyd Grimm for a first down on the Kansas 14-yard line. Nebraska advanced to the eight-yard mark and then Bill Andreson made his field goal.

Kansas resorted to the air. Bill Bunsen ran back to his eight-yard line to throw another pass and before it got off his fingertips, Bob Mills, Nebraska tackle, grabbed it and ran over to score. Andreson's toe hit again and the placement was good. Score, Nebraska 16, Kansas 7.

Runs of 95 and 87 Yards Help Furman To Beat Marshall

By the Associated Press.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 4.—An alert Furman team passed and ran its way to a victory over Marshall College today, defeating the Herd for its third straight loss, 18 to 13.

A 95-yard dash by Furman's Back Martin and another of 87 yards by Zima highlighted the visitors' victory.

KIRKWOOD WALLOPS BURROUGHS, 26 TO 7

Kirkwood High School's football team ran rough-shod over the John Burroughs eleven, 26 to 7, yesterday afternoon at Kirkwood.

Elmer Elme accounted for two of Kirkwood's scores, while Earl Walker and John Warner went over for the other two.

Burroughs scored its tally midway in the second quarter when Hume took the ball on a reverse from John Simmons, cut through his own right tackle and raced 69 yards for a touchdown. Phil Ratz place-kicked the extra point.

PIMLICO FANS STUNNED AS OUTSIDER, ANEROID, WINS RIGGS

JACOLA, 8 TO 10 FAVORITE, IS NEVER A FACTOR

Winner Had Not Finished First Since Last May — Second Time in 18 Races Jacola Fails to Place.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5. — Three outsiders dominated the picture in the thirteenth Riggs Handicap as Edward Friendly's champion three-year-old filly, Jacola, recent conqueror of the might Seabiscuit, finished out of the money before 15,000 astounded fans here today.

John A. Manfuso of Washington provided the winner in his suddenly improved veteran, Aneroid, which came from behind to take the $9675 lion's share of the purse by an easy two lengths. W. W. Vaughan's Mr. Canron was second, a length and a half before Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud, which was scratched from a Grade "C" Handicap on the same card.

B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King was daylight behind in fourth position, followed by Two Bob, Jacola, Esposa—a grand mare which seems to have entirely lost her form—and Hypocrite.

Run in Driving Rain.

The event was run through a driving rain and over a very slow track. Aneroid, a poor fourth in Jacola's recent Washington Handicap success, finished the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:59 4-5 to pay his backers $21.90 for $2.

Jacola was an odds-on choice at 85 cents on the dollar. This was the second time in two years, or 18 races, that she failed to finish in the money. She had won her last four starts at Laurel, beating champion Seabiscuit in the Laurel Stakes.

Aneroid had not won a purse since last May. He and the disappointing Esposa also hold victories over Seabiscuit. Aneroid is eligible for the $10,000 added, mile and five-furlong Bowie Handicap, to be decided here Nov. 15, and May have to meet Jacola again on that occasion.

Maurice Peters, who was astride Jacola, had the filly racing in third place and close enough to strike as Mr. Canron and Mythical King drew off to five or six lengths' lead in the first quarter. The Friendly star, burdened under 121 pounds, simply dropped back as the race wore on and had no excuses.

Victor Runs Even Race.

Aneroid, after breaking second, temporarily slumped back, several lengths behind Jacola and Honey Cloud. However, after six furlongs he had pulled up to third position, displacing the fading Jacola and gaining slowly but surely on the two leaders. Mythical King had enough as Mr. Canron showed the way into the stretch.

Aneroid, creeping up steadily, collared Mr. Canron before reaching the final furlong. He drew away in easy fashion under Ralph Eccard. Mr. Canron had enough left to hold the game-finishing Honey Cloud at bay. Esposa, carrying the same weight as Jacola but receiving six pounds from that filly by the scale, was badly outrun from the start.

Stopped at the Six-Inch Line—As 95,000 Held Their Breath —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Biggest football crowd of the day, 95,000, packed into Memorial Stadium, Los Angeles, saw Quarterback Grenville Lansdell (78) of Southern California, try a diving thrust from the one-yard line in an attempt to score in the second quarter of the game against California U. Halfback Vic Bottari (92) of California, reached up just in time to grab Lansdell's belt and pull him down, just six inches short of a touchdown. Southern California won the game, 13 to 7.

California Loses First Game In 19 Starts to U. S. C., 13-7

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—Southern California's Trojan warriors derailed the California Rose Bowl-bound special here today, wrecking the unbeaten record of the mighty machine from Berkley and taking to themselves the inside track to the Pacific Coast Conference football championship and the Pasadena game January 2.

A record-breaking crowd of 95,000 saw the Trojans dynamite California, 13 to 7.

California's streak of 18 consecutive victories, topped by its triumph in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day, was trampled under foot as the Trojan crew turned on alternate bursts of aerial lightning and powerhouse thunder.

The crowd, biggest since 92,000 saw Southern California and Notre Dame here in 1932, sat stunned as the Bears, favored by odds of 10 to 7, were held to two lone first downs.

Leading the Trojan climb back to triumphant heights was Grenville Lansdell, flashy quarterback, who pitched strike after strike to his pass receivers, and scored the first Trojan touchdown in the third quarter on a brilliant sweep around California's left end after a six-yard jaunt. Phil Gaspar converted, ending a drive of 40 yards in six plays.

Troy forged into a further lead in the fourth quarter when its second-string backfield lugged the ball on straight running plays 50 yards, Jack Banta crashing the California right side for the touchdown from the one-yard line. Gaspar missed this conversion.

Unable to dent the Trojan defense, the Bears took to the air and Vic Bottari, who had been expected to prove his All-America claims but who failed dismally, got hot enough to pass his mates 66 yards, with Morely Matthewson, right end, snagging a final pass good for 38 yards and the lone Bear touchdown. Bottari drop-kicked the extra point.

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 5. — Oregon's unpredictable Webfoots spotted Idaho a touchdown today, then rallied to win from the Vandals 19-6. It was Oregon's ninth straight victory over daho. Oregon counteracted Idaho's touchdown in the second period when Bob Smith, halfback, broke loose through center and with able downfield blocking, ran 92 yards for a touchdown. Nicholson converted and Oregon took a lead it never relinquished.

On the other, parallel field, the Stags will attempt to remain within striking distance of first place in a 9:30 o'clock game with the Trojans; the Watch and Wards, scored on only once this year, meet the Browns at 10:30 o'clock, and the Ramblers battle the Bulldogs at 11:30 o'clock.

Sadly missed by his wife,
MAUDE RUDLER.

SCHWANINGER—In memory of my dear husband and father, Frank Schwaninger.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

VOGEL, ALBERT H.—In loving memory, who departed this life Nov. 3, 1929.
Though God hath chosen to call him
And his life's work is done,
Yet never can death take from us
The memory of this one.
And, sure as the twilight shadows
Bring forth the evening star,
We'll meet this loved one once again
When we have crossed the bar.
Sadly missed by mother and father, wife and children and all who loved him.

"LOOK—LOOK"—For real comfort and ease in firing choose from the greatest parade of sensational low ash and high heat coals in St. Louis or county. Tropical Heat Lump at $4 is a high grade coal coming in from the South by rail. Southern Pride Lump at $5 or Washed and Waxed Egg at $4.90, closely resembles Franklin County in perfect preparation, soot-free qualities and heating performance. Asia Coal from out East at $4.95 for Washed and Waxed Stoker, $5.85 for Egg, $6.10 for Lump, and $6.35 for 8" Block nearly reaches Appalachian Mountain block coal in appearance in its sensational heating power and labor-saving, once-a-week ash removal from under grate bars. Brazil 6" Block at $6 and Indiana 6" Block at $5.50 are good buys. Hardracite Eastern 8" Block at $7.95 and 2x5 egg at $7.25, easily outdoes all others in spectacular dazzling heat with semi-monthly ash removal. Liberal margin up to $1.75 to dealers and 50c per ton to bona-fide salesmen. Wildermuth, 1138 Carr st. Phone GArfield 1137.

SHEIK OUTSHINES 400 AT HORSE SHOW

Red Shoes, Golden Robe Triumph Over Madison Square Ermine and Hoopskirts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. — An Arabian Sheik in red Morocco shoes stole the spotlight from New York's ermine-clad 400 tonight at the opening of the fifty-third National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden.

Sheik Khalil Ben Ibrahame Alrouaf, from Nadj, Arabia, and his native robes striped with gold caused more of a flurry than all the new fall fashions. His host, R. Wilson Evans, owns three Arabian horses.

The people who went to see the people who had box seats on the tanbark arena also had a glimpse of Princess Ketto Mikeladze, who wore two blackbirds perched on her hair. Also occupying boxes were two women in hoopskirts and one in a Victorian hat with knee-length streamers.

Upswept coiffures were a decided minority. Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of the Postmaster-General, wore brown net, a mink cape and a pearl necklace. Helen Jepson, opera star, wore a pleated evening gown of beige wool. Janet Olcutt Cavanaugh, young matron, was in scarlet velvet, with an ermine hood on her blonde hair.

Red, white and black were the favorite colors. Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, who rode at the afternoon session, wore a silvery blue gown and ermine wrap.

A quartet of daring riders from Chile and Mexico gave a lesson in horsemanship to the army officers and police of four other nations tonight. Attendance tonight was 15,000.

Performing over an intricate jumping course for the Bowman challenge trophy, Major Eduardo Yanez, veteran of tanbark competition, guided Chilean, to a perfect performance to win the coveted cup. Four other officers also turned in faultless exhibitions but Major Yanez, leader of the Chilean team, turned in the fastest time of 32 2-5 seconds.

Second place went to Lieut. Joaquin Chagoya of Mexico with the six-year-old Jaracho. The combination cleared the 11 obstacles in 33 2-5 seconds. Capt. Eduardo Lema, leader of the Chilean carabineros (military police), set up a fine mark early in the performance but his time of 36 1-5 seconds with Caupolican put him third in the final reckoning.

Another Mexican officer, Lieut. Jaime Zapet, won fourth after a jump off with Patrolman Michael Murphy of the New York City police. Each was clocked in 38 seconds the first time over the course but in the jump-off, Lieut. Zapet again gave a clean performance while the New York policeman was charged with five faults.

Yanez' victory climaxed a day of triumphs for the Chileans. During the afternoon the Carabineros finished one, two in the team competition open to police, National Guard and Reserve Officer units.

The contest for blue ribbons among civilian exhibitors saw the Fair City stable of L. Victor Weil of Elberon, N. J., and Alfred B. Maclay's Killearn Farm of Millbrook, N. Y., get away to a flying start. Maclay's horses dominated the showing of hackneys as Killearn Beauty won four firsts and Killearn Magician added another. The Fair City stable's Vanity was judged best of the five-gaited saddle horses, suitable for harness work. His stable mate, Janet Sue, went to the top of the five-gaited saddle horses, while another from the same string, Dixie Maid, carried off the honors among the three-gaited saddle horses over 14.2 and under 15 hands.

J. J. MORONEY FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Services for Former Democratic Leader Will Be Conducted in Old Cathedral.

The funeral of John J. Moroney, active in Democratic politics in the city for many years, who died yesterday of hardening of the arteries and the infirmities of age, will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock at the Collins undertaking establishment, 928 North Grand boulevard, with services at 9 o'clock at the Old Cathedral. Burial will take place in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Moroney, who was 73 years old, was committeeman of the Sixth Ward for about 16 years. He recently resigned the post because of ill health. He was aligned with State Senator Mike Kinney and Park Commissioner Joseph Mestres, committeemen in adjoining wards, and they often acted as a unit. He was one of the original supporters of Mayor Dickmann in the committee.

For the last five years he was a State beverage inspector, and at one time served as a State grain inspector. Beginning about 32 years ago he served five terms as State Representative. His voting address and political headquarters was 1126A Pine street, but he resided with a daughter at 301 East Swon avenue, Webster Groves, after the death of his wife last July. Formerly he lived on the South Side.

Surviving are two sons, four daughters, a brother and a sister. One of his sons, John J. Moroney Jr., was seated last month as his successor on the Democratic committee.

Probation Officer to Speak.

Frank X. Reller, chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court, will speak on "Future Citizens" at the South Side Y. M. C. A., 2232 South Grand boulevard, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

HAMILTON REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT SPEECH

G. O. P. Chairman Says Return to Prosperity Is Issue — Predicts Party Gains.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, told the nation tonight that "jobs for the 11,000,000 unemployed" would be the first consideration of Republicans sent to Congress in next Tuesday's elections.

Accusing the Roosevelt administration of having failed to meet the issue of "the depression that is now on us and has been for more than a year," Hamilton declared the chief question before the electorate was "how we shall get out of this depression and return this country to a sound and lasting prosperity."

In an address by radio he predicted substantial Republican gains Tuesday but refrained from making any numerical forecasts.

Quoting from President Roosevelt's broadcast address at Hyde Park last night, he said: "Last night we were told that the New Deal program had given us 'a more stable and less artificial prosperity than any other nation in the world has enjoyed.'"

"The economic depression of the last year," he asserted, "is concrete evidence of the artificial nature of whatever prosperity the country has enjoyed in the last five and one-half years.

Hamilton said the President's silence in his address on changes in the Wagner labor relations law meant he "apparently is satisfied with it." And despite the President's references to peaceful settlement of industrial disputes, he said, "the National Guard of various states has been used in connection with labor struggles on 91 occasions" in the last five years.

Mentioning that Roosevelt had spoken of the people having "a free choice" at the polls, Hamilton said the Senate Elections Investigating Committee had found instances of relief beneficiaries being coerced politically.

"Nor is it enough in these days when democracies are threatened," he said, "to pay only lip service to the preservation of men's civil liberties. Such words become a mockery and a sham when accompanied by silence regarding the activities of Mayor Hague of Jersey City. Liberal parties do not harbor leaders who suppress freedom of speech and the right of peaceful assembly."

BILL FOR DAMAGE TO BUSSES BY HIGH SCHOOL BOYS

P. S. Co. Presents Claim to Education Board and Students Get Lectures on Good Manners.

The rowdy conduct of high school pupils riding home on busses after Saturday afternoon football games has been the subject of complaints by the Public Service Co. to the Board of Education and of a lecture on good manners by School Board representatives to boy students.

A bill for several hundred dollars damage has been presented to the Board of Education by the transportation company, which reported that boisterous students removed light bulbs from busses, tossed seats and advertising signs out of upper-deck windows, rang signal bells continuously, tore upholstery, smashed windows and even made off with a driver's cap. The bill has not been paid.

In anticipation of the spirited football game between the teams of Cleveland and Roosevelt high schools at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday boys at those schools were addressed Friday by Assistant Superintendent of Instruction John Rush Powell, Alfred O. Anderson, director of physical education, and Arthur O. Kelley, high school co-ordinator. They not only cautioned the students to curb their demonstrations on busses, but urged them to stop breaking soda bottles on sidewalks and tossing cardboard and other missiles in the stadium.

I. C. C. EXPERT RECOMMENDS MILWAUKEE REORGANIZATION

Proposes Sharp Reduction in Road's Capitalization and Fixed Interest Charges.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended today reorganization of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Co. with sharply reduced capitalization and fixed interest charges.

Examiner M. S. Jameson proposed a new capitalization of $631,010,668, compared with $857,634,977. The fixed interest debt would be $105,895,179, compared with $620,921,677 at present, but there would be a contingent interest debt of $124,918,119 under the proposed plan.

Jameson's proposal calls for fixed interest of $3,864,620 a year, compared with $23,606,095 at present. Contingent interest would amount to $5,621,315 a year with $5,000,000 going into a fund for additions and betterments.

Jameson said the present common stock of the road was valueless. He recommended, however, that present preferred stockholders be given a warrant to purchase one-half share of new common stock at $30 a share for each preferred share now held.

By reason of the Milwaukee's long-term lease of the Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern, Jameson said a consolidation appeared desirable. He did not discuss proposals to consolidate the Milwaukee with the Chicago & Northwestern, also in reorganization.

REMMERS ASSAILS "KING BARNEY'S" RULE IN ST. LOUIS

Republican Who Lost to Mayor Dickmann Last Year Speaks in Behalf of His Party's Ticket.

MANY OF DEMOCRATS STRAW MEN, HE SAYS

Attorney Declares Boss Control in St. Louis Is Getting to Be as Bad as in Kansas City.

Oliver T. Remmers, an attorney, who was Republican candidate for Mayor last year, spoke in behalf of Republican candidates for city offices at a Twenty-fourth Ward meeting Friday night, asserting most of the Democratic candidates were "mortgaged to a selfish political machine."

Much of his address was devoted to an attack on Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann as political boss of the city, although he did not refer to the Mayor by name, calling him "King Barney."

"With few exceptions," he declared, "the Democratic candidates are machine picked and pickled in a jar labeled 'Especially selected by the City Hall machine for private use; guaranteed sour and warranted to please discriminating political palates; licensed by special permission of his majesty, King Barney, the last.'

"Political candidates are to be judged by their sponsors. Many of the Democratic candidates, being grateful, willingly become straw men (where and in what connection have we read about straw men?).

"Expected to Repay."

"They will be expected to repay in some manner the favor of being boss-picked. To whom, therefore, is tribute due? Not to the voters, for they are merely the vehicle through which the bosses work. Political bosses, even though wearing masks of civic virtue, do not select men for glory but for profit. It is safe to assume that certain men are picked because they will return the favor with profit to their Democratic boss and Democratic straw bosses."

Remmers made another reference to the use of straw parties in real estate deals and plainly this reference, too, was to the profitable deals of the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., of which the Mayor is president, in real estate owned by closed State banks.

Consent of Governed.

"It is an indisputable fact," Remmers continued, "that nowhere can boss rule exist without consent of a majority of the voters—either those who vote for bad government and profit by it or those who blindly vote a ticket branded with the name of a political party or those who sulk at home and do not vote. Let me remind the stay-at-homes that it does no good to fuss about rotten conditions, municipal inefficiency and undisturbed gambling, or complain of high taxes or fume about election frauds and then not go to the trouble of voting."

Remmers reminded his audience that, although the Federal Government had spent $133,117,582 in St. Louis in five years, the municipal deficit "through waste and mismanagement in this boss-controlled city" had increased to $3,998,450.

"Those Democratic candidates who stand as stooges for the City Hall machine, speaking from one side of their mouths, indorse this raid on the treasury and from the other side ask you to elect them so as to swell the patronage of boss misrule."

Kansas City and St. Louis.

"No city administration in my memory," Remmers went on, "has so capitalized the political power of its leaders for their personal gain as has this present city administration. Reports of one unsavory story after another follow in quick succession in our daily press. News involving city officials is all too frequent.

"Political conditions in Kansas City are universally conceded as rotten. St. Louis under Democratic boss rule is getting as bad, and unless there is a change in politics it will be worse, while the bosses grow richer and fatter.

"Our Democratic city officials arrogate to themselves the power of the Caesars. In pursuit of private business and personal pleasure they and their friends, in seats of heavy plush, are driven through the streets and highways with all the glamor and ostentation of Roman emperors in chariots owned, paid for, manned and operated at public expense."

Remmers added that intelligent use of the ballot was the way to remove "unfit persons from office and separate them from the crib of the soft life and easy money."

Talk on "After Munich—What?"

"After Munich—What?" will be the title of a lecture by Mrs. Lilian T. Mowrer, wife of Edgar Ansell Mowrer, journalist, opening the Liberal Forum season at the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Mowrer will be the guest here of her sister, Mrs. Roland G. Usher, 5739 Cates avenue.

Leni Riefenstahl Only 'Gets Orders' from Hitler

'That's All,' Says Charming Movie Actress and Producer, Denying Romance on Arrival in U. S.

By INEZ ROBB
(Copyright, 1938.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—She is not Hitler's girl friend and she is not Jewish, Leni Riefenstahl, auburn-haired movie queen of Germany, declared yesterday aboard the North German Lloyd liner Europa as she sailed up the bay for a three weeks' vacation in America.

"I work for Hitler. I am not even a close friend. No!," the petite actress protested with great vivacity and charm to an army of newspaper reporters, photographers and newsreel men.

"I read this for many years in the papers," Fraulein Riefenstahl, her poise momentarily flustered, replied to a barrage of delicately worded questions, "but it is just a story.

"Nothing but a story," she insisted with grace and good humor as her color mounted higher. "I get film orders from Hitler. That is all."

Not True, She Says.

"Then there is no romance?" she was asked.

"No, no! That is not true. There is no romance!" she insisted with a half-laugh, half-giggle that her interviewers found irresistible.

"I know nothing about his private life," she replied when reporters insisted on knowing if Der Reichsfuehrer had a girl friend.

"I saw Hitler last in June," she said. "It was in Munich at the art festival for all German artists."

Throughout the interview, Werner Klingeberg, a good-looking young German, stayed by her side. Someone said he was "sports director" for her films, but Ernst Jager, her middle-aged financial secretary, described him as "a friend."

Whenever the actress' English failed her, it was Klingeberg, who has a degree from the University of Chicago, who acted as translator.

Her Meeting With Hitler.

The German actress, who spoke with a vivacity and accent that seemed more French than German, said she had known Hitler since 1932, "one year before he became Reichsfuehrer. We met through mutual friends," she explained, after Hitler had seen and admired "The Blue Light," a movie which she produced.

She denied—still good-naturedly but emphatically—that Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, had denounced her as a Jewess 18 months ago at a Berlin social function and that Hitler had gone to her aid.

"That is a story that appeared only in foreign papers, never in Germany," she said. "It is not true."

"Do you have any Jewish blood?" she was asked.

"No!" she replied—with an incredulous little laugh.

Contrary to reports, she did not bring to America the films of the 1936 Olympic games, held in Germany and photographed exclusively by her, under commission of Reichsfuehrer Hitler himself.

"I hope the Olympic pictures come here soon," she said, her hazel eyes flashing with pride. "This is the only country not yet to see the films."

The German version of the film was completed only five months ago.

Hopes to Travel.

"Since many years ago my dearest wish is to come to America," she said. "For five years I have worked very hard. This is a holiday. I hope to travel in a car to see all nice places in this country."

She isn't certain she'll get to Hollywood, as her plans depend pretty much on the friends she intends to visit first in New York City.

Reporters, after boarding the Europa down the bay, had to wait for 30 minutes for her first appearance. She was on the Europa's bridge, watching with delight and astonishment the New York sky line.

"It is fantastic," was all she could say.

Natural and completely unaffected, she bears little temperamental relationship to the dozens of foreign film queens who preen through New York annually on their way to Hollywood. Fraulein Riefenstahl, who frankly admits she is 30, has charm, and to spare. She is also equipped with an excellent figure, and such deep auburn hair that some of the onlookers were convinced that in this department art had aided nature.

She wore the very latest of cyclamen make-up. She was delighted when asked about her smart gray broadtail coat, with wide silver fox bands from shoulder to hem.

"All my clothes I buy in Berlin."

Three green orchids were pinned to her fur coat, and beneath it was a simple dress of thin mulberry wool. Her slippers were of black suede with black leather trim.

No Up Hair-Do—Yet.

Her bare head revealed she hasn't yet succumbed to the up hair-do. Her auburn locks are done in a role of curls around her neck and over her ears, with a topknot of curls in the middle of her forehead.

She couldn't have been more amiable during the long interview. She even consented to sit on the rail while photographers took her picture.

She said she had "never been married in all my life."

"Don't you ever intend to marry?" she was asked. "I love my work too much," she laughed.

When she returns to Germany, she will begin work in a private film in which she will be both star and director.

"The picture will be called 'Penthisilea.' That is hard to spell, no? Let me write it for you," she said, taking a reporter's notebook.

"It is a Greek legend about Penthisilea, the queen of the Amazons. I am to play the queen."

On the Europa she spent much time every day under the sun lamp, which explains her deep olive complexion.

She said her papa was no plumber, as indicated in stories cabled from Germany to America.

"He is a well-to-do business man. He sells central heating units," she said after consulting with Klingeberg.

"My mother, she is nothing. I mean, my mother, she has no profession, she does not work. But German women are welcome in industry. I am no exception, but German women must keep out of politics."

O'CONNOR SAYS LA GUARDIA TRIED TRICK TO BEAT HIM

Declares Bankhead, Rayburn and Sabath Were Misled by New York Mayor's Wires.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Representative John J. O'Connor, the only loser in the New Deal primary "purge," accused Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, in a campaign speech tonight, of using "a petty trick" in an effort to block his re-election. O'Connor referred to the Mayor's announcement yesterday that three ranking Democrats in the House of Representatives had advised him they opposed O'Connor's election.

The three—Speaker Bankhead, Majority Leader Rayburn and Representative A. J. Sabath of Illinois, ranking majority member of the Rules Committee—were quoted by LaGuardia as saying O'Connor would not be renamed chairman of the committee, if re-elected.

"The statement in LaGuardia's telegram to you that I said I had your indorsement is a complete falsehood and just a petty political trick," O'Connor said in telegrams to the three representatives. "At no time in my campaign has your distinguished name been mentioned by me. I am fighting outside interference, not soliciting it."

O'Connor said, "The statements which Congressmen Rayburn of Texas, Bankhead of Alabama and Sabath of Illinois were tricked into making are perfect examples of the charge I have repeatedly made—that there is a studied effort on the part of outsiders to dominate the vote of the people of my district. My opponent must be frantic to go as far afield as Alabama, Texas and Illinois to find supporters for his collapsed campaign."

O'Connor is running on the Republican and Andrew Jackson party tickets. He lost the Democratic nomination to James H. Fay, a New Dealer.

CREATOR OF 'FOXY GRANDPA' BROKE AND ILL IN HOSPITAL

Carl E. Schultze, 72, in St. Vincent's, New York, With Ailing Heart.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The creator of the old-time "Foxy Grandpa" comic strip, Carl E. Schultze, 72 years old, is in St. Vincent's Hospital with an ailing heart, but his condition, doctors said today, was improving.

A native of Lexington, Ky., educated in the public schools there and in Cassel, Germany, Schultze began drawing for newspapers about 1899. The American comic strip was still in its boisterous infancy. "Foxy Grandpa" appeared in the days following the arrival of F. B. Opper's "Happy Hooligan" and Richard F. Outcault's "Buster Brown." "Foxy Grandpa," sprightly, bald with a single curl, slightly ingenuous in his humor, leaped before the eyes of children and grownups in 1900. He gave Schultze fame and money, but Schultze made some investments which turned out to be bad.

A few years ago he was forced to work for WPA wages. Up to the other day, when he was taken to the hospital, illness had spared him.

INSANE MURDERER ESCAPES FROM TRAIN IN TEXAS

Donald Covin Was Being Returned From St. Louis to Asylum at Longview.

JEFFERSON, Tex., Nov. 5.—Donald Covin, insane murderer once sentenced to the electric chair but saved by a sanity hearing, escaped from a train here last night.

Fugitive from the Rusk Asylum, Covin, traced to St. Louis by relatives and being taken back to Longview, Tex., jumped from the train as it departed after a stop.

The 27-year-old murderer of two women was described by officers as dangerous.

MORE THAN HALF IN CONGRESS RACE FOR PENSION RISE

Federation Seeking Law to Increase Old Age Aid by 2 Pct. Tax on Income Reports on Poll.

BACKING IN BOTH PARTIES REPORTED

Downey of California and Capper of Kansas Make Typical Replies to Query Sent to 650.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The General Welfare Federation of America said today that a poll of all congressional candidates indicates a "preponderant majority" favored larger old-age security pensions than now provided."

Over half the responding candidates in all parties "were in favor of the Federation's General Welfare Act," the organization reported. The remaining candidates were reported to have "expressed themselves as sympathetic to" the act's objectives or to its consideration by Congress.

The Federation proposed a 2 per cent gross income tax to finance old age pensions, the individual amounts of which would be determined by pro-rating among beneficiaries the total revenue produced by the tax.

A Federation statement said the poll covered about 650 candidates, excluding 102 present members of Congress who had already pledged support. The opponents of the latter group likewise were excluded.

Party Lines Disregarded.

"Party lines were disregarded in the results," the statement said, "the tabulation showing an even number of Democratic and Republican candidates for House seats have expressed their approval of more adequate old-age pensions, with a scattering of Farmer-Labor, Progressive and independent candidates behind the movement."

The names of all those covered by the poll were not announced, but the federation said "typical" replies included:

Louis Ludlow (Dem.), Indiana: "I thing it is monstrous that a bill that holds the heart interest of so many people should be strangled in committee."

William H. Sutphin (Dem.), New Jersey: "Everyone realizes the necessity of providing for the aged and I believe that liberal legislation will be enacted at the next session of Congress."

Stephen Bolles, Republican candidate for the Senate from Wisconsin: "It is with great pleasure that I write you and tell you that I am in hearty sympathy with the General Welfare Act and I shall vote to bring it out of committee if elected to Congress. The Republican party (in the State) stands committed to this now."

The federation said a reply made through the office of Philip Bancroft, Republican candidate for the Senate in California, expressed opposition to the "ham-and-eggs $30 every Thursday plan," and went on to say: "I do not consider that the present social security legislation affords the old people proper or safe relief. What we need, of course, is proper national legislation. I believ in a pay-as-you-go policy, with the money to be raised, not through a tax on payrolls, but through some sort of tax which everyone will realize he is paying. We should then have the entire community, including the young people, contributing . . . toward the support of the old people in all walks of life. As you probably know, our present social security legislation affords no security, social or otherwise, except to very definite groups of people."

Downey Also in Accord.

The federation said Sheridan Downey, Democratic candidate for the Senate in California, had expressed his general accord with the objectives of the federation, on the ground that proper retirement annuities "offer the means whereby American industry can be geared productively to American abundance, without the sacrifice of America's economic framework."

C. F. Gaarenstroom, Farmer-Labor candidate for the House in Minnesota: "I shall be very glad to do what I can to bring the so-called General Welfare Act before Congress if I am elected. That does not only mean that I shall vote for it, but I shall also help the other liberals to get this bill to a vote."

Jesse R. Brown, Republican candidate for the House in Illinois: "I am in complete accord with the program of the General Welfare Federation of America. I will be gratified to be of service to you."

The secretary to Representative Luce (Rep.), Massachusetts: "Congressman Luce is in complete accord with the plank in the platform adopted by the Massachusetts Republican convention, in which pledge was given that effort would be made to secure hearing on the measure in which you are interested."

GERMAN CLUB, SCHUMACHERS MEET TODAY

While the meeting of the German Sport Club and the Schumachers at Carondelet Park will feature today's Municipal Soccer Association games in the public parks, there are several other attractive matches.

For example, the first league game of the season by the R. H. Tait team should draw some attention to Grounds Two at Fairground Park, for this Tait team is really the young Irish Village club of last season. Bob Russell, organizer and manager of the group of clever juniors, broke away from William (Mickey) Clawsey a few weeks ago and is operating the team this season under a new sponsor.

When Group Two at Fairground Park failed to fill, the executive committee combined the Tait club and the Leo club with the four clubs playing as Group Four. This six-team group will play three games alternating between Grounds Two and Grounds Four. There will be two group winners at the close of the regular season, one the representatives of Group Two (either the Leo club or the Tait club) and the other a representative of Group Four (either the Moloneys, the Kriegshausers, the St. Teresas or Micelis).

An interesting game pops up in the Intermediate Division at Carondelet Park, where the Plaza A. C., generally picked to win the title, opposes the Spanish Society team.

There will be 15 games in progress at eight different soccer fields.

AT BRIDLESPUR CLUB KENNELS—Amateur riders will compete in a point-to-point horse race at 3 o'clock.

THREE DUSEKS WILL WRESTLE ON CARD TO AID THE BLIND

The complete card for the charity wrestling show scheduled at the Municipal Auditorium Thursday night under the auspices of the Industrial Aid for the Blind, Inc., featuring two of the four Dusek brothers and their cousin, Wally Dusek, from Omaha, Neb., was announced last night by Promoter Tom Packs, who arranged the matches.

One of the Dusek brothers, Joe, will meet St. Louis' former heavyweight champion, Louis Thesz, in a one-fall finish main event.

The other brother, Emil Dusek, will wrestle Ivan Managoff, of San Francisco, in one of four 30-minute time limit supporting matches.

Wally Dusek, cousin of the brothers Joe and Emil, will meet Tom Saywer, of Hollywood, Cal., in the second preliminary.

The semifinal will be between Lee Wykoff, of Nevada, Mo., former star fullback of St. Louis University, and John Grandovich, of Poland.

The curtain-raiser will feature Young Stecher, of Houston, Tex., and Warren Bockwinkel, of St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS PISTOL CLUB TO CONDUCT TITLE SHOOT NEXT SUNDAY

Next Sunday the St. Louis Pistol and Revolver Club will hold its annual championship shoot at the range located at Sylvan Beach, on Highway 66, according to Dr. David L. Penney, president of the club. The shoot will start at 9 a. m.

Competition will be held for .22, .38 and .45 pistols and revolvers from 20 and 40 yard distances.

Duck Shooting Improves.

Perseverance will be rewarded. Hunters who have awaited the migratory ducks for the last two weeks with no avail were given somewhat of a reward yesterday morning when shooting picked up a little in Missouri and Illinois as a result of the cold snap and rains in the North. The shooting was not near tops, however, and the mallards had not arrived yesterday.

The additional two weeks placed at the front end of this seasons' duck hunting was of no use this year. Local ducks have been the only ones which have been available.

Shooters are making earnest preparations for a much better season than last year. Encouraged by the cold snap of the middle of the week, resort owners were taking reservations yesterday for the first time since opening day. The quality of the shooting still is dependent upon the weather in the North. If cold develops then we will have ducks here.

Dates to Remember.

The trout season closed Nov. 1.

Quail season opens Thursday, Nov. 10.

Dove shooting and the season on furbearers opens Nov. 15.

Duck and goose shooting closes 4 p. m. Nov. 28.

Squirrel shooting closes Dec. 1.

No deer and turkey season this year by order of the commission.

Call the Dogs.

Reports from all parts of the State, especially that part lying south of the Missouri River, indicate quail are plentiful. The season opens Thursday for a 41-day period.

Gov. Richard Leche of Louisiana is working on plans whereby reservations be set aside, stocked with quail and hunted over by persons who will pay approximately 10 cents per bird shot. We need a plan to get the cost of quail down . . . the average hunter might just as well order humming-bird tongue on toast at the Ritz if he is figuring the cost of putting quail on the table.

About Deer.

The commission decree that there would be no deer shooting this year undoubtedly is a good move. It makes us envious to learn from Ed L. Shave of the Minnesota Tourist Bureau that the population of that State is set at 13.64 animals per square mile and in some areas reaches a density of 27.2 animals per square mile. It is expected that 75,000 hunters will move after deer this year in Minnesota and, based upon last years' figures this means that 40,800 deer will be taken in the 11-day season November 15th.

Supreme Court Acts.

Great rejoicing among the conservation minded sportsmen of the State greeted the decision, handed down by the Supreme Court of Missouri in the case of State vs. Byron Marsh which held that the power of the Conservation Commission to open and close season on game and wildfowl was not unconstitutional. Marsh was arrested May 29 while fishing. By statute the season on bass was closed until May 30 but the commission authorized such fishing after May 28. Marsh was fined by a lower court and appealed the case to the Supreme Court reversed the case.

Attorney-General Roy McKittrick contended that the constitutional amendment of 1936, which created the State Conservation Commission with broad regulatory powers, was illegal because it bestowed legislative powers on the commission and set it up as a separate unit of government.

This month's Hunting & Fishing carries a note telling hunters throughout the United States that the Missouri commission is aware of the rabbit situation and is considering doing something about it. "Exportation of live rabbits from Missouri last year which totaled more than 100,000 has led the Conservation Commission of that State to consider laws to protect this important game and food animal." The rabbits are shipped eastward to supply overshot districts in New England and along the Atlantic Coast states.

Two years ago Illinois passed a law forbidding the commercialized taking of rabbits. Immediately the dealers instead of going into some other type of business divided Missouri into districts and each took an area and did their shipping from here. A dealer will pay 15 cents for a live rabbit which is sold to Eastern clubs or states for as high as 85 cents.

Reischauer hopes that whatever decision is handed down by the Supreme Court will be done so promptly. If favorable to the commission, fine; if not, then bills must be drafted in time to present to the coming Legislature to protect the rabbit population.

Pot Shots.

Turkey shooting (at targets) will substitute for wild turkey hunting this year, if we are to believe a lot of signs along the highways. No crawling out of bed on cold mornings and creeping through damp woods to get to the favorite spot. Just pull your car over to the side, walk 20 paces, lay your quarter on the line and put a pellet through the crosslines and take home a big 14-pound bird for dinner. Nothing to it. These turkey shoots make us soft but its great fun. . . . Arthur F. Jones of the American Kennel Club mentions that intersectional competition in most sports is something to get excited over; secretary of dog shows are only worried if there are no entries from another section. This is a great aid in letting the gentleman from California know just what a champion retriever from New York looks like and, vice versa. . . . All of the field trials in Missouri this year, except those limited to Missouri dogs, have had some entries from way, way off. . . . The Wild Life Conservation Organization will meet at 8 p. m. Nov. 10 at Gambrinus Hall, 3628 Wisconsin (right off Broadway), . . . several hundred are expected to attend. . . . The only persons in New York State not required to lay $2.25 on the line for a hunting-fishing license are residents of Southampton, Long Island, whose daddies during the Revolutionary War obtained from colonial New York perpetual rights to hunt and fish so native residents and their descendants can hunt and fish without taking out a license.

Home Fires Burning.

For years residents of this part of the country believed that forest fires wrought destruction only in the wilds of other parts. During the past few years it has been brought to the attention of Missourians that we did have a few blazes. It takes a fire such as the one in Southern Illinois, or the one on our very doorstep, to make us realize that conservation officials were correct in establishing frequent lookout towers, fire-fighting apparatus and other necessary equipment for the detection and prevention of forest blazes. Of course, many small fires have been sighted during the past year but have been promptly taken care of by alert rangers and the CCC boys stationed nearby.

In Missouri the early Friday rains came just in time to extinguish the flames raging in the southeastern part of the State which swept over 30,000 acres of wooded and farm land; 500 men, farmers and CCC camp boys worked with the flames for the past three days before a half-inch of rain gave them an opportunity to relax.

Approximately 4500 acres of fine timberland were destroyed by the Illinois blaze before WPA workers could be rushed to the scene and get it under control. No estimate has been given of the wildlife lost.

The U. S. Forest Service estimates that there are 150,000 forest fires in the United States each year and that they burn approximately 40,000,000 acres, destroy $50,000,000 worth of timber and consume enough wood to build 100,000 five-room houses. Of the 11,665 fires in National Forests last year, 53 per cent were caused by "acts of man."

Galan W. Pike, Southern Illinois forest supervisor, said the average has been two fires per day destroying approximately 120 acres for the past few months. West Virginia foresters have fought 240 fires in the last two weeks.

POINT-TO-POINT RACE TODAY FOR AMATEUR RIDERS

Amateur riders who are subscribers to the Bridlespur Hunt will hold their first point-to-point race at the kennels of the Bridlespur Club at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Seven points have been selected starting at the kennels of the clubhouse. The course will cover five and one-quarter miles. Riders can select any route between points but failure to pass a patrol judge at any of these specified points disqualifies the horse.

The course covers some of the most hazardous parts of St. Louis County. At the third point, in the valley of the Harsh farm, is a stiff fence with a creek just beyond it. Both must be jumped or the horse must be checked to go through the creek, costing the rider time. The property to be crossed before the fence is approached is full of holes and washes and is covered by weeds four feet high.

Horses will start two minutes apart and will have to be taken at the difficult point-to-point pace singly. Time only will count and horses without a racing mate will demand expert skill from their riders. Admission is free.

Second Half Play In Muny Football Loop Starts Today

The Municipal Football Association will open the second half of its schedule this afternoon with a doubleheader at the Drill Grounds in Forest Park. The Food Centers, champions in first-half competition, will play the Iken Markets in the first game, starting at 1:30 o'clock, and the Lennemann's battle the Massara Cafe team at 3:30 o'clock.

Les Haney of the Ikens is starting three new men in an effort to upset the Foods. Norb Caughlin will be at left end, Larry Biondo back at right guard and Bill Turner will shift into the quarterback position, but Cecil Sumpter will call signals from left halfback. James Schultz is expected to play at one of the tackle positions early in the game.

Bill Montgomery, Food Center manager, has released Bob Swope and Walter Songer because of Missouri Valley Conference rules, which would prevent them from playing basketball for St. Louis University if they continued to play in competition outside of school activities.

Ed Koder will start at left tackle in place of big Ed Kunz for the Lennemanns, it was announced by Manager Bob Alexander. Another change will see W. Schrier at right end in place of J. Gerescher.

This New York

by Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

THE technique of news photography has, beyond all question, revolutionized New York society, putting folk who are photogenique, as the phrase goes, laps and laps ahead of folk with mere family or possessions. Not that this circumstance depends on youth and beauty by any means, because plenty of aged sirs and dolls are very emphatically photographers' news, but whether one likes it or not, the smokeless flash bulb and the demand of city editors for personal shots has tossed the patroons and patricians into the discard of oblivion. Lineage may be there, but fashion runs New York society. In much the same way as it has become not only desirable but entirely necessary to be photographed at night by Zerbe, Black, the brothers Sarno or one of the several other tall-coated lensmen, it has become requisite to be portraited by the right formal photographers.

LUCIUS BEEBE

Theater celebrities, mostly, are done by Vandamm, debutantes by Bachrach or Pach Brothers, fashion by Horst, Ader, Man Ray or George Platt Lynes, miscellaneous top-drawer personages by Hal Fyfe, tycoons, ambassadors and sportsmen by Pirie MacDonald, and the newspaper man's photographer is Sophie Delar, of Rockefeller Plaza. Miss Delar has in her files more shots of reporters, paragraphers, columnists, feature writers and incidental journalists, probably, than any one else in town, and this month she's having an exhibition of her top-flight subjects.

Miss Delar's regular weekly exhibits go on view in tremendous show windows, advantageously located around the RCA Building, and her subjects slink by, holding hankies or fur wraps around their faces and admiring themselves inordinately. Anyone seen in a full beard admiring a window of Ben Cutler will be Ben Cutler, or if it's a window of Sir Hubert Wilkins, Sir Hubert Wilkins.

—o-o—

Every so often this departments gets the customary abusive letters for recording the doings of the "idle rich," a slant on contemporary Manhattan life which never ceases to fill us with bemused amazement. The truth of the matter is, of course, that very few people in New York, save always the determinedly unemployable, are idle, and there simply are no rich any more. A man who possesses big money (and he is an increasingly rare phenomenon) is automatically removed from any conceivable sphere of idleness by the necessity of protecting his property from the moochers, bums and bandits of the world, to say nothing of the Federal Government. The man who believed "the world owed him a living" used to be a comparatively rare item around the bars and clubs of the town, but at the moment he exists in substantial numbers and is on the continual increase.

—o-o—

● THE PEOPLE who make the public prints today, extravagant as may be the occasional gestures they indulge, are seldom idle, and never rich. Mostly they are the hardest-working professionals in the world, because they have the cutthroat competition of the hardest-boiled city in the world to work against. At utter random in this afternoon's papers we have come across the names of Wolcott Gibbs, Mrs. Tuckerman Draper, Hattie Carnegie, Robert Benchley, Mac Kriendler, James Montgomery Flagg, Albert Keller, the senior Mrs. Vanderbilt, Billy Rose, John Chapman, Bishop Manning and Joseph Hergesheimer. These are random names that make the news of the day, and, with the single exception of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is a lady of some years and would hardly be expected to take in washing, there is not one of them who is not commercially or professionally employed and entirely dependent for his fame and income on his own efforts and genius.

To talk about the idle rich of New York is the most extravagantly comical poppycock ever heard of. There aren't any. And 999 names out of every thousand that are printed day by day in the papers are names that have been achieved on a working basis. Paragraphers, reporters, editors and columnists simply don't print any others. If the people who make the news have a whim to change wives, bathe behind the ears in vintage champagne or ride in solid platinum Minerva motors it would seem to be their right. With the possible exception of Tommy Manville, they have made their own money.

—o-o—

● ONLY A FEW YEARS AGO an institution known as "the ghoul pool" flourished in any number of the city rooms of New York papers. The names of a hundred leading citizens who, because of age or infirmities were known to be skirmishing with the Grim Reaper and whose obituaries therefore were prepared up to date or even standing in type, were drawn from a waste-basket usually by an office secretary wearing a ribbon reading "Miss Charon" and distributed to members of the staff who had subscribed to the pool. The winner, of course, was the reporter holding the name of the first "loss to the state and nation" to appear on the obit page. Irving Hoffman reports to this department that at the present writing the ghoul pool, with slight variations, is a highly popular if macabre diversion in the better Hollywood studios. Instead of banking on death, the inhabitants of Sunset prefer simple disaster and subscribers to the pool hold the names of resounding big shots, the prize going to the holder of the first name to lose his job. The turnover is reported to be tremendous.

MR. WINCHELL, who misses no bets, has established a listening post at Henry Halper's social Madison avenue drug store. He knows that Halper's runners take out breakfast to a flock of the more social bachelors and maidens in the vicinity. . . Most notable of the terrific crush of new night spots is the Penthouse Club, in Central Park South, which has opened with a French and Russian menu and the only genuine wood-burning fireplace this side of the reporters' room of "The Boston Globe" . . . It's run by white folks, with Ricky de Lait and Mrs. John M. Gates among the sponsors and entrepreneurs . . . One of these days some righteous and cash-paying passenger is going to rise and smite the detestable innards out of the nastiest menace of modern human contriving, the radio in the observation car, where you can't escape it.

PUBLIC BOGEY MAN Number ONE

Orson Welles, Broadway Boy Wonder, Has Had A Spectacular Career.

By Ralph E. Renaud

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

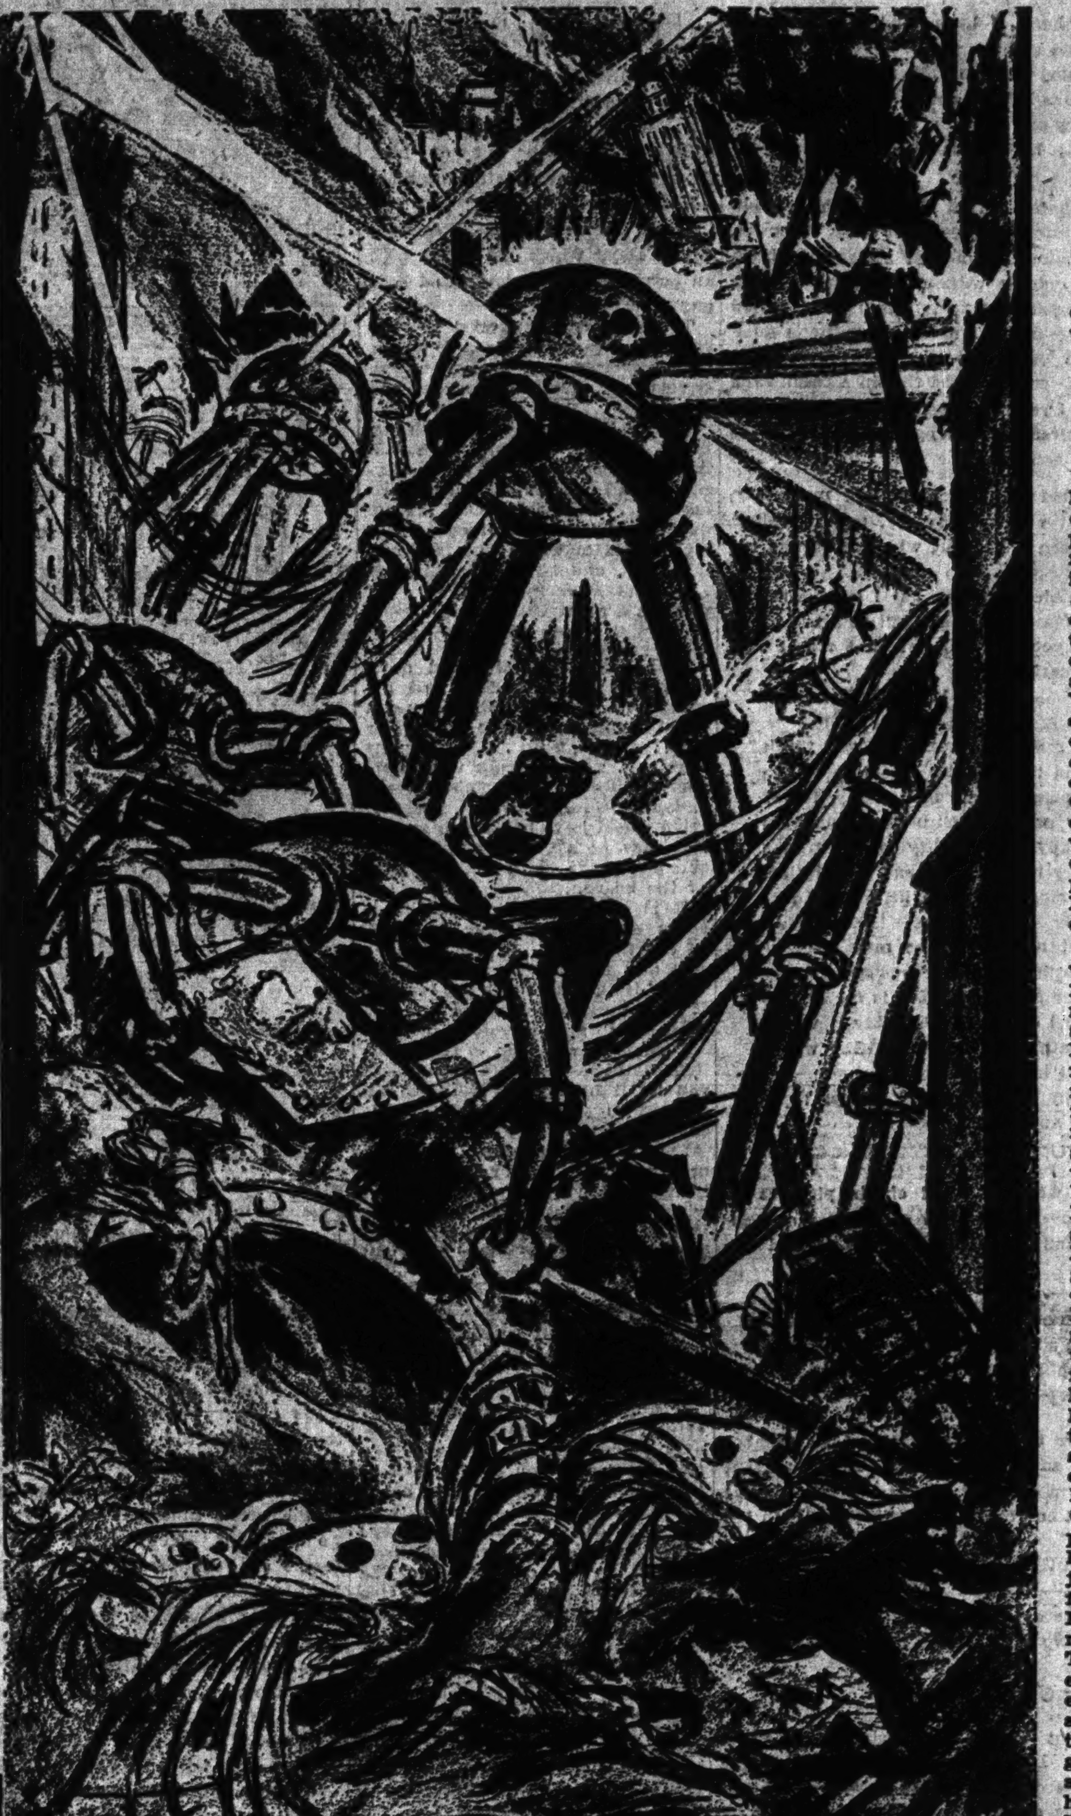
NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

PROBABLY when Orson Welles is an old, old man with a long white beard tucked in his vest he will still remain America's enfant terrible. Just now he is a very young man, a very bewildered young man, the particular young man who frightened his countrymen out of their wits by turning the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse loose on them over the air.

In fact it was something even a little grimmer than the grim horsemen. A horse, like cousin Egbert in "Ruggles of Red Gap," can be "pushed just so fur." But these slimy octopi from Mars made nothing of interplanetary space and landed, with all their equipment of death rays and poison smoke screens, at Princeton, of all places. One would think that Princeton has been punished enough on the football field. But the Martians, like everybody else, picked it for a shining mark. At least they did in the little radio drama sponsored by young Mr. Welles and his Mercury Theater Group over a national network. Welles thought his broadcast was going to be a bust and consequently bolstered it with every legitimate and illegitimate device of "realism" he could think of. He is a pretty fast thinker, too. Unfortunately he panicked 'em from coast to coast.

Everybody knows the story now. It was one of those things which can't happen here. Hysterical crowds rushing into the street. Screaming women bouncing into churches to announce the end of the world. Refugees fleeing to the hills in overcrowded cars. Doctors and nurses volunteering for war service against the Martians. Traffic snarled up all over New Jersey. The telephone systems of three states choked with frantic calls. Students fainting on campuses. One woman calling her son at Princeton to tell him: "Hell's busted loose! It's hot even where I am."

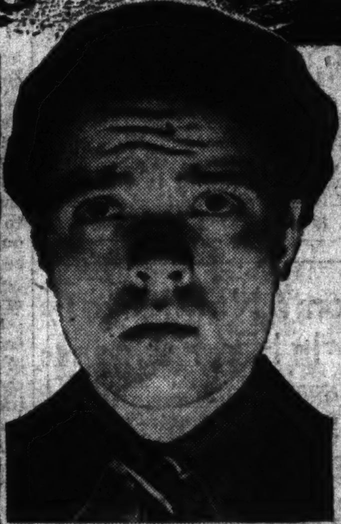
It is still pretty hot where Welles is. Some people think he ought to be spanked. This might be difficult because he stands six feet two and is rather robust for his size and age. Others would compromise on exiling him to Mars. Still others are inclined to be lenient. Welles himself once airily suggested that radio appeals to an eleven-year-old intelligence. During his latest broadcast a good many thousand adult Americans did seem to exercise the full I Q of the early grammar grades. Welles' milder critics refer to the taxi drivers who kept their heads right through the panic simply because they don't cut in on their radio programs but keep their dials tuned in all the time. They knew they were listening to a fictional catastrophe and gave their frenzied customers the Bronx cheer. Even this didn't prove notably comforting in the general terror. However, everybody is now agreed that it can't be allowed to happen again, especially Charlie McCarthy who broadcasts Sunday nights at the same hour.



ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF THOSE TERRIBLE MARTIANS.

AND THIS IS WHAT THE ACTUAL "INVASION" LOOKED LIKE. WELLES, WITH ARMS UPRAISED, IS SHOWN DIRECTING HIS GROUP IN A RADIO REHEARSAL.

Welles himself, when he recovers from his present daze, may recall the Martian broadcast as one of his more outstanding successes, though only one of them. He has a cheerful tendency to look on the brighter side of things, though not in his choice of dramatic material. He likes that gruesome. To cook up the Martian hoax, which was never intended as a hoax, he had to dig deep into the W's. There was the W in his own name, the W in the name of the elder Welles, who wrote the original horror story 40 years ago, and the double W's in the title "The War of the Worlds." There is enough in that old novel to "freeze the young blood" and cause "each particular hair to stand on end like quills upon the fretful porcupine" without transferring it to the air. But if the public had not acted so hastily and only waited for another broadcast they might have learned that the Martians, so shattering to everybody's morale at first, in the end succumbed to the germ of the common cold and sneezed themselves to death.



ORSON WELLES . . . BOO!

SOME of Welles' friends look on this latest episode in his short life as confirmation of their opinion that he is just a plain screwball. Others insist that he is an erratic genius. The genius theory prevails. Welles is not exactly neutral but inclined to be receptive. "A genius?" he laughs. "Perhaps. I'm either the genius they say or the world's Godawfulest ham. It's a 50-50 split." Offhand even quizz and questionnaire addicts will find difficulty in recalling anybody who ever got so far in so many fields at the age of 23. He is today not only the foremost fair-haired boy of Broadway, but a radio script writer, a radio actor, a mural painter, a cartoonist, a water colorist, a music critic, a magician, a detective story writer, a classical scholar and an ankle sprainer. Of course, it is his own ankles he sprains. Under the stress of feeling he has a tendency to sprain an ankle. One of his biographers says he once sprained an ankle chinning himself. At this juncture newspapers in New York are momently expecting a brief announcement that Welles has sprained another ankle. Everybody hopes he has not sprained his career.

Orson Welles is said to be a descendant of Gideon Welles, the downeast Yankee who was Lincoln's efficient Secretary of the Navy. The future press agent of the Martians was born in Kenosha, Wis., which he now describes as "a nasty little Middle Western city." People who think he is older than he looks, or looks older than he is, still quarrel over his birth records but there is not doubt about the date. It was May 6, 1915. His father, Dick Welles, was an erratic inventor who turned away from the automobile, which he did not believe had arrived to stay, to perfect the bicycle lamp. He also worked out a picnic kit with which the Government, in a spirit of optimism, equipped the boys going overseas to the big parade. Just where Orson got his flair for the theater nobody knows. The torch may have been handed on while his father was barnstorming for a while through the Southwest in "Charley's Aunt." Old Dick was ever a wanderer and bummed half over the world with his young son for pleasant, though not exclusive company.

Young Orson imbibed the spirit of Chicago's "I will" at two when the family moved there. It was about that time that a Chicago Civic Opera soprano borrowed him to play the little what-do-you call-it. Or rather the offspring of "Madam Butterfly." This early debut on the stage implanted the germ; Orson Welles has never been able to get away from the theater since. It haunted his boyhood and occupied his manhood. It might be best to skip his education for he never had any particular sort that one can put a finger on except at the Todd School, in Woodstock, Ill. This is a private school, a progressive institution, one of the few preparatory schools that turns out boys who are different. Even at school it was the theater that interested the little Welles boy and a large part of the curriculum, for him, consisted of directing the Todd troupers. One of his jobs with the dramatic society was a production of "Julius Caesar," a bud which was to become a gigantic flower on Broadway not so many years later. But during that period his only really professional appearance was as an Easter bunny at Marshall Field's department store.

Welles became a nice young man with rosy cheeks and an orphan at 16. He hadn't quite made up his mind whether to become a dramatic artist or an "art artist," as Mayor Hylan used to call it. Some of his friends told him it might be more respectable to become an art artist and, indeed, in some ways it might have been. At any rate he set out for Scotland and Ireland with a box of water colors, a sketch block and not much else. In Ireland he bought a donkey cart and started off in search of fairy rings. But he found no rings or crocks of gold and near Dublin his funds ran out. So he sold the donkey. When he reached Dublin he had enough money left either for a meal or a ticket to the Gate Theater. Comforted by the thought that the donkey, at least, now had enough hay he chose the theater ticket. After the performance he went back stage and convinced them either by direct implication or otherwise, that he was 25 years old and a Theater Guild actor. He has plenty of stage presence and the Irish are a kind-hearted folk. P. S.: He got the job. He found himself elevated from an Easter Bunny into "the King in the Hamlet." He simply reveled in his roles at the Gate Theater and apparently the audiences reveled with him. He was even loaned to the Abbey Players as a famous American guest-star. All this time he was supposed to be getting ready to go to Harvard but actually, though he didn't know it, he was getting ready to go home. The office, prodded into deciding there were too many American actors messing around the British Isles, especially at the Gate Theater, invited him to depart. Something might be put in here about giving him the gate.

IN New York the eminent Gate Theater product couldn't even get a walk-on part. So he sailed for Africa in a huff, or rather in one of the regular steamers for Morocco. Perhaps the sound of Morocco suggested a book. He met a native chieftain whom he had known in Paris and paid him a long visit. Finding he had plenty of privacy while the family followed the ritual of the Koran he started the book. It turned out to be "Everybody's Shakespeare," with sketches and costume designs by the author in the margins and a lot of entertaining and instructive stage directions. It was published in Chicago and so successfully that it caused for the first time an echo of Orson Welles' name to be heard on Broadway.

Yet within a year he was to reach the main stem himself. Through Thorton Wilder and Alexander Woollcott he was sent to Katharine Cornell. She wanted the young man for Marchbanks in "Candida" but it was his Tybalt in her production of "Romeo and Juliet" that impressed the critics. Welles is always a noticeable actor. He has a big, booming voice and a certain ruthlessness of approach. The critics noticed him. After the tour ended he supervised some summer weeks of repertory back home in Illinois.

There he acquired a wife in the person of Virginia Nicolson, a nice Chicago girl. That was only in 1934, but since then he has been acquiring things steadily including a daughter, a Lincoln limousine, one

"Moon Hoax"

ORSON WELLES' broadcast of an imaginary invasion from Mars caused panic among a relatively small proportion of Americans for a few hours. It brings to mind, however, a deliberate hoax which fooled, without causing fear, thousands of Americans.

It was the great "Moon Hoax," "the discovery that the moon has a vast population of human beings," which appeared in the New York Sun in August and September of 1835. Purporting to be an account of "Great astronomical Discoveries lately made by Sir John Herschel, LL.D., F.R.S, at the Cape of Good Hope," and reprinted from the Edinburgh Journal of Science, it related how Sir John, with the aid of a telescope that brought the moon to within half a mile of the earth visually, found the moon the home of plants, animals, and a man-like, intelligent creature with membraneous wings.

The first front page, three-column story, Aug. 25, 1835, aroused only scientific interest, for it related the invention and transportation to the Cape of Good Hope of the telescope. The next day there were four columns of revelations about the moon, and readers began to buzz with excitement. By the fourth day so great was the interest that all other topics were forgotten, and the publisher was able to announce the largest circulation of any daily in the world. For on that day appeared the grand denouement—the discovery of the "bat-men" of the planet.

Several days later, the actual author came to light as Richard Adams Locke, Sun reporter, who had concocted the story from his imagination and a knowledge of astronomy. However, it was not until Sept. 16 that the Sun admitted the fiction, and passed it off as an intended satire that had been taken too literally. The story had done its work, for it had definitely "made" the Sun, then only two years old.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

my Opinion by Martha Carr

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN you help me solve this problem? I have a nephew nearly 18 years old of whom I am very fond and for whom I have the greatest sympathy. Since he was a tiny tot, his father (my brother-in-law) has seemed to resent him and has had no patience; the boy's misdemeanors and faults are always vastly exaggerated; his 14-year-old brother always excused.

It is pathetic that the boy, who is well-behaved, intelligent, does not drink or smoke, cannot make an innocent statement or express an opinion without being snapped off with a caustic remark. During this period of life a youngster needs his father's guidance and understanding. I have tried to tell my sister's husband this in a calm, sane way but I receive either an angry retort or the rehearsal of a long list of things he gives his son.

The lad wants for nothing materially, but he woefully lacks what he most needs—sympathy, understanding, love from a dad who should have been a pal, but who has turned out to be a "pill."

The boy treats the matter in a stoical manner, but I believe this to be a defense mechanism and I have fears that there will be a bad effect psychologically. Is there anything you can suggest that might help my sister and me to remedy this situation?

Thank you for your attention. WORRIED AUNT.

Generally, the boy does not realize as keenly as you think the difficulty of the situation and is not quite so aware of the reasons for his position; young persons can, fortunately, forget at least for the time when they are busy with other interests and occupations that there is any abnormality in a parent's attitude. And sometimes this very indifference, and resignation, only spurs an irritable man the more to "get a little spirit and energy into him."

Your nephew is at the point now where he may possibly be affected psychologically; consequently his nervous system may suffer. I believe the very best temporary solution is for him to go away for study, training, travel or work. Probably it would help him, also, to get out of an atmosphere of sympathy which you and his mother show toward him.

Ask your physician if the boy is in any real danger right now, and enlist his understanding and help.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● COULD YOU PLEASE tell me where I could obtain pictures of such composers as Mozart or Beethoven, and such conductors as Toscanini? I am very fond of music and I am very anxious to find the pictures. E. B.

The art and novelty departments of the large shops, and sometimes book shops and music stores have these photographs for sale. If not, then possibly could send for them for you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THE R. FAMILY has been known to our organization for a number of years. The children are active in some of our work. At the present time the children are in need of warm clothing. Whatever you may be able to do to supply these needs, will be greatly appreciated by both the family and the Caroline Mission.

Respectfully yours, TILLIE HAHLEN, Social Worker.

If you will send in to me the ages, sizes, etc., and whether boys or girls, I may be able to help you through the kindness of readers.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr::

● SINCE ENTERING this Mount Vernon Sanatorium three years ago, I've started collecting stamps. But since I know so few people (and not all of those know I am here), I wondered if you would put this item in your column and maybe a few of your readers would be kind enough to send me some.

I would be thrilled to get either foreign or United States stamps. And I thank you so much. H. D.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE ARE TWO GIRLS, 15 and 16 years of age and we would like some advice. First, have you a good remedy for freckles? Second, we have a group of girls who come to our house every Saturday evening and we have run out of entertainment. Would you please give us some suggestions? Thank you. FRANKI AND VICKI.

Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will mail you a remedy for freckles and also some games.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr::

I WOULD LIKE TO KNOW where to address a letter to Kay Francis? Also, do you know of any book I could get on dancing, so that I might dance better and also learn how I can stop being scared when I try to dance with a boy. I can dance with girls, but not with young men. Thanks. P. F.

Address Kay Francis, care of Warner Brothers, Burbank, Cal. Go to main library and ask to see some books on dancing. After examining them, you can decide which best answers your requirements and which to buy. I will mail my folder on "Popularity" to you if you will send the self-addressed, stamped envelope. You might find a suggestion which will help you to be less self-conscious.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

SOME TIME AGO you published a letter signed "Overworked-Eyes' to which I would like to reply: Why don't you let down that barrier of "reserve" to which you refer, and accept the friendship which has been offered you time and again? Friendship must be met half way and whenever it is offered if we expect to derive any pleasure from it. There is a wide difference between "reserve" and "rebuff" which is deadly to friendship. The thing that you have named "reserve" has, at different times, been termed, total indifference, queerness, selfishness, and from the position you hold, snobbishness, by the people around you. It has been said that we get out of life only what we put into it.

Are you happy behind your reserve? A WELL-WISHER.

The Spirit and Its Potency in Person's Life

"Nothing Can Hurt Individual Unless He Gives It Power to Hurt Him."

By Elsie Robinson

"THERE is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him; but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man. —Mark 7:15.

These are hard days. Poisonous days. Days which are filled with an actual poison of doubt and hate and fear.

These are difficult and dangerous days for anyone to face. There is tumult everywhere. Not just in the streets . . . but in our hearts and heads.

Things have lost their meaning, their stability. People have lost their purpose and their pride. Everyone and everything seems drifting . . . dissolving. Our life today is like one of those awful nightmares in which one falls and falls . . . clutching at nothingness . . . screaming into nothing . . . through a night without stars.

—o-o—

THESE ARE really bad days. They can easily disrupt and demoralize a sensitive spirit. You can see it happening. People losing their grip . . . giving up . . . taking the count . . . not caring what happens. Once public opinion would have restrained them . . . personal pride would have held them steady. But now both public opinion and personal pride seem to have gone by the board.

It is easy to think that life is going to the dogs on days like these. Of course it isn't. If you will keep cool and think hard, you will see that it isn't. But that's the trouble. It is so hard to keep cool . . . so hard not to give way to panic.

Perhaps it will help to remember this—nothing can hurt you unless you let it hurt you. Nothing can demoralize you unless you let it demoralize you.

I'm not talking about the body, or physical accident or financial upheavals. I'm talking about that which lies deeper than the body, that which determines the issue of life and decides whether you will be happy or unhappy—your own spirit. As long as that spirit isn't hurt, nothing can get you down. But if that spirit surrenders, anything can get you down.

—o-o—

THAT SPIRIT is the most powerful thing in your life. It is the only powerful thing. The things that happen to you have no power in themselves except as your spirit gives them power. That is why one man can laugh off the sneer which wrecks another. One man decided he would be hurt. The other decided he wouldn't. One man gave the insult power . . . the other refused to do so.

Nothing can hurt you unless you give it power to hurt you. Unpleasant things may happen all around you, but they can't happen to you unless you let them happen. Doubt can't harm you . . . threats can't harm you . . . viciousness, weakness, insecurity and hardship can't harm you, unless you let them.

It's all up to you. It's all in you—the power to take or refuse.

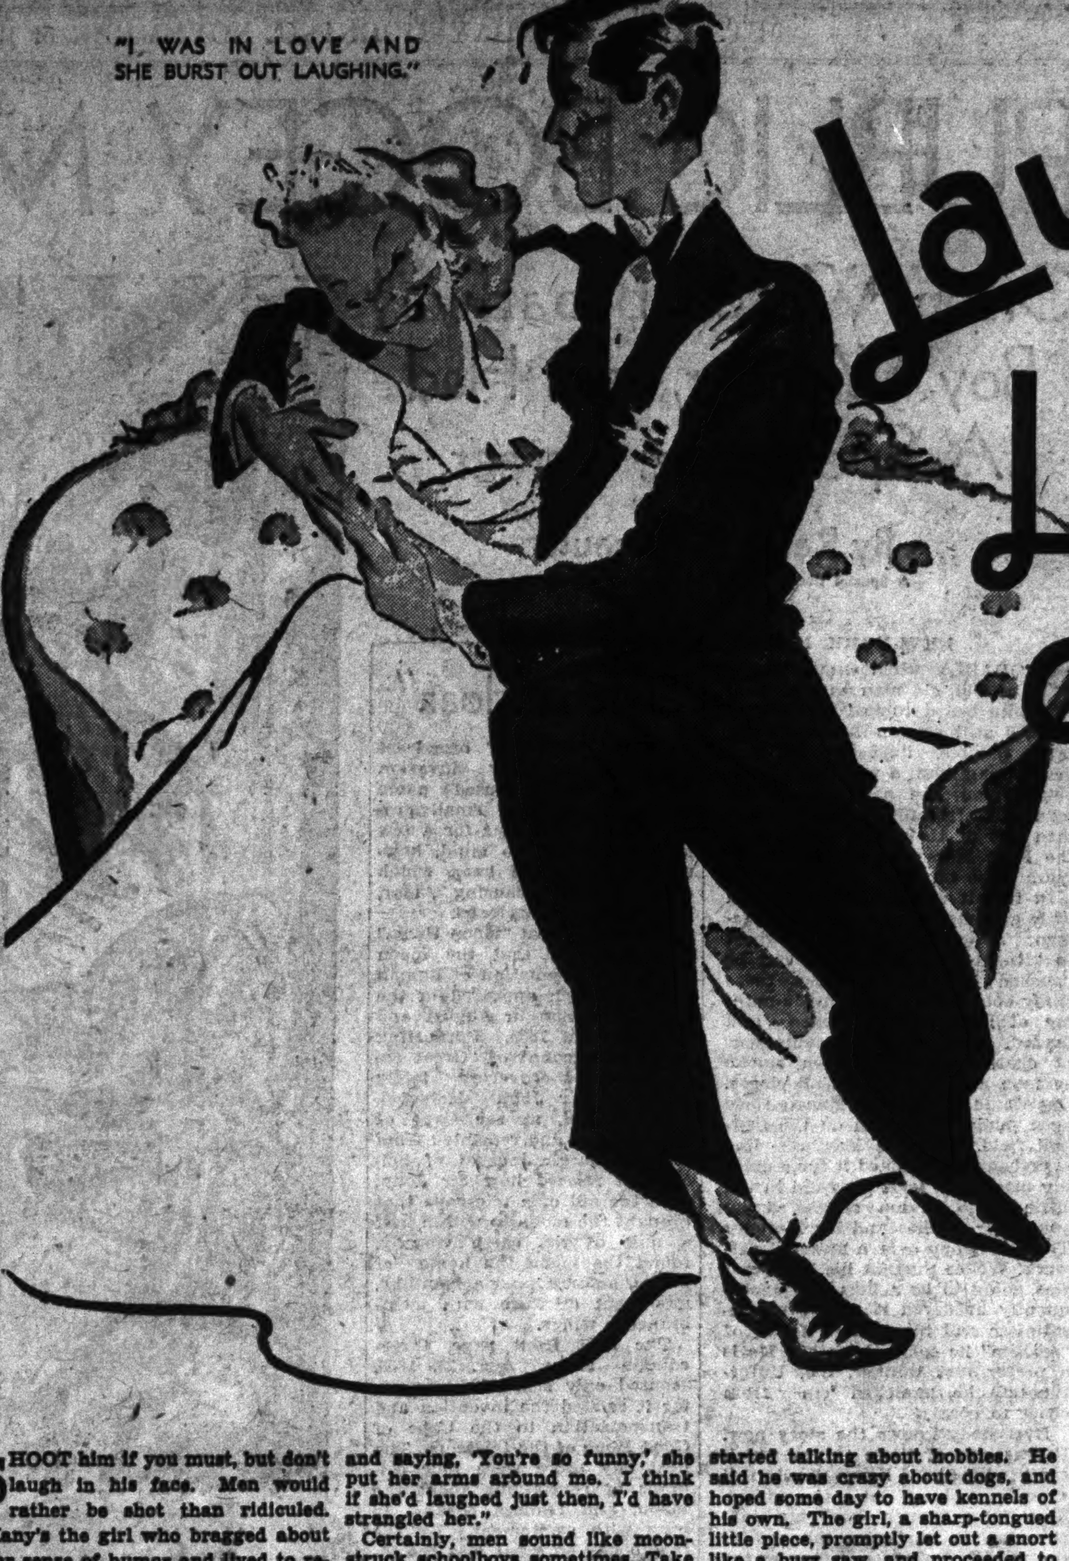
This isn't part of any creed or cult. It's the simple truth which you demonstrate yourself a hundred times a day. I have said it in many clumsy words. The Bible says is in a few straight ones, quoted at the top of this column. Read them again, and meditate on them in connection with your own life.

Some New Notes In Hat Fashions

DON'T be discouraged if you find you are not typed to wear the coy little hats that perch over one eye and harbor everything from birds' nests to a tree of bows. Some of the new high hats are infinitely more becoming. And, moreover, the flat Gibson sailor is in again with its flattering veil, and that's something most anyone can wear.

High hats are not heavy-looking. Brims are small usually, and the crowns are so manipulated that they lend complimentary lines to the face. Whether you are slim-faced or round-faced, you can wear a visor brim with an irregular crown.

A very new note in millinery is the postillion hat with its very high crown and moderately curled brim. One model displayed recently was executed in black felt with a band of wide black satin ribbon girdling the crown, one end falling over the back of the head, a line which is also becoming to the woman who needs a little something to frame her face or detract from her neck. These are just a few of the new models, proving that milliners still have a heart for the woman who is looking for something both smart and becoming.



"I WAS IN LOVE AND SHE BURST OUT LAUGHING."

Laugh and Lose Him!

Revealing Dangers That Lurk Behind Those Icy Tinkles Of Disdain; They Cast Frosty Blight On Warmest Love

By Hildegarde Dolson

Author of "How About a Man?"

SHOOT him if you must, but don't laugh in his face. Men would rather be shot than ridiculed. Many's the girl who bragged about her sense of humor and lived to regret it. One trilling laugh or ill-timed snicker has blasted many a romance to bits. Because men hate to be laughed at.

It's all very well for you to sit there and say the conceited things need to be taken down a peg or two. Maybe they do, but laughing at the wrong time isn't the way to go about it. Your smile might freeze on your pretty face if you heard what men have to say about it. One disillusioned young bachelor gave us a start when he said: "It's more than a matter of vanity, with men. A woman who laughs at him may be showing up her own hard-boiled meanness. And that's the toughest jolt a man in love can get." He continued by telling us about taking his girl to the movie of "Mayerling." The final scene between the lovers before their suicide moved him so deeply he reached over and took his girl's hand. "Maybe I was sentimental," he said, in telling us about it, "but remember, I was in love, and somehow it got me. When we left the theater and got in my car, I tried to tell her how I felt. She burst out laughing and called me an old softie. I felt as though I'd been hit below the belt, and I think I fell out of love right then and there."

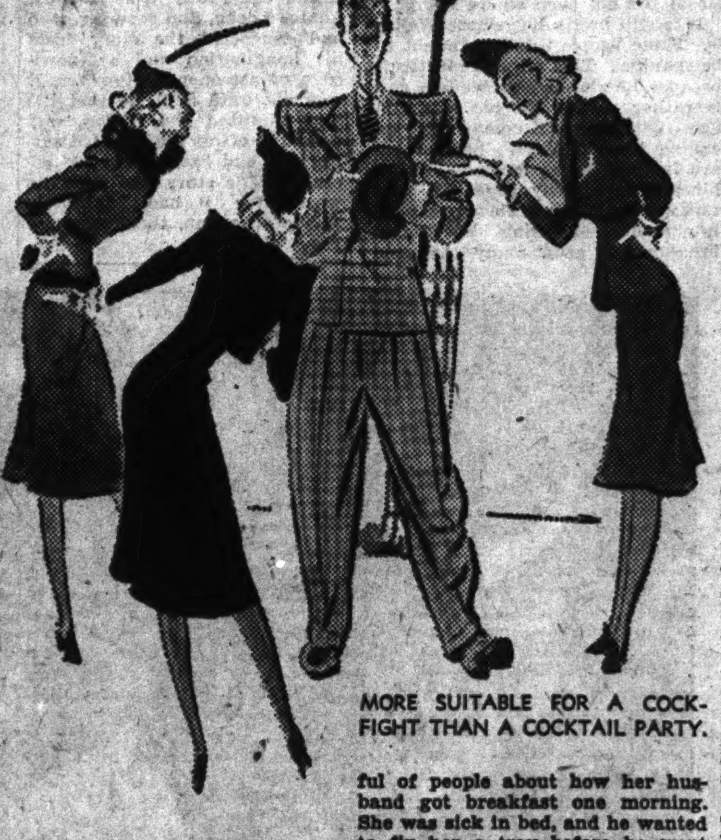
Say all you like about men being, calloused brutes, but who are we to throw rocks? One of the reasons they adopt that hard-shelled attitude is to defend themselves from our barbed-wire laughter.

A man in love is hyper-sensitive, and especially vulnerable where you're concerned. Use every ounce of tenderness and tact you possess to protect his vanity. A writer told us about having his dream girl at his apartment for dinner one night. He said: "We were sitting beside the woodfire that evening. She had her head on my shoulder, and I was so crazy about her I couldn't think up enough words to tell her. So I quoted some verse that said what I wanted to say. Instead of giggling and saying, 'You're so funny,' she put her arms around me. I think if she'd laughed just then, I'd have strangled her."

Certainly, men sound like moonstruck schoolboys sometimes. Take it as a compliment, and not an occasion for sarcastic glee. Another thing—let a man babble on about his dreams and ambitions, even if they include cliches like a rose-covered cottage or a retreat in the South Seas. He expects understanding, and one cutting laugh will shut him up for good.

One older bachelor told us he went to see a girl one night 30 years ago, for the express purpose of asking her to marry him. She'd shown very plainly that she was waiting to coo, "Yes." While he was trying to get up nerve to broach the crucial question they started talking about hobbies. He said he was crazy about dogs, and hoped some day to have kennels of his own. The girl, a sharp-tongued little piece, promptly let out a snort like a buzz saw, and proceeded to make fun of his mythical kennels. Not just one amiable crack, but a withering barrage that made him sound like a fool. The man walked out her door, and for all we know, she's still an old maid.

We heard one wife tell a roomful of people about how her husband got breakfast one morning. She was sick in bed, and he wanted to fix her a tray before he went to the office.



MORE SUITABLE FOR A COCKFIGHT THAN A COCKTAIL PARTY.

We'll admit she made a good story of it—the bacon she thought was charcoal—the oatmeal full of rocks and the coffee like cough syrup. She went at it hammer and tongs for 10 minutes, while her audience roared, and her husband sat with a sickly grin. That's what our masculine critic meant when he said women carry it too far.

Granted that men often make fun of our scatter-brained notions, our pretty terror of mice, or the way we hold a golf club. But they're seldom cruelly sarcastic, and they seldom over-do it.

Another sensitive point we stress again is hobbies. If his three-feet-square garden produces only weeds and inedible vegetables, don't wither him with biting laughter. If he wants to diddle around his stamps, or turn out surrealist paintings, or invent a better rat-trap, try a little encouragement instead of razzing him ragged. If he goes fishing for tarpon and comes home with a tadpole, don't entertain your dinner guests with amusing accounts of his failure.

—o-o—

AND if you're a smart woman, you'll realize that men are surprisingly sensitive about their clothes. Don't scream with laughter and tell a man his shirt and tie are more suitable for a cock-fight than a cocktail party. Even if he appears in a derby that makes his ears flap in the wind, don't go into happy hysterics. The professor of a big Eastern university told us about going to his first faculty dinner party.

Being young and broke, he wore an old, too-small dinner jacket, and felt uncomfortable about that, to start with. Half-way through the evening, he looked down and realized with horror that he'd worn tan shoes by mistake.

That was 10 years ago, but he said it still made him break into a cold sweat when he remembered the way the women snickered that evening. Little incidents like that can increase the ranks of women-haters overnight.

And there's another kind of laughter that makes men grim with rage. That's the icy tinkle of derision when you try to discredit another woman. For example, if a man admires the toothsome blonde number at the adjoining table, don't proceed laughingly to tear her into tatters. If you want to make fun of her hair-dye or her flash-bank clothes or her table manners, wait and let off steam to another friendly female.

And have you ever been guilty of laughing at the wrong time in public? If your man pulls a boner or stumbles on a dance floor, or in any way lays himself open to ridicule, stand by and help him regain his poise. Don't hoot with laughter and betray him in front of outsiders. As one embittered male said: "I want a woman who laughs with me, and not at me."

Remember, it's the laughing hyenas that get left.

Handsome Alliance

Satin and antelope form one of the most handsome alliances you could find for accessories. They appear together in several elaborate bags, one of which adds a wide draped handle of satin to a softly draped bag of the leather. Another bulky bag that presents elegant features is made of alternating draped sections of the silk and the leather.

The draped turban combining the same companions is a smart addition to a costume and looks most impressive when assembled with a bag. Gloves also use this same alliance, some afternoon and evening types that are made of antelope introducing draped cuff sections or draped godets of the satin.

TOMORROW YOU'LL WEAR—

FLOWERS for evening, but in a new way. Boutonniere on the toe of your slipper and in your hair, a matching flower hair ornament. Fashion's latest idea of a flower ensemble.

—a little ostrich trimmed velvet muff with your favorite dinner suit. The muff is a handbag and very Victorian in feeling.

—earrings designed to suit your own ear structure. For the not-so-perfect ear, a great concealing ring or disc-size clip—for the perfect ear, a pendant or cluster of gold and stones.

—bathing suits for winter resorts with a very Victorian feeling. And jewelry and high hair-dos to complement them.

—the vineyard shades in every hue from cyclamen to grape in winter cruise clothes.

—Plaid in your corsets and brassieres, a smart thought for wear under wool dresses and sports clothes.

—Taffeta bathing suits in the manner of the Victorians, with your hair piled atop your head in a studied coiffeur.

—Violet tints on your nails. This new color in nail polish to go with your blue and violet dresses.

Baby's Stockings

The bane of mother's existence is to keep young son's white stockings clean from the time he is dressed to go out until he is started on his way. One mother has an old pair of white stockings from which she has removed the feet and she slips these over the good pair until just before leaving the house, thereby saving herself much worriment.

High Winds

Do not hang delicate things out to dry on days when the wind is wild and high. Dry the sturdy fabrics out of doors but dry the fine things in the basement. A high wind can whip the finer things to pieces.

Girl about Town by Clarissa Start

ABSOLUTELY unsolicited, we are going to give you, if you will stay with us a couple of minutes, a brief course in appreciation of the violin as a work of art, this coming to you as the result of a chat with Frederick J. Buckley, veteran violin maker of 4048 Olive street.

Buckley made his first violin when he was 13 years old. In the intervening years he has sold 55 of his own make and, in addition, has repaired instruments for most of the concert artists in the country.

A slim, gray-haired man, with long, artistic hands, Buckley talks of famous violins and their makers for centuries back, and of the qualities that distinguish a violin masterpiece from a mediocre imitation. The tone and the appearance, or "varnish," are the two determining factors, we learned, and although there are about half a dozen excellent violin makers in this country at present, most of the violins made "have nothing to say." The famous Italian "cry" common to Stradivarius and Guarnerius violins cannot be duplicated, while the Stradivarius secret of varnishing a violin so that the varnish is practically in the wood is considered an irrevocably lost art, though every now and then there is a flurry of excitement over a reported discovery, and probably every violin maker since his time has dreamed of some day perfecting a varnish of similar quality.

Buckley's reminiscences sparkle with famous names, as is to be expected, but even more with picturesque similes. He will explain the secret of a part of the bow by comparing it with a "slack rope," or in describing a varnish, he will say with enthusiasm, "It was as shiny as grape jelly on a silver spoon."

—o-o—

BUCKLEY has a hobby, in the making and sailing of model yachts, a hobby which he took up a number of years ago, he relates, chiefly to provide an interest for a son, stricken with infantile paralysis. Since, then, however, the model yachts have won both of them medals and much renown.

Buckley was born in a seacoast town of Nova Scotia, which accounts for the yatching interest, but has been in St. Louis, at the Olive street location for 32 years. He intends staying on at these quarters for a number of years, he says, and is going to keep right on making violins with the few rudimentary tools he has always used. He showed us the tools, by the way, and their very simplicity makes this whole business of violin making look deceptively easy. The key to this craft was revealed when he held out his hand, steadily without the slightest tremor of nerves.

"See," he said triumphantly, "perfectly still."

After all, he pointed out, Stradivarius made some of his best violins when he was 90. "I'm just 65," he says, "and I have an idea I'll be just as good when I'm 75."

—o-o—

SEVERAL WEEKS AGO we sang the praises of the man who holds the all-time chilblains record by virture of 25 years' attendance at football games. This week we have, in diametric opposition, a man whose face must surely be red, if not singed, by now, for he has, he claims, seen every major fire in St. Louis for the past 25 years and most of the less than stellar attractions.

He is Peter G. Fix, a North Side representative, and a man certainly to be envied by both the small boys who look wistfully out of school windows and the business men who look equally wistfully out of office windows when the fire engines go rumbling by. Fix claims that his hobby has been quite educational and he has watched with interest the changes in fire fighting equipment and methods through the years. He has also been a personal friend of all the fire chiefs to date, he informed us, and lists as the biggest fire he has ever witnessed, the Missouri Athletic Association conflagration.

Well, we'll probably be seeing you, Mr. Fix—just as soon as our spouse starts his first concentrated maneuverings with the furnace this winter.

—o-o—

IT HAS BEEN SUGGESTED that this department design a bronze plaque to be presented to a young mother seen shopping in a downtown department store during a recent sale day. This foresighted woman, it seems, was leading her small boy around on a leash attached to a dog collar around his waist. Now other mothers may rise up in horror at this "inhuman" treatment of a mere tot, but anyone who has been tripped and thrown for a dead loss by some kiddie dashing merrily under the feet of the crowd, or has had mother's little darling roguishly wind a length from the remnant table around her struggling limbs, will heartily indorse the measure. Not wishing to take part in any resultant controversy, we hereby turn the whole thing over to the Society of Modern American Trail Blazers.

MARGIA MOODY IN A DRESS SHE DESIGNED THREE YEARS AGO. UPPER LEFT, EXAMINING SOME OF HER OWN HANDIWORK.

A Creative Artist with Many Interests

THEY hear themselves called the "Mad Moodys," do Mrs. Patricia Moody and her daughter, Margia. They don't mind for they have to acknowledge they're so full of contradictions, they are unpredictable even to themselves.

Margia is as cute a little number as anybody in her young set could hope to meet. She is small and shapely with great wide blue eyes, waving honey-colored hair and a profile that's like a cameo. She is the fragile, Dresden china type of beauty and she is just 21. Boys and girls coming to her home at 6926 Kingsbury boulevard are apt to find her going into a dance, clog, tap or toe ballet. She may set them down to a meal she has prepared with her own hands for she loves to cook when the maid in the kitchen will let her. She may dash to the piano and play from memory a musical air she has merely heard to the accompaniment of a set of stand-by bass chords. She may produce a lump of modeling clay and start a bust of her caller. With lightning charcoal sketches to refresh her memory, it may be a finished sculptured likeness of him next time he calls.

If you have a date with her, she may appear in a dress which is totally at variance with this season's modes, yet is somehow convincing and proves to be prophetic. If you can remember the dress she wore two or three years ago, you have to acknowledge it was the very style girls are appearing in this year, off the shoulders, wide bouffant skirt extended by hoops. Once she floated in dressed for a party in ceil blue chiffon—37 yards of it—made with cowl neck, sleeve draperies billowing away from bare arms then attached to the wrist, a skirt built like a morning glory and long diaphonous circular cape with a hood. Not until some time afterward did Marlene Dietrich in "The Garden of Allah," launch the vogue of just such a "monastic" type of garment. From which episode you have to agree Margia has a gift for predicting styles. "They come in cycles," she explains, "you only have to study or feel them."

You go to call on Margia expecting, as you've every right to from appearances, a giddy evening of dancing, impromptu music or games. First thing you know you are involved in a long argument on some abstruse subject, such as Shakespeare, natural history, astronomy, the Bible. If you are not right up on every detail of your facts, soon you'll find yourself worsted, for Margia is up on hers and can prove it by references to books in her library, one set of books in particular. She has proved so many moot points by referring to these books that the agent who sold them to her when she was a little girl called back one day and dumped at her feet several other volumes published by his house, saying, "We have sold so many sets of that reference work to people wanting to check up on facts you have brought to their attention that we want to reward you with these other books of learning as a sort of sales commission."

Margia is blessed with one of those photographic memories that enables her to put her finger on the very page and the position on the page of any item of reference she is seeking. Having convinced a conversational adversary of her infallibility, the argument is likely to subside into a one-sided discourse, Margie volubly, tirelessly holding the floor.

I CAN believe that. I dropped in at 9:30 a. m. to see Margia's sculptures and dress designs and it was way past lunch time before I realized it. One of Margia's epigrams was, "All anybody needs of a friend is somebody to brag to." I seemed to have been elected as that kind of friend as I was led to admire one after another proof of Margia's accomplishments.

There were ambitious murals painted by Margia when it was decided the hall needed repapering. There were clever batiks created by Margia. There were oil sketches, souvenirs of a vacation in the Rockies, little things done with a spaciousness worthy of far bigger canvases. There was a sketchbook containing caricatures of some people in church. I guessed from their expressions they were being solicited by the rector to make up a financial deficit. There were innumerable bits of sculpture, imaginative or done with fidelity from models. Do the Moodys need a new lamp, a pair of bookends, an ash tray? Margia models it in clay and has it cast in plaster or pottery. Or maybe she'll carve it out of wood. There were two volumes of poetry by Margia. As is not unusual with creative ability, hers turns readily from one medium to another.

There is a studio for Margia's use on the top floor of the house, another in the basement and on the second floor in a long glass-inclosed sunroom is a long work table, the size used in dress factories. It is here the young woman is proving her accomplishments not just parlor tricks but capable of being turned to practical account. Here she creates a line of 20 original junior dress models each season. Then she turns to the cutting table and drafts the patterns for them. A dress manufactory downtown produces them under the name "Lucienne." In four years since she sold her first dress designs at 17, a market has been built up for them among a really enviable clientele. The very smartest stores in many large cities, according to clippings of ads preserved by Margia, are proud to feature the Lucienne line of frocks for young girls. Margia also is a saleswoman, most effective we may believe when she takes a line of samples out on the road, models them herself and contacts buyers direct.

In all these varied interests Margia is aided and abetted by a doting mother. Both are exponents of the theory of unlimited self expression. Especially conversationally. One prompts the other. They spur each other on in a running fire of conversation.

"Margia is the product of that theory," said Mrs. Moody. "Since she was a little thing no ambition, no aspiration has been too big for her to attempt and I have taken pains never to thwart her, but always to encourage her to express herself in her own original way.

"I sent her to Community and John Burroughs schools because the theories of progressive education practiced there, learning by doing, coincided with mine. The project method of taking a subject and exhausting it in all its aspects accounts for the interests unusual to a young girl that Margia has informed herself upon. As intellectual exercise and for pure enjoyment we take up subjects together, devote an evening to study of some certain style of poetry, some character in a book, some phase of science, discuss and learn all we can about it. When we start on the Bible or Shakespeare there's just no end to it—Margia knew all of Shakespeare and the Bible before she was 10 years old."

—o-o—

A HANDSOME matron, chic that morning in an olive green wool and satin frock, moleskin bolero, small jaunty hat trimmed with canary yellow, maroon and green ostrich, Mrs. Moody told of family connections, Gareschés, McLarens, Jennings, that place her in the midst of a socially entrenched clan locally. And elsewhere, My Goodness! with a grandmother who was a Montague of Virginia, making her second cousin to Wallace Warfield, Duchess of Windsor, no less!

Yet, here comes another contradiction. With all her social and intellectual advantages, Mrs. Moody was on her way to work in a factory. It's her own factory in which she employs 20 machines and many handworkers on little girls' dresses. All day when getting out a new line, she stands at a table designing smart little dresses distinguished for touches of hand work, and figuring costs of production. They are the line of "Lucy Lockett" children's dresses.

"It began when Margia first started to school," Mrs. Moody related. "I was bereft in the child's absence, so turned to making dresses for her to occupy myself. About the same time I came upon a needlewoman, Mrs. Wilhelmina Pfaender from Switzerland, who was doing various kinds of smocking never before seen in this country. I saw she had something perfect as applied to children's dresses. I employed her to teach others and you know the rest, how the vogue of smocking revolutionized children's styles and has continued unabated. When I decided to go into children's dresses wholesale, I was the first to introduce smocking, hand embroidery and real lace to department store goods.

"For eight years I did a splendid business as Lucy Lockett, then came the depression and reverses. I put Lucy Lockett to sleep and went to work at a salary as designer for the largest wholesale dry goods house in St. Louis. A year ago I decided I'd rather sell peanuts for myself than work for somebody else, so I resurrected Lucy Lockett, got Mrs. Pfaender as forewoman of handworkers, and induced my husband, who was during my earlier venture vice-president of Brown Shoe Co., to come with me as salesmanager. Now we are going strong. I am designing 100 new numbers four times a year. We sell hundreds of dozens of each number to the best stores in the country."

I haven't turned the light on half the facets reflected by the versatility of the Moodys. Mad? Maybe that means just having original ideas, the courage of your convictions, assurance and energy to follow them through and make them become realities.

Women Come To Front With Best Sellers

Success of Margaret Mitchell's Book May Have Something to Do With It.

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

IT begins to look as though women authors are going to run the male tale-spinners right up the old elm and chop it down. Never have so many of the girls batted out books that sell like hot coffee in Labrador. I open my gazettes to the book page, and am smacked in the eyes with huge advertisements that brag of the sales exploits of the girls who spin words.

One big block of type says that 220,000 copies of "The Yearling," by Marjorie Rawlings, have been printed—"more than any novel published in America this year." Next door is another hunk of space spreading the glad tidings that the 350,000th copy of "With Malice Toward Some," that elegant chuckler by Margaret Halsey, has just been printed. The ecstatic publishers, the roguish Max Schuster and Dick Simon, blurb it as "America's funniest and fastest-selling book." And now within recent weeks comes shy Anne Morrow Lindbergh, with "Listen! The Wind" under her arm. According to the papers, the first printing of 75,000 was all gone on the day of publication; 25,000 more are ready for the counters, and 30,000 more have been ordered. Goodness, there are 700,000 copies of three hit numbers right there—and the end is far from yet! Add to these the recent hot-cakes by Ruth McKenney, Elizabeth Seifert, Virginia Woolf and the rest, and a million books have tumbled on our confused but devoted heads. What of the old German pigeon-holing for ladies—kitchen, church and children? Now it is typewriter, literary tea and the Riviera!

I have an idea that Margaret Mitchell's phenomenon, "Gone With the Wind," gave the lady literati a terrific nudge. I get around to many of the literary teas, and I find that a big percentage of the feminine hit writers look and act as though they still can't believe it. They appear to have been hit by a fire truck. But, baby, they believe those ducky old royalty checks. They talk out loud.

—o-o—

REMEMBER the tales of the backstage brannigans between Libby Holman and Lupe Velez before their musical show opened here? We expected nothing short of murder any day, saps that we are. Anyhow, the girls are palsy now, and spend week-ends together at Libby's Connecticut estate. My goodness, is everything press agentry? The answers of course is "yes." . . .

—o-o—

THAT OUR FIREBRAND, Talloe Bankhead, will keep on tour this season instead of coming to Broadway, I hear. Her show is considered too feeble to dare the local death-watch. . . .

—o-o—

ROBERTA SEMPLE, daughter of Sister Aimee MacPherson, is working in a radio program here, I learn. Never forget the time I took the wrong door in the Boston Garden and found myself a member of Sister Aimee's choir! "Throw out the lifeline!" I bellowed—and did I mean it!"

—o-o—

EVERY FALL, way down among the Wall street skyscrapers, this treeless, grassless island has a Harvest Home festival at old Trinity Church. Strange paradox, but a lovely service. Fruits and vegetables decorate the historic fane, and this year the Episcopal presiding bishop, Dr. Tucker of Virginia, was in the chancel. . . .

—o-o—

SPEAKING of lady authors, Kate Smith, the warbler, autographed copies of her own book in a local department store, the other day. "Living in a Great Big Way" is the title.

—o-o—

I HEAR from Paris that Uncle Walt Disney, having well earned two college degrees and the praise of the world for his art, is now giving France a "style trend." They say it is based on the influence of Ferdinand the Bull, that peace-loving critter who doesn't fight the matadors. Scenes from Ferdy's home life will be found on dress fabrics, silk scarfs, etc., in the mid-season collections.

—o-o—

TONY DAVIS, wife of Forrest, the writing man, gave a celebrity-ridden cocktail party the other day, at which I milled around among Tom Dewey, Dorothy Thompson, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Stanley Walker, Westbrook Pegler, Mrs. Ogden Reid and others until I met up with Claire Boothe Brokaw Luce in a corner. The author of "The Women" and "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" was good and sore. Some critics lambasted the new show because all its characters are cads, bounders and fakers of both sexes—and now she is writing her next play about nice, sweet people. And she's afraid the critics will think she is chastened, or has softened up and is taking their bombs to heart. She says she started the "nice" play long before the current hit.

Features of General Interest

Let Me Suggest

by Josephine Walter

MOST people, when they eat an egg, find it tasteless unless it is seasoned with salt. Many women find a kiss rather unsatisfactory unless it is bestowed by someone with a mustache. Yet few are the women who see a dull, uninteresting room and can analyze its trouble as lack of trimming. Many rooms that are basically well decorated and yet lack a certain dash—a certain feeling of finish and personality—would be immeasurably improved and benefited by the very simple expedient of adding a bit of trimming here and there.

The use of trimming is one of those small items whereby the professional decorator so often obtains unusual and interesting effects. On the other hand, the amateur usually steers clear of this decorative accent fearing an inability to use it correctly and effectively. And yet, in the doing of a room, a little attention paid to this detail will be well repaid by the added character and interest obtained.

—o-o—

THERE ARE no set rules in the use of trimmings, good taste and judgment, here as elsewhere, being the best guide. However, there are a few rules that might be kept in mind by those who are still hesitant about the use of fringe, as a guide in their selections. First of all, the trimming should be kept in character with the piece it is to adorn, and the entire feeling of the room where it is to be used. Thus, a very elaborate silk fringe should not be used on an informal type of fabric and conversely, a cotton fringe should not be combined with a delicate silk material. Then, the trimming should usually follow the contours of a piece of furniture or the edge of a drapery. Only when a person is adroit and knows exactly what type of an effect they wish to achieve can this latter rule be disregarded successfully.

—o-o—

Fortunately, there are a host of fringes of every type and variety now available to suit any type of room and any kind of fabric, and truly, never have they been lovelier. Most people are already familiar with the more usual types such as the cotton ball and the straight-hanging kind, and the tassels and loops of silk fringe. Many of these, however, are now coming in multicolored effects which have never been seen before. Some are clipped in unusual ways to give added interest as they hang down. Quite new and very much in the glittering mode of today are the fringes made of glass, crystal and mirror, these usually being suited to one of the dressy periods, such as Victorian or Regency or Modern. Decidedly new, too, are those constructed of cellophane which are particularly nice in present day settings.

—o-o—

● IN ADDITION to the fringe mentioned there are many other types of trimmings. Flat braids are now being designed in patterns ranging from provincial types to very sophisticated Greek key effects. These are equally usable as curtain edgings, bandings on the skirts of chairs and couches and as trimming for bedspreads, dressing table skirts and such. There are, too, the already pleated ruffles of chintz which now come in striped and polka dotted patterns as well as plain. And there are all sorts of tassels and cords which may be put to a multitude of uses.

—o-o—

There are innumerable ways of introducing fringes into a room to give it an added touch of individuality. Try for instance, wide organdie ruffles on a heavy drapery to give the effect of glass curtains underneath. If you can do it adroitly, consider making a pattern of heavy moss fringe on the outside arms of a chair or sofa. Try, instead of the regular brush fringe in the seams of your chair, a long, looped fringe which will hang over the sides, but only if you have a fairly dressy room. Get the long fringe that was used on women's evening dresses a few years ago and make a dressing table skirt entirely of it. Snatch some of the ostrich plumes from your best hat and use them as tie-backs in a dressing-room or a dainty young girl's room.

● WHEN YOU COVER that old headboard that has been annoying you for years, try outlining the edge with a very heavy rope. Repeat the rope motif in a series of bands around the bottom of the bedspread. For that rug that was a leftover and never fit, get a deep wool fringe of any required length to increase the size. Buttons may often be used amusingly and effectively as trimming for curtains or as a realistic looking closing for clip-covers. There are edgings of chromium and aluminum that are cut out and lacy in effect which may be sewed to even the sheerest of glass curtains. These are extremely new and different and have the added advantage of keeping a thin curtain hanging straight.

Please, in all this talk of trimming, don't forget the infinite possibilities of dressing up the closet and kitchen shelves with fringes and trimmings of various sorts. And, in this connection, look into the edgings which are made with a two-way adhesive strip on the back so that they may be pasted directly to the shelf without the need of tacks.

When a Girl Goes Visiting

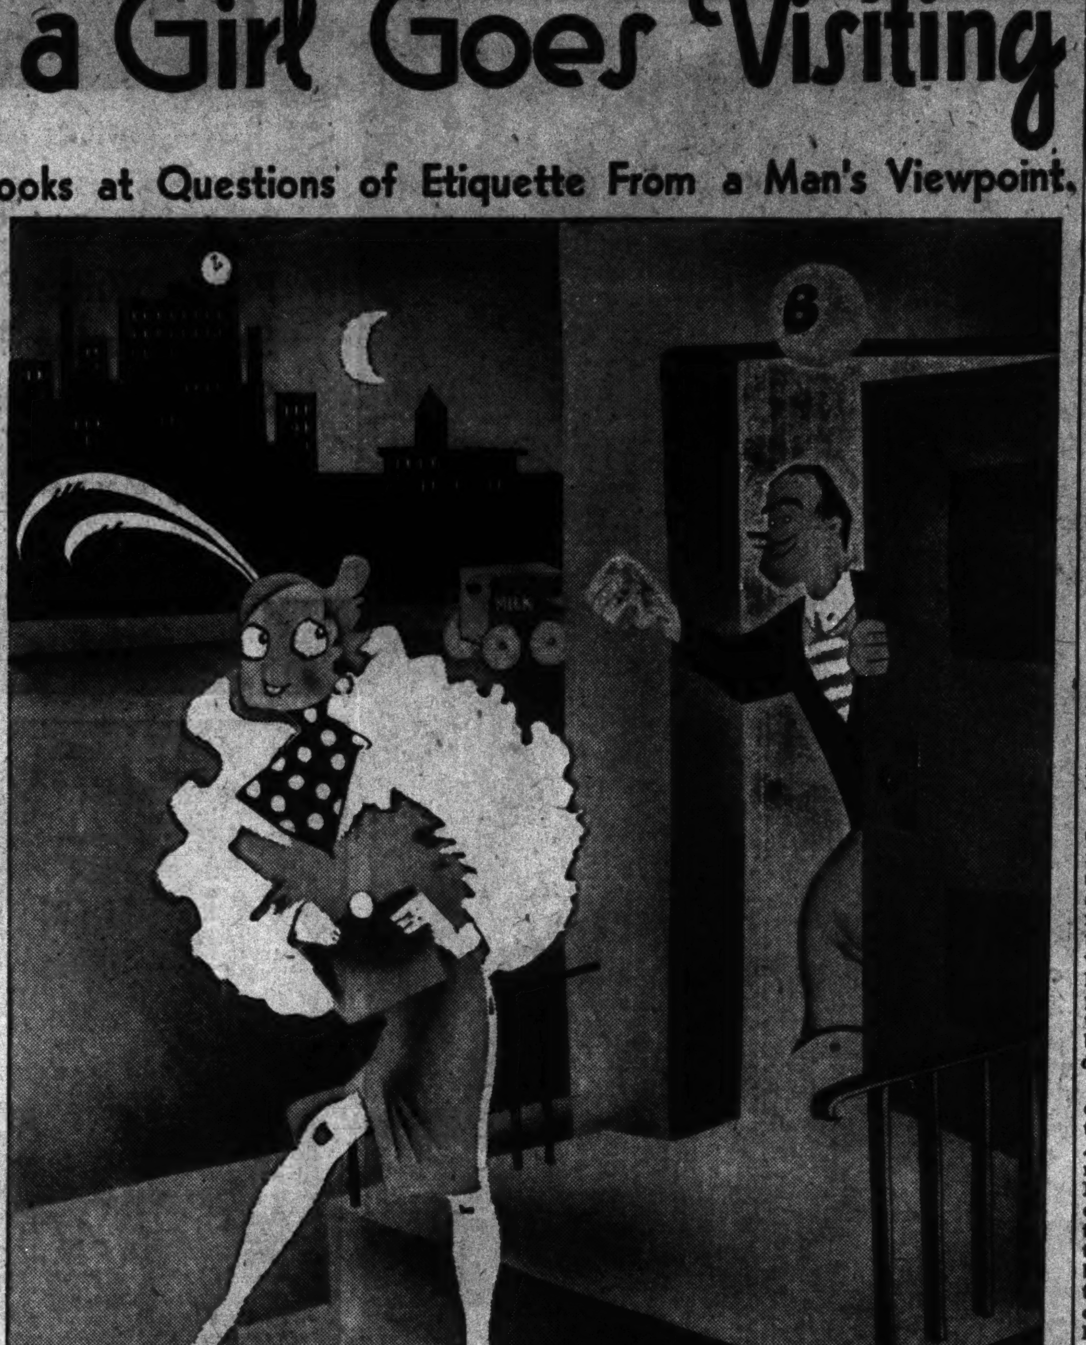
Woman Writer Looks at Questions of Etiquette From a Man's Viewpoint

By Margaret Fishback

FROM its uncompromising 1855 viewpoint, Advice to Young Ladies urges an almost unhealthy restraint: "Kate's friends tells her that the etiquette in courtship is not to allow the young gentleman to kiss you until he has proposed marriage. A very good, because a very safe rule; but we are afraid it is not often observed. The first love-kiss generally precedes the declaration." That sounds as though the old moral fiber were cracking up, but it weakens only for a split second—hardly that. Then comes the reservation—and what a reservation: But, continues Advice to Young Ladies, "the best etiquette would be to reserve all the kissing for the honeymoon. At all events, Kate's friend is quite right—no man is a lover until he has 'popped the question.'"

That little tidbit of incredible repression only serves to show how fashions change in etiquette and love-making. Indiscriminate kissing is not to my taste either, but a modest, reciprocal peck now and then never did anybody any harm. And it does provide some idea as to whether Madam has a warm spot in her heart for me. From that point I might proceed eventually to the declaration, but I do like an occasional hint, a hummingbird response, to guide me, so that I won't be turned down any oftener than necessary, which is bad for the ego.

It is a comment on the times, too, that any mention of inebriation should creep into a book on manners, but there's quite a bit of weaving and bobbing going on these days even among people whose antecedents are all wool and a yard wide. So a little advice about how to deal with gay young blades when they've had a touch too much should not be taken amiss.



"A WOMAN IS WISE TO LEAVE HER HOST'S APARTMENT LONG BEFORE COCKCROW."

Never ask them in when you even barely suspect they are not themselves. If you are dining with an escort who is tucking them away too fast and you begin to be afraid he will get out of hand, don't give him a temperance talk, as he is not likely to be in a receptive mood, and it will be wasted. Simply end the evening as quickfully and tactfully as possible, with a headache or acute appendicitis, while he can still hear you and has enough chivalry left to take you home without argument. If he has proved himself to be a periodic problem child, it's your own fault if you go out with him and have a head-on collision with trouble. There's no golden rule for handling hyenas.

Don't be nasty-nice about accepting invitations to dinner in a man's apartment unless you're still in rompers or live in a small town where people make life uncomfortable for girls who don't conform to strict, old-fashioned standards. In the large cities there are so many independent working men and women living alone that they have to trust one another to a certain extent, or do all their entertaining in public restaurants. Which isn't fair to either. We can't all have tactful parents to house us and retire to the upstairs living room after dinner.

I don't hold with the emancipated female who drops in on her men friends whenever the impulse strikes. Party calls are superfluous too: I'll settle for being sufficiently honored by my Dream Girl's presence. But for a man not "to ask her to his house at all unless he has asked other people, too," puts the city man in a hole, whether his hole is at the Ritz Towers or at the top of a fifth-floor walk-up.

—o-o—

IF we cliff dwellers are to have the social advantage of any home background at all, most of us must roll our own. And remember, it's just as reasonable for a man to want to wine and dine a woman friend in his home as it is for her to want to make him comfortable in hers. There's a warmth and graciousness about home hospitality that can't be found in any restaurant. Besides, some of us boys can't afford dinners in hotels and clubs, so we're forced to resort to the home-brewed Martini and the unassuming but nourishing hamburger. So be reasonable about accepting our invitations. It puts the wrong light on an innocent sandwich to be girlishly turned down by a grown woman who would think nothing of inviting a gentleman to her apartment for supper.

It's pretty much up to the girl to keep the entertainment on a proper plane. If the man starts any monkey business, she can always say she doesn't want to be kissed, and if she really means it, he'll usually behave. It's not much fun to fondle a genuinely unwilling woman, and the average man won't persist when he sees she is either cold or displeased. If he does, he's bungled, or just a plain lunkhead, in which case she ought to go home. I can't see why she came in the first place if he's that king of a tramp.

And speaking of going home, since appearances are important, even in the most sophisticated circles, a woman is wise to leave her host's apartment long before cockcrow. When dinner's over, and she's had a liqueur, and a chat and one highball, any woman with common sense and even a mild concern for her reputation will exercise discretion and get going.

Don't be sharp or catty or sarcastic, or even continually funny. A man enjoys humor in a woman, but not as a steady diet. Besides, he'd rather have her laugh at his jokes.

Are Americans Becoming Too Docile, Polite?

"We Believe in Being Good Citizens, but What Do We Do About It?"

By Angelo Patri

PERHAPS we Americans are becoming too docile, too polite, in our idealism of brotherly kindness. We don't speak up even to hold up our side in the argument. "Oh, well. What's the use of making a fuss?" we say and go comfortably on our way. But the other fellow made a fuss and won his way making us pay for it. How about that?"

We believe in being good citizens. Of course we do. But what do we do about it? Some of us are too easy-going to get out and vote on election day and then we grumble about the kind of men we get in office, and mutter behind the newspaper that this country is rapidly going to pot. But it was too much trouble for us to walk a few blocks to prevent it.

We believe in our institutions. Of course we do. The public school is the bulwark of our national structure. But do we concern ourselves about the support of that noble institution, with an eye to the stability of its service? Do we read the bills before the legislature, understand the proposed policies, know the need for the new buildings, the issue of bonds or what not? Most of us do not.

Most of us think that the freedom of the church, the press and the radio, are fundamental to American life. Do we guard these rights with watchdog ferocity? Not much. We leave it to the editors, publishers, owners, to do the fighting. We reserve the right to enjoy the information the press brings us, the flashing news off the wires. The peace and security of the church we enjoy, but we leave the battle for their support and maintenance to the clergy.

This is not the way America was settled, governed and brought to its vast estate. Every citizen knew where he stood and lined up for his side on the day of settlement. There were two sides; each man chose his own and voted in a loud voice. And that is the only way our nation and our institutions can survive. Let every man speak up for his side.

On election day, get out and vote. When the schools are under consideration by government, speak up. Write your letter; send your wire; say your word for your side. Whenever any great question is before the government let the representatives, especially your representatives, know where you stand. And be sure you stand.

If we fail to take our places in line our precious rights will fail and we, who sat idly by, or went gaily to the links and the fishing, and the office, will be dismayed to find that nobody took our side, and that we have no side, no nothing — just conformity with those who spoke the first and loudest.

ORSON WELLES, PUBLIC BOGEY MAN NUMBER ONE of those summer places in Connecticut and the quickest reputation Broadway ever made.

THE springboard for this was Federal Theater Project 801, though he had already experimented with some spooky stuff over the radio. He met a chap named John Houseman, a cosmopolitan considerably older than himself and an odd genius in his own right. Houseman persuaded him into a partnership, and, after some stillborn ventures, convinced him that their joint future led through the portals of the Federal Theater. They wouldn't have to find any money; the taxpayers would put it up. They could afford to experiment. A flop wouldn't mean a long hibernation until they could recover their financial fat. It would mean merely another turn of the wheel and a start on something else. But they didn't plan to do flops. Their first joint undertaking was a crash.

This was the Negro "Macbeth," which stood Harlem and the Dark Belt on its ears. It resembled "Macbeth" less than the mist resembles the rain but it was great Harlem, Magnificent Haiti, and swell theater. With swart giants in gaudy uniforms playing the principals and massacreing the Bard's text, it all centered in the voodoo cauldron scene, sunk deep in the jungle with weird light effects and the witch drums throbbing out audible mystery. An Elks band on the sidewalk helped out, too.

After that Welles and Houseman could afford a flop. They had it in "Horse Eats Hat," something between late Joe Cook and early Rube Goldberg which might have been supervised by Gertrude Stein in person. But Welles never lost his stride. He stepped right up through the trapdoors of "Dr. Faustus," directing the performance and playing the lead. It was a big hit.

Now comes a confused interval which really marks the great transformation scene in Welles' career. He and Houseman were directing Marc Blizstein's "The Cradle Will Rock" and there was a row about it. One version has it that both were eased off WPA because neither was on relief, because Houseman didn't sound just right as an American citizen and because the quota in which Welles belonged was being reduced. The more popular version is that "The Cradle Will Rock" was too radical for WPA to handle. Maybe though WPA has handled some pretty hot numbers. Anyway, it was canceled and Welles and Houseman took the mangled production over to the Mercury theater with a piano for an orchestra and the actors speaking their lines from the pit. Yet audiences crowded in, too, and the Mercury venture was successfully launched with sound money but with a faint odor of unsound radicalism. Welles ideas are mostly confined to the theater but if he has distinctly formulated any others they are quite a bit left of center.

THE mountain peak at the Mercury was "Julius Caeser" done in modern dress with Fascist trimmings, but sired, nevertheless, out of that old Todd School production. Played on a bare stage with adroit mob manipulation, the Shakespearean classic became in Welles' hands a play of revolution. It was pre-Hitler and anti-Mussolini. But if it had been produced after the peace of Munich it would, no doubt, have been anti-Hitler. The fact that his mob scenes are supposed to be Roman wouldn't have bothered Orson Welles a bit. He is out to make his theater effective at any cost and by any anachronism and he has a superb sense of timing. That's what made him bring back Shaw's 21-year-old but prophetic "Heartbreak House" with its group of futilitarians interminably discussing the decay of civilization to the droning accompaniment of airplanes overhead laying death-eggs. It hit Broadway just when many of us felt civilization was in its death throes anyway and might as well be bombed off the earth.

It wasn't by accident, either, that he loosed the fateful lightnings of "The War of the Worlds" on an American radio public that hadn't quite recovered from war jitters induced by recent events in Europe. But there he jammed his dramatic realism on a little too thick. He thought he was waving the magic wand of psychology. As a matter of fact, he was poking up a psychosis.

Timing also helps to account for what promises to be the latest Mercury Theater success. This is "Danton's Death," a hundred-year-old German play by Georg Buchner. The Welles wizardry pulls it right up to date and the Welles expressionistic methods still terrify the audience. The action is concentrated before a tremendous canopy of mask-like puppet deaths-heads which stare down without expression or emotion on Danton's betrayal by Robespierre. This time the first-nighters didn't dash from the scene in a panic but it was only because they were nailed to their seats.

Welles had a small role but did not play the part of a Martian.

The public rather fancies him, or did fancy him, as an over-sized child prodigy. He has an engaging grin which gets constantly into the public prints, and despite his heavy voice, can manage a most convincing giggle. He has been described as Baroque, a style which may be illustrated in those ample and contrasting curves which adorn the facades of Spanish Colonial architecture. His facade is impressive, too. He has a full, boyish face set on a big body and slanting eyes which, with his longish, musicians' mane, give him a bizarre touch.

To understand Welles' astounding success as a disseminator of panic over the ether it is necessary to go back and delve a bit in his other and invisible life of pure sound. His first radio job netted him $20. But he snowballed that into real money with a repertory of roles that would make a chameleon blush. For the radio March of Time he played, or rather, impersonated, many of our most widely known public figures and half his listeners believed they were hearing the real men talk. His most highly lighted spot in this phase was "The Death of Sir Basil Zaharoff" and, strangely enough, Sir Basil Zaharoff was really dead. But the sort of thing he really liked to do was the creepy story of "Dracula" and his flock of vampire bats. It was quite natural that Welles should become the voice of "The Shadow," a mysterious playboy who became invisible and foiled all kinds of fiendish plots against the human race. The Shadow's grating, sinister laugh brought delicious thrills of terror into the lives of most of our children. This type of performance perfected Welles' technique in grisly melodrama so well done that it almost becomes reality. That was the trouble with "The War of the Worlds." The crazy sounded real, anyway.

LATELY Welles, young and healthy as he is, has begun to talk a good deal about death. He keeps predicting the death of the theater, which annoys his fellow producers because it sounds so much like biting the hand that feeds him. Last June he told the Educational Convention here that the stage was so sick it couldn't possibly rally. It has so far rallied since then that it has burst into a rash of S. R. O. signs. "Now," said the young crepe hanger gravely, "the theater is our dullest and drabbist spot. We are the place to come in out of the rain. We are the place where you can spend money to impress your out-of-town buyer, to wear your dress-up clothes if you wish and which provides the advantage of an intermission. In entertainment value the theater is vastly inferior to the movies."

He prophesied the death of the theater again this fall with war on top of it to make it certain. All his best plays deal in death. Entertainment over the air is doomed, too. "Radio," he declares, "like all mechanical arts, is dying." In his broadcast of the Martian invasion there was a perfect holocaust of indiscriminate death, with soldiers, torched out company after company by the Martian death ray. That is one of the reasons so many people have decided it is time for death to take a holiday.

Case Records of a Psychologist

by Dr. George W. Crane of Northwestern University

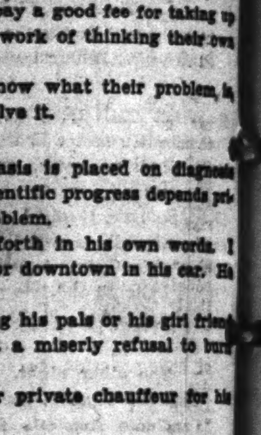
CASE K-141: Quentin D., aged 20, analyzes himself very well.

"I happen to be an only child," he began, "and work at a fair salary with a dozen other young fellows of about my own age.

"But I get along quite well with my associates, and seem to be socially well adjusted, partly as a result of joining your Compliment Club.



I BECOME SULKY WHEN MY PARENTS ASK A FAVOR OF ME.
K-141

"My mother and father treat me wonderfully, but whenever they ask a favor of me, I become sulky.

"For example, my mother may ask me to take her shopping in my car. Although I don't refuse her request, I'll show many signs that I am not enthusiastic over the idea. And I may not give two civil answers to all her questions on the entire trip, or even for several hours afterwards.

"Sometimes I feel that the whole world is against me. I get into an ugly mood, or turn glum and quiet. Dr. Crane, I don't want to be this way, but what is wrong with me?"

—o-o—

DIAGNOSIS: It is always gratifying to meet an individual who can describe his problem accurately. Part of our mental difficulties are solved as soon as we can delineate them nicely in words.

It is to compel patients to do this that I usually urge them to write their entire problem in great detail. Many of them don't like to do this.

They'd much rather come down to the office and talk aimlessly for two or three hours, even though they must pay a good fee for taking up my time in such fashion, than do the hard work of thinking their own problem through.

Many patients, therefore, don't even know what their problem is, so of course they have no idea of how to solve it.

—o-o—

IN MODERN MEDICINE more emphasis is placed on diagnosis than on prescribing. Why? Because all scientific progress depends primarily on an accurate knowledge of the problem.

Quentin's difficulty has been well set forth in his own words. I asked him if he begrudged driving a neighbor downtown in his car. He said he didn't.

Nor does he have any objection to taking his pals or his girl friend for a drive. His aversion, therefore, is not a miserly refusal to burn up gasoline in doing favors for people.

He simply dislikes being errand boy or private chauffeur for his own parents. Why?

Because he suffers, as do millions of other young people, from a dislike of being thought a child. I have told you in previous Case Records how eagerly children wish to be grown. Childhood is a hated serfdom out of which they are only too glad to scramble.

—o-o—

AS A RULE it is the parent who complains of having children like Quentin. The son seldom comes to me for advice in such a situation.

Quentin has felt for years that he has been unduly coddled and mothered, because he is the only child. He also acknowledged that he was once ridiculed by a classmate for being tied to his mother's apron strings.

This disturbed him very much. The continued fear of being thought a mollycoddle or sissy has therefore helped produce his irritation whenever his parents wish a favor. Having seen the origin of this feeling, he now realizes the childishness of his resentment, and has overcome it.

Gray Hair tells tales
But
Keeps Your Secret!

If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. In from 1 to 3 applications (depending on shade), it will be completely re-colored . . . similar to its former natural shade. All in one day, if you wish. After that, a single treatment, only once a month, will keep it that way.

You may then curl, wave or set your hair — or get a permanent — if you like. The color is also proof against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

Canute Water is pure, colorless and crystal-clear, and will leave your hair clean and natural to the touch. Even you, yourself, will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. You will be delighted to see how completely Canute Water solves your problem.

No Skin Test Needed

A noted Scientist tested Canute Water at one of America's outstanding Universities and proved it to be perfectly harmless. It is so safe and pure that it has never injured a single user in 24 years. You don't even need a skin test before using.

Canute Water is the only preparation ever discovered for re-coloring gray hair which has such a long record of safety and the harmlessness of which has been confirmed by scientific evidence.

No other preparation can make this claim

Is it any wonder that we sell more Canute Water than all other hair coloring preparations combined?

Cook's tour

by George Rector

AN old time traveling man who ate 21 meals a week in restaurants once remarked, "When in doubt order ham and eggs." I immediately understood the real meaning of the remark, because, like me, eating even in Rector's to the extent of 21 meals a week got rather monotonous.

This chap, who covered large and small towns throughout the country—and I happen to be speaking of about 30 years ago—would remain on the road for a stretch of six or seven months during the year. He often told me of the poor food that he got in some of the towns. "Why," he said, "would you believe it, the cooking was so bad in some of the places that I have been living on boiled eggs and cocoanuts."

—o-o—

Of course, we all know that old adage about doing a thing the right way or the wrong way. Well, it applies to cookery very definitely. And I have also found that a person who does not like to cook is never going to turn out good things to eat. He or she is hopeless and the sooner and more often they put the can opener to use, the more content they will be.

—o-o—

● THERE ARE certain dishes that are known as a whole meal. I have in mind spaghetti, and if you will try the following recipes sometime I am sure you will make a big hit with the family. My only suggestion is, prepare enough!

Of all the different ways of serving spaghetti in Rector's, the recipe I am giving you now was by far the most popular:

SPAGHETTI MILANAISE

One-half pound spaghetti, one can tomatoes (No. 2 size); one can tomato sauce, one cup stock, one-half teaspoon garlic, minced; one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon paprika, one bay leaf, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two thin slices boiled ham, six thin slices boiled tongue, one cup mushrooms, thinly sliced; one tablespoon butter, grated Parmesan cheese.

Cook spaghetti in large quantity of boiling salted water until tender, or about 10 or 12 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. In the meantime prepare the sauce as follows: Simmer together for 20 minutes canned tomatoes, tomato sauce or puree, stock, garlic, salt, pepper, paprika, bay leaf and Worcestershire. Then add ham and tongue which you have cut in Julienne strips and let simmer 10 minutes longer.

—o-o—

If canned mushrooms are used they need only be sliced and added along with the ham and tongue, as they are cooked and only need to be thoroughly heated in the sauce. Fresh mushrooms must be thinly sliced and sauteed in a little butter until soft before adding to the sauce.

Add drained spaghetti to the sauce; mix and heat thoroughly and just before serving add the butter and serve. Grated Parmesan cheese is sprinkled liberally over each portion. This is always done at the table, so prepare a good quantity of grated cheese before sitting down.

—o-o—

● LAST MARCH we wrote a recipe for spaghetti served with the popular meat sauce. As this particular recipe entails the pot roasting of a piece of beef, it has been worked out on a larger scale using one pound of spaghetti. By request here it is.

SPAGHETTI ALFREDO

The actual cooking of spaghetti is easy. All you need is a whole lot of galloping boiling water. Drop in the spaghetti, along with some salt. You can boil it for 10 minutes or up to 12 minutes. Italians never cook spaghetti to the soft stage and they have a term they use in regard to this which is "dente." It simply means something to bite with the teeth.

When the spaghetti is cooked it is drained into a colander and hot or cold water is poured over it. It is then ready to combine with the sauce.

Spaghetti without a sauce doesn't make sense. I have eaten spaghetti all over Italy and there's a different sauce for every section. Milan has its way of preparing the sauce; so has Florence and Naples and Genoa. But they all agree on three of the ingredients that go in the sauce and these are olive oil, tomatoes and garlic. You can't dodge them no matter where you go in Italy.

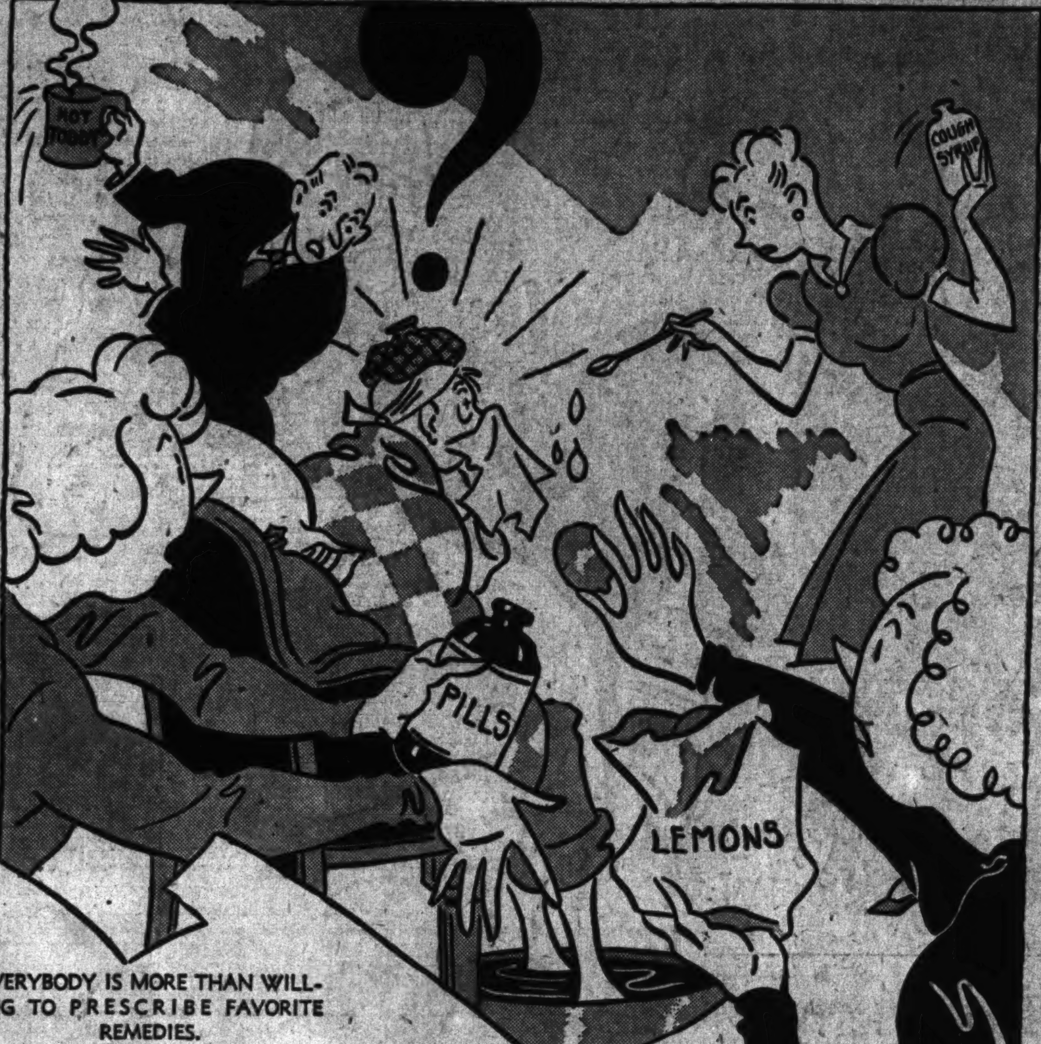
Alfredo of Rome makes his meat sauce by first pot roasting four pounds of lean brisket of beef or the cut you prefer. Put one-third cup of olive oil in a heavy pot or casserole; when the oil is hot sear the meat on all sides. Reduce the heat and season with salt; add two bay leaves, a pinch of thyme, 12 whole black peppercorns and two buttons of garlic. Now cover the pot or casserole and simmer for two and one-half hours, turning the meat occasionally. Then add a No. 2 size can of tomatoes and cook 30 minutes longer.

When you remove the meat there should be about two cupfuls of liquid remaining. Strain and add to it one cup of tomato sauce or puree. Put the meat through the food chopper and add it and the spaghetti to the sauce. Heat thoroughly and pile the spaghetti on a large hot platter and serve. Sprinkle top liberally with grated Parmesan cheese.

Hot Tips on Curing Colds

Even Your Best Friends Won't Fail to Tell You How to Stop Sniffles.

By Clarissa Start



EVERYBODY IS MORE THAN WILLING TO PRESCRIBE FAVORITE REMEDIES.

WE have entered upon that happy time of the year when the air is again brisk, a pleasant odor of burning leaves arises from the neighbors' gutters, and the prolonged sniff of those susceptible to a change in the weather is practically heard round the world. Whether that nauseous condition innocently enough called the Common Cold results from unpredictable thermometers or an inability of people sharing the same bed to agree on equable distribution of blankets—always a foreign entanglement after the scorchy season—has as yet been unprobed by science, but the fact remains that whether you hover around a bevy of chittering young things in the office washroom, or nuzzle, giraffe-like, into a circle of influential looking men speaking in hushed tones, chances are that they are discussing, not last night's date or the stock market, but their colds, past and present, and their cures. Especially the cures.

For a cold, or as some people prefer it, a light touch of la grippe, is as popular a subject as love or money, and hardly a man is now alive who does not remember the brew his grandmother used to concoct for his childhood colds, and which he still uses insofar as his memory and the olefactory senses of the rest of the household permit.

Moreover there is almost no one who will not, with wholehearted abandon, let you in on the secret, or to be more accurate, force it on you, and when your resistance is at the lowest possible ebb, too.

Let us suppose, for example, that you have a cold. In fact we sort of hope you have, not that we are sadistic by nature, but just to prove our point. You wake up some morning when the birdies are singing, and all Nature is atune, and there it is, right in your nose, which for the moment you had mistaken for a dirigible hangar, or one half of a swollen glazed doughnut.

Your first thought is to treat the matter rather jovially, even a little proudly, as if it were something you had thought up to prove your own superiority. "Aha," you say, with broadminded amusement, mentally rolling up your coat sleeves, "here is an adversary, and just you see what I do to him."

Then you proceed to bore those of your family who fail to make an instant getaway with the now too familiar tale of how you never have a cold longer than 24 hours. You follow your magic formula and "pfft" it's gone. Just like that. Overnight. "Yep," you conclude smugly, "that's the only way to handle a cold. Nip it in the bud."

This state of affairs continues for about a week, and so does the cold. Then you adopt the laugh-it-off attitude, a sort of 'I can take it' mechanism that does not let down your pride in yourself as a great healer. The third week you adopt the defensive attitude. "Oh no, my cold's just about gone," you protest to jeering bystanders. "Well," you snarl if they persist, "anyone gets hoarse sitting in a draught."

The first and third stages are doubtlessly interesting to a psychoanalyst, but it is with the second stage that we are most concerned. For it is then that you succumb to the hundreds of amateur medicine men who infest our land and pass out their favorite food fad, pill combination, or yoga treatment. And you, you will swallow anything, whether it be shredded onions bathed in molasses or maple coated liver pills.

—o-o—

THE sure way to tell the willing informant is by the look of delight that comes to his eye when you let go with the first sneeze. Without so much as a "Gesundheit" he will edge up to you and say, in the confidential tone of a race tout giving a tip in the third at Bowie, "Say, you wanna know what'll cure that cold?" The best answer would be a firm, unequivocal "No," but the truth is that you do want to know how to cure it, and besides you're eager to impart your own ideas on the subject.

A weak smile on your part and the angel of mercy becomes enthusiastic. "Have you tried hot lemonade?" he begins. "Or a cup of sauerkraut juice before you go to bed? Or sucking a dill pickle while you soak your feet in hot water? Raw onions will do just as well, though. Then, too, I know a fellow who swears by raw egg with a dash of bitters and a wet flannel rag around his neck all night."

With visions of indigestion dancing in your head, you begin to state your case hesitantly. "Well," you say, "I always heard 'Feed a cold and starve a fever'."

"Nothing to it," he insists. "You always get a fever with a cold, don't you? Bet you've got a fever now. Yes," he goes on, slapping you across the forehead, "You've got a fever. Bad one, too. Just like the one Aunt Sophie had before she—well, we won't give up hope, though. How about peppermints, nose drops, and a good 10-mile hike before breakfast?"

All that is a mere sample of what to expect from your dearest friends or strangers on street cars. Sometimes a man who can scarcely talk will insist that his remedy will leave you refreshed and relieved within an hour. There are the food faddists who recommend fruit juice or a neat jigger of vinegar with the same eagerness. The disciplinarians who preach no meals, a cold shower, and bed by 7 p. m. The coddlers who lean more to egg nog, a mustard bath, and twice the usual number of blankets. There are also homespun psychologists who believe that by refusing to give a cold refuge, you can stare it down, as you would a lion. Or rather, as we hope you would a lion. Others reason that if you treat a cold nicely and with due respect, it will treat you nicely and go away. Obviously they have had no experience with summer guests.

Then too there are the purgists, who think it's ridiculous to mention other remedies in the same breath with baking soda, epsom salts, a gallon of tomato juice, and raisins stewed in olive oil. The externalists, on the other hand, scoff at such rudimentary methods, and suggest alternate layers of salve, bear grease and cocoa butter, and keeping the feet dry.

—o-o—

EMBRYO scientists are all for complete antiseptization. Clad in all white, with rubber gloves, they would have you spray your nose and throat every 10 minutes with a clean hose, burn all the curtains and over-stuffed furniture, and parboil yourself a deep pink before going into your fumigated bedroom. These specialists have their takers, too, as witness the four women we read about recently, who wore masks at their regular bridge game to avoid passing around germs with the bon bons. We'll bet they had a lot of fun trying to distinguish a bid of "Sevud glubs" from "Sigs dibuds."

But enough enumerating. If you've had your early winter cold, you've been approached by all the aforementioned pests, and have already developed manic-depressive tendencies anyway. And if you haven't had your cold, there's only one thing for you to do—see us.

We won't try to develop a choice culture of germs for the interests of science. We won't make you live on prunes and rhubarb or turn the fire hose on your spine. But there is a sort of soup, or maybe it's really more of a green tea, that is a preciously guarded family secret for curing a cold. It will nip that cold in the bud and leave you feeling like you never felt before, and never hoped to feel. As a matter of fact, we got rid of our last cold in 24 hours. Oh well, if you want to be technical, a slight sniffle has lingered on for the last nine weeks, but only when we're awake.

MUSIC AND MUSIC MAKERS

By Thomas B. Sherman

THE plight of an orchestral conductor who tries to honor his obligation to the composers of his own day without inciting the conservative members of his audiences to open violence is almost a classic study in pathos. Seemingly it is a situation that has no possibility of a completely satisfactory resolution. If the conductor rings all the possible changes on Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Buncombe (a rough translation for Liszt and Tschaikowsky), the young and curious will rightly conclude that symphonic concerts are just so much musical archaeology. If he makes room on his programs for composers who have the bad taste still to be alive he is a musical bolshevik, harboring designs on the constitution, the home and the American system.

Vladimir Golschmann's efforts to satisfy one group without doing violence to the other have taken the form of playing contemporary works that last not more than 10 minutes. Apparently he hoped to make a gesture toward the young and curious while the others were taking off their wraps, after which he would remove all lingering odors by spraying all and sundry with an antiseptic solution of the Old Masters.

The trouble with this system is that it does not allow for more extended and more sizeable contemporary works. Moreover the diehards are just as bitter about 10 minutes of Bela Bartok—or the equivalent—as they would have been about the whole of a Hindemith concerto. Beethoven is good enough for them—as indeed he should be.

If a decent consideration for contemporary composers meant the exclusion of the established masterpieces, any reasonable concert-goer could make only one choice. Fortunately this is not the case. On the contrary the continuing life of music demands that it be regarded as an expanding organism. The true dimensions of a great master are never properly appreciated except in the context of what has preceded and what has come after. To confine one's consideration to the dead and gone will inevitably mean that they will one day be regarded as truly dead and gone, psychologically as well as chronologically.

PONDERING the bristling difficulties attached to the question of contemporary music, the St. Louis Symphony Society is considering still another plan for meeting the minority demand for a better hearing of contemporary works. It is proposed that a special concert be given on which nothing but works of our own time would be played. The program would not be confined to the experimental and the daring. The object would be to give a fair cross section—or as fair as one would give on a single program—of music by living composers.

Since the prevailing tendency among the composers now writing is not nearly so radical as it was 15 or even 10 years ago this program should do no harm to anybody's ear drums—neither to those of the innocent nor the incurably unorthodox. In the early 1920s iconoclasm was loose and wild. Music was described by such formidable terms as the "newer objective," "linear counterpoint" and "tone clusters." Romanticism was as dead as the Divine Right of Kings, feeling of any kind was excluded and certain technically daring young men, acting on the belief that the diatonic scale was a worked out mine, were subdividing the scale into quarters, sixteenths and even more eccentric fractional parts and making new instruments for the new music that would be forthcoming.

That sort of talk is not so frequent these days. Composers, in fact, seem to be much less concerned with method which would indicate that they are more interested in substance. If the current music is not so daring it is, perhaps, informed by the more healthy idea of being more expressive of inward ideas. And emotion is back in style, even with such a top flight "newer objectivist" as Paul Hindemith, judging by his more recent works. This was bound to happen for the good reason that you can no more have going music without emotion, conscious or accidental, than you can have a going human body without blood.

NEVERTHELESS the experimentalists have had their effect. The average ear of the public is much more tolerant of harmonic boldness as a result of their efforts and it is no longer necessary to adhere to a rigid system of tonalities. Composers have a newer and a richer language to work with and those that are skillful enough avail themselves of it and at the same time go in for extended lyricism.

Frustrated quarter tone specialists and fabricators of "augenmusik" that burns holes in the paper may consider that it is a day of reaction. Perhaps they are right. In any case the public should have some opportunity—however limited—to judge for itself.

Hence the concert or concerts of "Music of Our Time." It is a highly commendable idea and one that should meet with considerable favor.

The Problem Of Extra Rugs For Household

Considered by Decorator in Answer to Question From Reader.

By Elizabeth Boykin

"I ALWAYS used to keep my hardwood floors like glass," writes Mrs. A. K. "But now that I have three children I find it impossible to keep the floors looking as I'd like to have them. So my problem is to get extra rugs to cover the floors.

"There is quite a large reception hall as you enter which leads into the living room. I have taupe rugs for the living room and dining room, but in the past I haven't had anything on the hall floor. I expect to move the dining room rug into a bedroom and will get a new rug for the living room and also a new rug for the reception hall. I'm tired of taupe, and yet I've had the idea that the rugs for rooms opening together like these should all match. I'd prefer something more colorful for the new rugs, however. Would appreciate your advice here.

"Soon we expect to recover the living-room suite—what would you suggest? The dining room furniture will be replaced eventually, but in the meantime we have to make the most of the old stuff. The walls are plain cream. Do draperies in dining room and living room have to match? There are Venetian blinds in these two rooms. But in the reception room the door with transom and side panels of glass have shades with shirred marquisette curtains. Does that sound all right to you or would you get drapery material and drape over the side panels of door? What should I use in the reception hall for furniture? At present I have a desk and a radio there. Is that proper? Any suggestions you might make would be appreciated. I want the place to look simple, but not dead."

It will be quite all right to have rugs for your reception hall and living room in a different color from that in the dining room. Why not choose a soft gray-green, not too dark and in a texture effect that won't show foot marks? Then for the sofa have the new covering in a green ground printed mohair, but with the design in bright contrast. The other two upholstered chairs might do gayly in a flame colored material—all these coverings would be more practical if they're slips so they can come off for washing. Draperies in this same flame color would be very heartening—yes, I'd have living room and dining room draperies to match. But I don't believe I'd have draperies for the front door panels. Leave these as they are unless you can have Venetian blinds made for them. Slip cover the dining chairs with the green figured mohair. The furniture you have in the hall sounds quite all right to me.

'You Can't Take It With You' in Flesh and Film

Stage Company Presents Kaufman-Hart Prize Comedy at American Theater at Same Time Picture Version Is Running at Missouri.

RISKING competition with the current Frank Capra film at the Missouri Theater, in fact making a bid for patronage with cut-rate admissions, the American Theater tonight and for the week presents a stage company in the Kaufman-Hart comedy hit, "You Can't Take It With You."

Business was good when the comedy played its original engagement here last January, the second week even better than the first, so a return engagement was in prospect for this fall. The only question was one of time, and this week chosen as one in which the film would be going into the four weeks' slumber between first-run and second-run engagements. But the film, in its fourth week, is still strong in first-run.

The company for the American is one recruited from the three "You Can't Take It With You" units which toured last year. In it are Clarence Oliver as Grandpa Vanderhof, William Jeffrey, Rene Roberti, Eva Condon, Alan Brixey, Dulcie Cooper, Ellis Baker, Donald Sharpe, Joseph Allenton, Patti Littel, Joan Croydon, Robert Perry, Frances E Williams and John Marriott. Only three of these, Miss Condon and the last two players on the list, were here last January. The original New York company has never left Broadway, where it will reach its second anniversary late next month.

A week from tonight, the American will turn over its stage to a revival of the Schubert-Romberg operetta, "Blossom Time." With Everett Marshall as the prolific composer of songs, Franz Schubert, the company will include Charlotte Lansing, Mary McCoy, Roy Cropper, Douglas Leavitt, Harry K. Morton, Gracie Worth and others who either have been at Municipal Opera or are looked upon by the opera as material for the future. The revival is one organized in the East this fall for a road tour.

Welles Revives 'Danton's Death' In Tabloid Form

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

WITHOUT their history books, Broadway playwrights would be in a sorry way in their search for material for new dramas today.

A fortnight from now, Blanche Yurka will arrive on Broadway, as good Queen Bess in Ferdinand Bruckner's play, "Gloriana." This will give the Rialto about a dozen plays dealing with life from the ancient past. Already first-nighters have seen two Abraham Lincolns, two George Bernard Shaws, two Queen Victorias, one Peter Stuyvesant and this week arrived the delayed Mercury Theater production of "Danton's Death," which has Danton, Robespierre and other famous figures of the French Revolution.

Postponed several times, it was not expeced that "Danton's Death" would be ready for a Broadway first night until next week, but it was suddenly brought in after its director and star, Orson Welles, was catapulted into an unexpected spotlight by his broadcast last Sunday night of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds."

The Mercury production of "Danton's Death" is far different from the one seen before by Broadway first-nighters. Welles has made an almost tabloid version of this drama of the French Revolution, rarely allowing more than three or four characters on the stage at a time, with the mob indicated only by offstage voices.

This is less effective than previous productions, for the whole strength of the French Revolution was in its scenes of noisy and rebellious mobs, and here that very essence of revolution—the people—is shown only by shadows moving back of curtains or voices shouting offstage.

Young Welles is effective in his dynamic speech of St. Just, the speech that attempts to justify the revolution and its methods. But here the production is weak for he delivers it as a solitary figure upon the stage. In the Max Reinhardt production the mob surrounding St. Just added so much more fire to the speech.

"Danton's Death" was received with loud acclaim when it was done in German here by the Max Reinhardt Players in 1927. Reinhardt staged his production as a great revolutionary spectacle which overflowed the gigantic Century Theater stage. Paul Hartmann did a robust job as Danton, but the acting honors were carried off by three performers who had comparatively minor roles.

Arnold Korff, who has since deserted to Hollywood, electrified the first-night audience with his dramatic reading of St. Just's speech from atop a gallows while the rebellious mob milled below. Lili Darvas, wife of the Hungarian playwright, Ferenc Molnar, was exquisitely beautiful in the role of Lucile. Another outstanding performance in that production was by its single American player, the late Rosamond Pinchot, who was found dead last January from carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage on her Long Island estate.

"Danton's Death" has a rather curious history. It was written by a youthful Hessian exile in Zurich 101 years ago when he was 24 years old. The stripling playwright, George Buchner, never saw his play for it was not produced until 60 years after his death. In Zurich he spent long days studying the French revolution and became so unnerved by what he read that he turned to writing to calm himself. But, in writing he could not forget the terror of the revolutionary history and so began writing about that subject.

"I mustn't rest a second until Danton is under the guillotine: and then sleep, sleep—" he wrote a friend. He was forced to flee from police before he could sell his play and when his family found he had turned playwright they disowned him.

—o-o—

INTO the American Music Hall, which was a rambling church before a group of Park avenue aristocrats transformed it into a smart place of ancient songs and dances, there has arrived the newest of burlesque operettas.

This is "The Girl From Wyoming," a lyrical satire of a Harvard boy who takes Horace Greeley's advice and goes West. In his noble manner he makes many an Indian bite the dust, sneers at rattlesnakes and otherwise overcomes all the terrors of the pioneer West as only a Harvard man could so triumph.

It is broad fantasy, almost burlesque, and the show overflows with singing waiters, trapeze performers, shooting cowpunchers, card tricksters and other such citizens who participated in the westward dash of '49. June Walker is the lusty cowgirl who comes to the rescue of the Harvard greenhorn and then finds that she has lost her heart to him. Miss Walker gives as able a performance as she did when she first donned a blond wig and played the lead in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Cissie Loftus, also, is appearing in an extra-mural performance on Broadway. Performing alone, she satirizes various people and scenes with a touch of comedy and sophistication that delights and establishes her with Ruth Draper and Angna enters as one of the theater's top flight solo stars.

Musicals have gained a following on Broadway this year, despite the fact that occasional newcomers find the going too rough. "Knights of Song," the Gilbert-Sullivan representation, has closed, after only two weeks, but "Hellzapoppin'" is a sell-out success, "Knickerbocker Holiday" is catching on, "Pins and Needles" is about to round its first anniversary and "I Married an Angel" has been here six months. Even "You Never Know," with some concessions in salary, seems likely to continue.

Medical Sins and Merry Murder on Week's Screen

By Colvin McPherson

AMONG the new movies of the week, "The Citadel," which opened at Loew's Theater on Thursday and was reviewed on Friday's movie page, unquestionably occupies first place. The film version of the A. J. Cronin novel, a product of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer branch factory at Denham, England, takes the beholder into fascinating new behind-scenes of English medical practice.

With Robert Donat as Dr. Manson, it re-tells the story of a young Scotch physician who goes into Wales, meets with corruption in medical practice, fights it, is ousted and goes to London. In London, he waits on the wealthy, finds corruption in medical practice, shares it and quits of his own accord.

The calls for his services give the picture, as they gave the book, startling incidents and a shocking new view of a respected profession. For these the film may well be praised, yet it lacks the structure of fine drama. It spars with evil without delivering a knockout blow. It creates a true character, perhaps, but fails to stir the overwhelming sympathy that can be developed by a focus on one case in particular, as, for example, the Dreyfus case in "The Life of Emile Zola."

Not trusting the strength of "The Citadel" alone, Loew's fortifies it with mystery and melodrama and a squadron of airplanes in "Flight to Fame."

The Mad Miss Manton.

A PURELY American formula is followed in "The Mad Miss Manton," at the Fox. The heiress who is always up to some devilment, the young, conscientious newspaper editor who necessarily is in love with her, amateur detective work that drives the police Lieutenant crazy and that funny, funny homicide are all in the composition.

Miss Manton or Miss Barbara Stanwyck or Miss Ruby Stevens, if you knew her away back when, is taking the dogs out for a stroll at 3 a. m. when she finds a body. She calls the police but when they arrive there is no body there. Lieut. Sam Levene is pretty mad, too. Henry Fonda prints a sassy piece about Miss Manton in his paper and she slaps his face.

The girl has spirit so she gets together a few debutante friends and goes hunting for that-there body. Good luck is hers and in time she finds two bodies. And shows that smart Mr. Fonda and drives Lieut. Levene still crazier.

Murder in the manner of a treasure hunt is not new to the American screen, of course, and there may be those who actually are tiring of it and would like to see death treated with the proper horror. Until such a time as that occurs, however, one may be contented with pictures like "The Mad Miss Manton." Its dialogue is well above average in cleverness, its stride is swift and sure. One performance that stands out is that of Stanley Ridges, as an ex-convict.

"Service De Luxe," the second feature, is of interest largely because Constance Bennett's leading man in it is Vincent Price, young former St. Louisan. With experience as Helen Hayes' leading man in "Victoria Regina" and other training on Broadway and in London, Price has ability far ahead that of the young male stars Hollywood brings out from time to time.

The picture itself, about the romance of a high-powered business girl and a young inventor, has only normal vitality. Mischa Auer's conversations with a spirit guide afford the most laughter, and Charlie Ruggles makes one or two marvelous breaks, but as for Miss Bennett, one merely notes that she is not going to sacrifice that long hair bob of hers, style or no style.

A promotion short subject at the Fox, as at Loew's, the Ambassador and St. Louis theaters, "The World Is Ours" is a fine sampler of the best movies of the past. Included is a fair portion of the daddy of all thrillers, "The Great Train Robbery."

—o-o—

Things to Come.

TYING up with the publicity given Orson Welles' broadcast of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds," the St. Louis Theater has reached back to 1936 for the film version of another Wells' book, "Things to Come." The management does its best to give its patrons the scare they got last Sunday night but "Things to Come" isn't a scare picture.

Seen now, it is more appropriate than it was in May, 1936, but for a different reason. It comes forth now as a forceful sermon against war, dictators and all enemies of progress and freedom. The picture shows the world in the last stages of dictatorship, a science-less world still with ragged parades and public struts. It brings hope, even if it does goes ahead into Buck Rogers' visions of the world 98 years from now.

Ralph Richardson's performance as the last dictator is still one of the best on film. He also has a large share in "The Citadel" at Loew's, as Dr. Manson's friend, Dr. Denny.

"Night Spot," the other St. Louis feature, describes a set-up in which Bradley Page and his gang are robbing wealthy people of their jewelry and have microphones installed at all the tables in a night club to hear the wealthy people talk about their jewelry, which, to coin a phrase, they do nothing else but.

—o-o—

"You Can't Take It With You," that tornado of laughter, continues at the Missouri, with "Girls' School." "Suez," that tornado of more realistic sort, continues at the Ambassador with a good Jones Family comedy, "Down on the Farm."

War Picture Booked

"The Dead March," a documentary film presenting the sources of conflict in the world today and a review of the World War, will be shown at the Hollywood Theater, 506 St. Charles street, for the week beginning next Friday. Most of the more spectacular film shots from the World War are included in the feature. Boake Carter is narrator and the musical score is by Erno Rapee.

'Pompadour' Bought

"Madame Pompadour," musical comedy hit which launched Evalyn Laye to fame on the London stage, has been bought for screen production by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The story is a romance, laid in the days of Louis XV in France and deals with love adventures of La Marquise.

'Dark Eyes,' French Comedy Drama, Set For Screening Room

"Dark Eyes," a French film featuring Simone Simon and Harry Baur, will take the place of "Tender Enemy" at the S'Renco Screening Room, 3143 Olive street, next Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights. Two showings will be held each night. Accompanying the feature will be the Government short subject, "The River," tracing the geographic history of the Mississippi Valley.

Set in Russia before the revolution, "Dark Eyes" tells of a headwaiter and his flirtatious daughter. The girl strikes up an affair with a middle-aged roue and goes with him to a private dining-room at the restaurant where her father is employed, unknown to her. Alternately comic and dramatic, the film reaches a climax in the father's efforts to break up the affair, at the price of revealing his occupation. Dialogue is in French, with superimposed English translation.

The picture was the last made by Miss Simon before she came to America and was shown in New York last spring. Baur has been seen here in several foreign films, notably "The Life and Loves of Beethoven."

Maurice Evans to Go Into 'Henry IV' Next

Although his production of the full-length "Hamlet" is one of the outstanding dramatic hits of New York, Maurice Evans, in line with his pre-opening statement, is limiting the run of the play to nine and one-half weeks. The final performance will be on Saturday night, Dec. 17. Evans and his company will take a recess for the week before Christmas and on Monday night, Dec. 26, will open in the first part of "Henry IV." Evans plays Falstaff in this production, which he presented in various cities, including St. Louis, during his tour in "King Richard II" last season.

Works of Debussy, Purcell On Orchestra's Program

Two Suites New to St. Louis Scheduled for Concerts at End of Week—Fifth Symphony Of Tschaikowsky Is Principal Selection.

FIRST St. Louis presentation of a Debussy suite and one based on compositions of Henry Purcell will be features of the all-orchestral program for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. The major work on the program, which will open with the Bach Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, will be Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

The Debussy music was composed for Gabriele D'Annunzio's "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian," a five-act dramatic mystery play first performed in Paris in 1911, with the part of Sebastian played and sung by Ida Rubinstein, Russian dancer of the original Ballet Russe. "The Martyrdom of St. Sebastian," which was written in the style of the early Christian mystery dramas, in French verse and was generally recognized only as a show of skill on the part of the Italian poet, has rarely been performed since, although the MacDowell Chorus did introduce it in New York in 1912.

The excerpts which comprise the symphonic suite come from three of the five acts. The first movement is a musical illustration of a sumptuous court of a Roman palace called the "Court of the Lilies." Unusual musical combinations suggest the first crude efforts of early Christian art. Mysterious voices rise from the orchestra in a theme that is a musical expression of the divine summoning of Sebastian to his high mission. Plaintive laments in tones speak of suffering and marytrdom.

The second part is the Dance of Ecstacy and the finale of the first act. In this scene Sebastian enters into a square of burning coals, accompanied by a dance of titanic rhythm, which fades away into sweet and melodious strains. This movement is followed by the Passion, an excerpt of the third act. The scene is in the court of Caesar Augustus, who offers honor to Sebastian, which the latter refuses. Sebastian portrays the march of Christ to Calvary. The different emotions of the saint, the tyrant and the crowd are described entirely by the music. It concludes with a plaint of endless suffering and limitless joy by the crowd.

The suite itself concludes with music derived from the last two acts of the tragedy. The music is descriptive of an old priest, or the Good Shepherd. The fifth act of the play has been called Paradise and was presented without a spoken word.

—o-o—

THE Purcell suite, for strings, four horns, two flutes and English horn, was derived by John Barbirolli, conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, from various Purcell compositions—"The Gordian Knot United," "The Virtuous Wife," "King Arthur," occasional pieces grouped in Volume 15 of the Purcell Society Edition, and "Dido and Aeneas" (the famous air of Dido, "When I Am Laid in Earth").

No work of Purcell has ever been played by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra before. Purcell was a late seventeenth century English composer, and died at the age of 36 or 37. The year of his birth has not been established. In 1680 he was appointed organist of Westminster Abbey, a post he held until his death 15 years later. The list of his compositions is extensive. He contributed to every form of music that was current in his day, including odes, music for 50 stage plays, and an immense collection of church music.

Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony has not been played locally by the orchestra since December, 1934. Its four movements are filled with dynamic and rhythmic contrasts and beautiful melodies. The symphony has no avowed program, however commentators are not without belief that this work was written with an underlying drama of tragedy and hopeless fate. Mainly responsible for the idea that a program exists is the recurrence in each movement of a theme with which the symphony begins.

The Bach concerto is one of six of its kind composed for Christian Ludwig, Margraf of Brandenburg, patron of the arts at that time. The composer named the six masterpieces after his patron. The works have an important place in musical history as they are really embryonic symphonies. The one the orchestra will play this week is considered the most remarkable of the group. Many rich and sonorous effects are characteristic of the fine work.

The program, which Vladimir Golschmann will conduct, follows:

Brandenburg Concerto No. 3, in
G Major — — — — — —Bach
Suite for Strings, Four Horns, Two
Flutes and English Horn—
Purcell-Barbirolli
Andante maestoso (quasi adagio)
Tempo di Menuetto
Andantino
Allegretto giocoso
Largo
Allegro
(First St. Louis performance.)
Le Martyre de Saint Sebastian—Debussy
La Cour des Lys
Danse extatique et Final du I'er acte
La Passion
Le Bon Pasteur
(First St. Louis performance.)
Symphony No. 5, in E Minor,
Opus 64 — — — — —Tschaikowsky

London Likes Two Plays That Critics Didn't

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

THE London theater, booming since the crisis, is featuring two critical failures—Charles Morgan's "The Flashing Stream" and J. B. Priestley's "When We Are Married."

This is Morgan's first play and the author of "The Fountain" has started a colossal argument. In a long Shavian prefatory essay to the play he states that humor is easy and with casual confidence lumps together Shakespeare, Shelley, Milton, Wordsworth, Jesus and Nelson as men who had no humor.

Then he plunges his audience into a play based on the idea of "singleness of mind," a play in which men and women on a monastic island discuss life and love and the destruction of the world in terms of higher mathematics.

Being familiar, as dramatic critic of the London Times, with the tricks of the theater, Morgan has dressed up his metaphysics with a pulp magazine story.

Here is the brilliant young woman venturing among a group of secluded and sex-hungry men. Here is a brave experiment with an aerial torpedo which, magnetized by the enemy bomber, will track it to destruction.

Here also are the baser vices: Lust and jealousy. But even these have failed to convince the critics that Morgan's men and women are human or that his theory is true.

Morgan's fellow critics agree that the play is interesting and even distinguished, but they are not willing to say it is up to his abilities or that it is in any way important.

Similarly, the critics are amused and interested by Priestley's new offering, but it is definitely in a minor key.

"When We Are Married" has a thin plot about three Yorkshire couples celebrating their silver wedding together. During the celebration they discover they all have been married by a bogus minister and have "gone gray in sin."

That is about the extent of the story. Priestley's dialogue makes up the rest.

Sinclair Lewis Writes Drama for Broadway

Sinclair Lewis, famous novelist and Nobel Prize winner, who for several years has been developing an increasing interest in the theater, will become a professional actor shortly when he assumes a leading role in a play he has just completed called "Angela Is Twenty-Two." Playing opposite him will be Fay Wray, motion picture actress, who will share star billing with the author.

According to present plans, the play will go into rehearsal about the middle of next month.

ORSON WELLES, recovered somewhat from his dismay at the countrywide panicky reaction to his "War of the Worlds" broadcasts, plans to resume his Mercury Theater Players dramatizations at 7 o'clock tonight on the CBS network and KMOX. He has discarded previously announced plans to dramatize tonight stories by Carl Ewald, Saki and Sherwood Anderson, and will produce versions of Joseph Conrad's "The Heart of Darkness" and O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magi" and of an excerpt from Clarence Day's "Life With Father." Next Sunday night, Welles says, he will produce his own version of the courtroom scene in Dickens' "Pickwick Papers." For Sunday night, Nov. 20, he has billed Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" with the music written for it by Grieg, and for Nov. 27 a dramatization of the life of St. Paul, based on the New Testament.

At 6:30 this evening, the Land We Live In series will be resumed on KMOX with a dramatization of the story of Jefferson Barracks from 1826, when it was established as an army post on a site donated by the citizens of Carondelet. The program also will cover the story of the Sixth Infantry, which was stationed at Jefferson Barracks in 1826 and is now there, as well as the presence at the post at various times of noted soldiers, including Zachary Taylor, Albert Sidney Johnston, Joseph E. Johnston, Sherman, Sheridan, Grant, Lee, Jefferson Davis, John J. Pershing and others.

More Emphasis On Education By Networks

Schenectady Short Wave Stations Follow Trend — Columbia Workshop Experiments With Poetry.

THE series of dramatizations designed to tell the story of contributions by immigrants to life in the United States is to begin at 1 p. m. next Sunday on the CBS network, instead of Monday, Nov. 14. Also the title of the series has been changed to Americans All—Immigrants All. John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education, will supervise the programs, which are being written by Gilbert Seldes.

Problems faced by average American parents in rearing children will be dramatized in a series titled Wings for the Martins, which will be produced by the NBC, the U. S. Office of Education, the WPA and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Beginning Nov. 16, the programs will be broadcast at 8:30 Wednesday nights on the WJZ net. The underlying idea will be that education does not end with classroom lessons, but must be continued outside of school with cooperative effort by parents, teachers and other members of the community.

A National University Extension Debate broadcast, set for 2 p. m. Friday, Nov. 18, on the WJZ net, will be on the question, "Resolved, That the United States Should Establish an Alliance with Great Britain." Affirmative speakers will be Dr. Pennington Haile, assistant director of the League of Nations Association, and Prof. Clyde Eagleton, of the department of political science, New York University. Speakers for the negative will be Quincy Howe, author of "England Expects Every American to Do His Duty," and John T. Flynn, president of the Board of Higher Education, New York.

Y., have begun broadcasting a regular schedule of educational programs designed to inform listeners all over the world about life and living in the United States with special emphasis upon the schools system. The programs are set for 3:15 p. m. Mondays, 1 p. m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays and 3:15 Fridays, and are broadcast again in the evening of each day in Spanish for reception in Latin-America generally and in Portuguese for reception in Brazil.

Dorothy Gish will play the lead in a sketch which will be a feature of the annual American Red Cross roll-call program at 2:30 p. m. next Sunday on the WEAF net. There will also be a speech by Norman H. Davis, chairman of the Red Cross.

Jussi Bjoerling, the Swedish opera tenor, will be the soloist in the concert from Detroit next Sunday night on KMOX, and Beniamino Gigli, the famous Italian tenor, will sing the night of Nov. 20. The soloist in next Sunday's New York Philharmonic concert will be Michael Shuster, 'cellist of the orchestra, and the music performed will include Schubert's 'Cello Concerto as transcribed by Gaspar Cassado, Schumann's Fourth Symphony and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

AN experiment in the orchestration of poetry was attempted Thursday night in a Columbia Workshop broadcast titled Poetic License. The theory of the technique used by Norman Corwin, who directed the performance on the CBS net, is that poems written to be read by the eye can be done into a form more acceptable by the ear, using occasional extra lines and sound patterns but remaining faithful to the spirit of the poems. Corwin put several poems into his "Poetic License" production. One of them, written by himself in impressionistic style, was "Interview With Signs of the Time," in which electric and Neon signs were supposed to talk. Other poems used were Vachel Lindsay's "The Daniel Jazz," William Rose Benet's "Jesse James," Carl Sandburg's "The Killers," Haskell's "Clair de Lune," and Jake Falstaff's "How Reini Kugel Wrestled With the Wind."

The Columbia Workshop schedule for the 9 to 9:30 p. m. period Thursday nights on the CBS and KMOX has been rearranged to spot a dramatization of Wilbur Daniel Steele's story, "A Drink of Water," Nov. 10; Steele's story, "Luck," Nov. 17; Vittorio Giannini's half-hour opera, "Beauty and the Beast," Nov. 24, and Steele's "The Giants' Stair," Dec. 1.

A series of talks on national defense scheduled on the Mutual net have been cancelled, the War Department explaining that President Roosevelt did not want any speeches on the subject to be made until the current investigation had been completed. The series was opened Oct. 27 with a talk on "The American Navy" by Assistant Navy Secretary Charles Edison. Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring was to have spoken last Thursday, and Brigadier-General H. H. Arnold, Assistant Chief of the Air Corps, was scheduled for a talk Nov. 10.

Helen Hayes has been engaged for a performance in the Silver Theater next Sunday evening and on the following Sunday . . . Marc d'Albert, a young Chicago Negro pianist, will play the CBS net's Keyboard Concerts recital at 2 p. m. Wednesday . . . . Helen Menken will be Kate Smith's guest Nov. 17 . . . Betty Wragge, featured ingenue in Pepper Young's Family, has been added to the cast of Jack Norworth's Father and Son . . . Frank Parker, the tenor, has his choice of singing on the Hollywood Hotel or Burns and Allen programs after Jan. 1, but cannot be on both.

"Wedding in the Camp," a play of the Gypsies by Ivan Lebedev, will be broadcast from Russia as performed in the Gypsy Theater in Moscow, Russia, the only playhouse of its kind in the world, at 7 p. m. Wednesday on the WJZ net. It will be given by a cast of 40 actors and an orchestra. The dialogue, which will be in Russian, will be interspersed with explanations in English.

An experimental auto show television broadcast has been arranged by the NBC for 2 p. m. Tuesday when representatives of seven auto factories will see a demonstration of their cars through the RCA television system at NBC headquarters in New York. After the demonstration of the cars in the Rockefeller Plaza, there will be television showings of details of construction.

Recordings of fine music by artists and orchestras of note will be broadcast in the Music As You Desire It period on WENR (870 kc) at 11 o'clock Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Irene Beasley's R. F. D. No. 1 program from Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., scheduled for this week at 1 p. m. Monday through Friday on the CBS net, will not be broadcast in St. Louis as KMOX does not carry her series.

Former Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York is to be master of ceremonies of a radio series set to start today on WMCA, New York City, with a number of celebrities as guests. His programs will be given in hospitals for 12 weeks. The station time is being bought by a sponsor, but there is to be no advertising on the program, "Variety" reports, the idea being that in the 12 weeks Walker must sell the show to listeners to a degree warranting the sponsor using it commercially and paying Walker the $3500 a week at which he values his radio services.

Examinations for all classes of amateur and commercial radio operator licenses will be held in room 613, Federal Building, 1114 Market street, St. Louis, at 9 a. m. next Friday. Examinations for Class A and B amateurs will be held at the same time and at the same place Saturday.

The NBC serial, Story of the Month, has been shifted to 9 a. m. Monday through Friday on the WJZ net. . . Ted Malone's Between the Book Ends poetry program is now scheduled at 2:45 p. m. Monday through Friday on the WJZ net. . . . "Cannonball" Baker, the racing auto and transcontinental run driver, will take part in We, the People at 8 p. m. Tuesday. . . . The Myrt and Marge serial began its eighth year on the air the past week. . . .

Captains in Peril Dramatization on KSD Tomorrow

Tragedy of Motherhood in One Man's Family Serial Broadcast at 7:00 P. M. Wednesday.

A DARING attempt at theft by a gang of professional burglars, and the way in which they were foiled as their success appeared to be certain, will be dramatized in KSD's Captains in Peril period at 6:30 tomorrow evening. The burglars—three men and a girl—worked out an apparently police-proof scheme for robbing an aged woman of her jewelry. The girl obtained employment as a maid in the woman's home and at the appointed time admitted her male accomplices to the house. But, despite the precision with which details of the theft had been worked out, the gang was thwarted, captured, tried and convicted.

Robert Sim, who served in the World War with Scotch troops and now is director of the Scottish Highland Pipe Band of Chicago, will lead his organization in playing Scotch music in Marek Weber's KSD concert at 9 p. m. tomorrow. Weber will play "Blue Bells of Scotland" as his violin solo, and Opal Craven will sing "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," and Reinhold Schmidt, "The Border Ballad."

Glenda Farrell, the movie actress, and Henny Youngman, the comedian, are billed for the For Men Only period Tuesday night on KSD.

Chico Marx is billed with Bob Hope for Tuesday night on KSD.

Tommy Dorsey plans to review music which his orchestra has featured in the past three years, when his program is broadcast on KSD Wednesday evening.

THE future of a motherless baby, and the implications for the future of the death of Ann, Clifford's estranged wife, when the infant was born, will be the dramatic topics of Wednesday's One Man's Family broadcast. Other scenes will include the return of Betty and Jack to find that their secret marriage is no longer the chief interest of the Barbour Family, and a light-hearted episode in which Claudia's daughter, Joan, will play the principal part.

Mafalda Favero, an Italian lyric soprano, who is to make her debut at the Metropolitan Opera this season as Mimi in "La Boheme," will be Bing Crosby's guest Thursday night on KSD.

Al Pearce and his gang will stage an automobile show skit in their broadcast on KSD tomorrow night.

CIRCUIT CLERK'S WORK PRAISED FROM AFAR

Priest Receives Favorable Comment From Ex-American Bar Head.

The work of Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest in reorganizing his office and making known to lawyers and laymen the details of its operation continues to elicit favorable comment from many sources far from St. Louis.

Priest recently received a letter from Arthur T. Vanderbilt of Newark, N. J., former president of the American Bar Association, praising the pamphlets on court procedure which the Circuit Clerk is compiling and the radio broadcasts in which Priest describes the work of his office from the point of view of the layman.

So far nine of a contemplated series of 26 of the pamphlets have been issued. Copies have been sought by lawyers in many states, by the University of Illinois, and the University of California School of Jurisprudence.

Ewing Cockrell of New York, head of the United States Federation of Justice, in a forthcoming book titled "Successful Education in Parts of Justice," describes Priest's work in detail and adds that he has acted, in effect "as an administrative Chief Justice, an educator to the lawyers, to his own deputy clerks, and to the public as a whole."

Priest is a candidate on the Democratic ticket to succeed himself.

"Over There," a World War story with a Nevada flavor, will be told by the Old Ranger in KSD's Death Valley Days broadcast Friday night. The tale will be of two Nevada soldiers, one of whom saved the other's life in France. Back in Nevada, the former was elected an assessor and the man whom he had saved, a Sherif in the same county. Years later, when the assessor faced a jail sentence, the Sheriff made the occasion one in which to show his gratitude.

The number of persons engaged in the inquiry will be at a peak this week. The survey was started last month and will be completed by May 1.

STATE W P A CHIEF SUPPORTS PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 6

Says Both State and Work Relief Organization Will Be Greatly Benefited.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—State Works Progress Administrator Matthew S. Murray went to the support of the Citizens' Road Association's proposed highway amendment today with the declaration that "both the State of Missouri and the WPA will be greately benefited by the adoption of Amendment No. 6."

"The State of Missouri will be benefited because it will provide the State Highway Department with funds to maintain and improve the 5000 additional miles of farm-to-market roads provided under the act, plus the advantages to cities," Murray said.

"WPA will benefit," he added, "because the Highway Department can sponsor many miles of farm-to-market roads that can be built by the WPA. By combining State and Federal funds, rapid progress can be made toward completion of the farm-to-market system."

Doctors to Describe Its Use at National Conference Friday and Saturday.

Reports on the use of artificial fever in treatment of certain types of disease will be given at a national conference Friday and Saturday at the Park Plaza Hotel. Representatives of 28 hospitals and research centers will attend.

The conference is sponsored by the Kettering Foundation, Dayton O., which has lent hypertherms, machines for fever therapy, to hospitals throughout the country. Various other types of machine for the same purpose are also in use.

Forty physicians and 30 nurse-technicians will attend the meeting. They use hypertherms in treatment of rheumatic fever, St. Vitus's dance, certain types of arthritis, complicated stages of gonorrhea and syphilis and in some types of eye infections.

The fever-producing machine is an insulated, air-conditioned chamber in which heated and humidified air is circulated over the patient's body. The patient lies on an air mattress with his head outside the cabinet.

Dr. Walter M. Simpson, director of the Kettering Institute for Medical Research, will preside and will discuss results of fever treatment in early cases of syphilis at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, O. Dr. Lucy Porter Sutton of New York will speak on fever treatment of St. Vitus's dance, or chorea, in children. Application of the treatment for non-venereal types of neuritis will be discussed by Dr. A. E. Bennett, professor of neurology at the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Franklin G. Ebaugh, professor of neuro-psychiatry at Colorado University, will report on the comparative results of malaria and physically-induced fever in treatment of paresis. Dr. Frank H. FEW
"I've found that REM certainly gives quick relief for a cough...just a few doses are usually enough."
Mr. Reverdy L. Orrell, Sr.
22 S. Catherine St., Baltimore

That's because—

When Mr. Orrell emphasizes "quick relief," he's only one of thousands who comment on the speed with which REM works. REM's great record is no accident. There are definite reasons why REM is so effective:

(1) REM is a real cough medicine, not just a "tickle stopper."

(2) REM clings--and clings--and clings to the throat, soothes the irritation, quiets the cough.

(3) REM works two ways . . . not only in the throat, but also systemically. That's what makes it so very much more effective.

So if you have a cough, resulting from a cold, don't fool around with it! Go after it with a real cough medicine like REM.

Visitors in City Entertained at Many Parties

Duck Shooting Season Affords Opportunity for Week-End Gatherings—Former St. Louisans Here.

OUT-OF-TOWN guests are providing inspiration for many varieties of entertainment aside from parties for the debutante set. The duck shooting season, for instance, has sent large parties to the various lodges in Missouri River bottom lands in the vicinity of St. Charles and St. Peters, Mo.

At Webfoot, the lodge belonging jointly to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner, Mrs. William D. Orthwein II, and Birch Oliver Mahaffey, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Vare Jr., of Philadelphia, are being entertained. Mrs. Vare, who formerly lived in Providence, R. I., was Miss Glenna Collett, several times women's national golf champion. She and her husband, and Richard Bishop, etcher of ducks and other wildlife, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Lewis, are being feted at small dinners, luncheons and cocktail parties. Mr. Bishop and the Lewises are shooting at Willow Club over the week-end.

Mornings at the shooting clubs are usually spent in the blinds, and if ducks are flying, groups stay, with brief intervals for luncheon, until 4 o'clock, the end of each shooting day. Late afternoons find informal gatherings at almost every club, and parties motor from one to the other for cocktails and discussion of the day's bag.

The late August A. Busch had two clubs on his property at St. Peter's. One, called the Lodge, is now frequented by his sons, Adolphus Busch III and August A. Busch Jr., each of whom gives a party there on alternate week-ends. The other, Hedgefield, is owned by his daughters, Mrs. Drummond Jones, Mrs. Percy J. Orthwein and Mrs. Alice Busch Hager. Mrs. Hager is entertaining this week-end at Hedgefield, her guests including the Orthweins, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Maloy and Mr. and Mrs. James B. Bergs. Mr. and Mrs. August Busch Jr. have a small party at the Lodge. Another group is shooting at Dardenne, and still another at Mr. and Mrs. Donald Church Bixby's lodge near by.

Thursday, soon after the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Vare and Mr. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson gave a small party at Trail's End Stables, after which Mr. and Mrs. Werner entertained at a dinner at their home, the Woodlands, on Ladue road. Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Orthwein were host and hostess at a luncheon and skeet shooting party at Deer Creek Club. Later the same day Lewis D. Dozier entertained the visitors at a cocktail party. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Marion L. J. Lambert will give an informal cocktail party in Mr. and Mrs. Vare's honor at the Willow Club, after which the party will return to St. Louis for cocktails at Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Maloy's home, 4912 Pershing avenue. Entertainments for the visitors will close tonight with a dinner Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Orthwein are planning at their home, 48 Portland place.

Mr. and Mrs. Vare, who are guests at the Werner home, and Mr. Bishop will return east tomorrow. The Vares have bought a home in Narragansett Pier, R. I., and spent last summer there, as did Mr. and Mrs. Werner and many other St. Louisans.

Miss Elizabeth Schnaider of the St. Regis apartments has with her for a few days her nephew and niece, Gen. and Mrs. Miguel Acosta, of Mexico City. Mrs. Acosta is the daughter of the late Joseph Schnaider, brother of Miss Schnaider, Mrs. Robert A. B. Walsh and Walter Schnaider, and a former St. Louisan. For the first time in two years, Mrs. Walter Sturgis Knight of New York is in St. Louis, which is her former home. She arrived yesterday to visit her sister, Miss Adele Hayes.

Another visitor is Mrs. Earl H. Reynolds, the former Miss Mary Scudder, who came last week to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles White Scudder. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds now live in Pasadena, Cal.

Early tomorrow morning Bertita Harding, novelist, will arrive here to be the second speaker of the Junior League Monday morning lecture series. She will be a guest at the Coronado Hotel and will be entertained at luncheon after her 11 o'clock lecture at league headquarters by Mrs. Katherine Herndon Smith.

Before her marriage to Jack Harding of Cheshire, England, Mrs. Harding was Miss Bertita Carla Camille Leonarz. She was born in Nurmberg, Germany, and spent her childhood in Mexico. Mrs. Harding's best-known books are: "Phantom Crown," "Golden Fleece" and "Farewell 'Toinette." The topic of her lecture tomorrow is "The Twilight of Royalty."

Charles F. Limberg In a Leading Role Of Triangle Play

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.

CHARLES F. LIMBERG, a senior at Princeton University and son of Edward A. Limberg, 2 Lenox place, St. Louis, and of Mrs. Foster Limberg of Beverly Hills, Cal., will have a leading role in the forthcoming Princeton Triangle Club production, "Once Over Lightly," to be presented in St. Louis Dec. 28. Mr. Limberg will portray Gertrude, wife of Wolf Van Schuyster, prominent New York philanthropist and politician. A dancer in the Triangle chorus for the last two years, he is making his first appearance as a member of the cast.

Other St. Louisans holding offices in the club are: Lewis Warrington Baldwin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Warrington Baldwin, 23 Westmoreland place, who is costume manager, and William C. D'Arcy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. D'Arcy, 6 Hortense place, who is program manager.

The plot of this year's presentation centers around the discovery of the deed of ownership to New York City and the troubles following this disclosure. In a departure from the precedent of recent years, specialty acts and vocal numbers will be included, featuring two quartets. The added emphasis on singing has been attributed to a letter from Booth Tarkington, '93, first president of the Triangle organization, who decried the lack of singing which was so popular in the nineties.

Final selection of music for the show has not been made, but three songs by Sanders Maxwell, '39, of Trenton, N. J., and president of the organization, will be included. The three songs are "Just Because," "Better Than the Average Girl" and "You Sing the Same Old Songs." There will be at least 10 other musical numbers.

Although there will be no direct reference to the golden anniversary of the Triangle Club in the production, recognition of the event will be given by an opening chorus which will sing a medley of hit songs from former club productions.

Leading the cast this year, after a two-year acting experience, will be Frederick E. Fox, '39, of Flagstaff, Ariz., who will first play the role of Peter Minuit, original purchaser of Manhattan Island from the Indians, and later the part of Peter Minuit Jones, descendant of the buyer. Mark Hayes Jr., '39, of Ventnor, N. J., will portray Van Schuyster, the tycoon who owns New York several times in the course of action. Making his third appearance in the cast, Mr. Hayes took parts in the 1936 production, "Take It Away," and in "Fol-De-Rol" last year.

The book of "Once Over Lightly" was written by three members of the senior class, Robert M. McClung of Butler, Pa., Richard R. Uhl of Kingston, Pa., and Alexander H. Lehmann Jr. of New York.

Miss Agnes Galt Makes Informal Bow to Society

Other Debutante Activities Include Dinner Dance for Miss Laura Rand, and Sunday Luncheon.

THE first week-end in November, always filled with debutante parties, includes this year an informal debut, a Saturday night dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, a breakfast, a Sunday luncheon and cocktail party.

An informal bow was made last evening by Miss Agnes Potter Galt, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Galt, 4505 Pershing avenue, when she greeted contemporary debutantes and escorts at a cocktail party at the Galt home from 6 to 8 o'clock.

Simple decorations of fall flowers, augmented by bowls of blossoms sent to the debutante by friends of the Galt family, were used. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Galt in receiving were the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Allan Love, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Potter.

Miss Galt, who is being honored at many other parties this season, was graduated from the John Burroughs School last June. Her junior year was spent at Les Fougeres School in Lausanne, Switzerland.

The second party of the evening was the dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, which Mr. and Mrs. L. Wade Childress, Clayton and McKnight roads, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Robinson Pirrung, gave in honor of the Veiled Prophet Queen, Miss Laura Hale Rand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambless Rand. Mrs. Pirrung, as Miss Lila Marshall Childress, was queen in 1935.

About 130 members of the debutante set were seated at an oval table in the alcove dining-room. Decorations were bowls of white and yellow chrysanthemums alternating with silver candelabra holding yellow tapers. In the main dining room, where other members of the club had small tables, Mr. and Mrs. Childress entertained Mr. and Mrs. Rand and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord. Mrs. Gaylord is the mother of Mr. Pirrung. Mr. and Mrs. Pirrung had a few of their close friends at another table.

Mrs. Charles E. Michel was hostess at a breakfast party yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Junior League clubrooms in honor of two of the season's debutantes, Miss Virginia Jane Price, daughter of Mrs. J. Boyle Price, and Miss Margaret McPheeters Adreon, daughter of Mrs. Robert E. Adreon.

Debutante guests included Miss Theoline Bostwick, Miss Martha Bixby, Miss Galt, Miss Nancy Russell, Miss Becky Wells, Miss Mary Jane Allen, Miss Nancy Bliss Morfit, Miss Frances Howell Lewis, Miss Louise French and Miss Nancy Malotte Houser, the latter a post-debutante.

At Mrs. Michel's table were seated Mrs. Adreon and her two sisters, Mrs. Rogers V. Scudder and Miss Sidney B. Price. Mrs. Boyle Price was unable to attend.

Several of the season's debutantes have been invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Carter, 7 Oakleigh lane, for a luncheon today at 1:30 o'clock in honor of five of the buds: Miss Caroline O'Fallon Gatch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayward H. Gatch; Miss Galt, Miss Adreon, Miss Price and Miss Frances Howell Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Carter and their daughter, Eleanor Lee, will receive informally. Luncheon will be served at small tables.

In addition to the honor guests, the following young women, with their escorts, will attend: Miss French, Miss Allen, Miss Bostwick, Miss Wells, Miss Lida Lee Christy, Miss Suzanne White, Miss Bixby, Miss Russell and Miss Betty Jane Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, and their daughter, Miss Nancy Malotte, a special maid at the Veiled Prophet ball last year, will entertain at a cocktail party this afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock at their home. Guests of honor will be Miss Adreon; Miss Bixby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bixby; Miss Allen, daugther of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Claflin Allen Jr., and Miss Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wells.

Guests will include members of this season's debutante set and a few girls of Miss Houser's year, with their escorts.

Miss Jane Comfort Is Married to Van Buren Wilks

RIVER CLIFF, the home of Mrs. Charles David Comfort at 4670 South Broadway, was lighted by tall white tapers for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Jane King Comfort, and Van Buren Wilks yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. B. F. Hall, pastor of Central Phesbyterian Church, in the presence of 200 guests.

C. Henri Comfort escorted his sister down the stairway, garlanded in smilax and white chrysanthemums, across the hall to the living room. The wedding took place before the tall pier glass, framed in gilt, which stands between windows. Around the mirror and across the window tops were hung garlands of greenery combined with the white flowers. In front of each window was a tall standard of white chrysanthemums, with a candelabrum on either side.

The bridal gown of white satin was designed on princesse lines with draped cowl neckline and long sleeves. Over the dress train fell a tulle veil from a cluster of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of Easter lilies.

Mrs. Erwin Martin Nicol, her sister's matron of honor, wore a raisin red dress of moss crepe. It was a Grecian model, with accordion-pleated skirt, bodice and short sleeves. The dress was girdled with gold braid. Mrs. Nicol wore a gold band on her hair and carried a large bouquet of chrysanthemums in the autumn shades. The pair departed on an automobile trip to California which will last a month. They will make their home in St. Louis.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

WITH their children and grandchildren literally at the four corners of the country, President and Mrs. Roosevelt will eat their Thanksgiving turkey at Warm Springs, Ga., the only representatives of their family at the annual festival there.

James Roosevelt and his wife and family are in California where he is recovering from his recent long illness with no hope of coming East even by Christmas. Mrs. John Boettiger, only daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, with her children, Curtis and Eleanor Dall, will spend the holidays at Seattle and Elliott Roosevelt and his family will remain in Texas for Christmas.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will take their long-awaited holidays in a short time. They will go to Lima, Peru, where the Secretary is to head the United States delegation to the Pan American Conference.

Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of Hall Roosevelt, brother of the President's wife, will soon be a White House debutante.

A group of young matrons recently discussed the last White House debutante, Miss Helen Taft, now Mrs. Frederick H. Manning. Miss Taft was serious-minded and probably even then had in mind the college teaching career she has since followed. She insisted on attending Bryn Mawr in her debutante year and would run down to Washington to debutante events but was back at school as soon as they were over.

Now her eldest daughter, Helen Taft Manning, in a season or two will, no doubt, be presented to society in Washington by her grandmother, Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the late President and Chief Justice.

Some of Washington's oldest debutantes sniff at the oft-printed stories that the capital has no place to house royalty. If King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visit America next summer have a choice of several places to stay while they are here. Dumbarton Oaks, home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss is one of them. Tudor Place, once the home of a granddaughter of Martha Washington, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, and the home of Mrs. Edward Beale McLean at 2020 Massachusetts avenue, which already possess a royal suit, prepared for the late King Leopold I, who never used it.

At the time of the visit of King Albert of the Belgians and his Queen, they were entertained at dinner in the McLean house by the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, to whom the house had been lent for the purpose by Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh.

Betty Riley and W. P. Zemitzsch Married in Church

MISS BETTY LOUISE RILEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Riley, 709 Clark avenue, Webster Groves, and Walter P. Zemitzsch were married last night at 8 o'clock at the Emmanual Episcopal Church, Webster Groves. The Rev. J. Manley Cobb performed the ceremony by candlelight before an altar banked with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums. Tall white tapers lighted the aisle.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white velvet made on princesse lines. The skirt flared into a long train and the neck was cut to a low V. The long tight sleeves ended in a point over the hand. A tiara of orange blossoms held the long tulle veil in place. She carried lilies-of-the-valley and white orchids. The bridesmaids' dresses were fashioned alike of velvet made with shirred bodices and shoulders, long sleeves and long full skirts. Miss Katherine Green, maid of honor, wore fuchsia color with which she carried pumpkin colored chrysanthemums. Miss Marjorie Tilton wore ultramarine blue and carried bronze flowers. Mrs. Lindsey Smyth was gowned in plum colored velvet and carried yellow flowers. The flower girl, Jane Bonham, wore gold colored velvet also made on princesse lines, with which she carried a small old-fashioned bouquet of lavendar chrysanthemums. Mrs. Riley wore black velvet made with a short jacket and long sleeves. Her corsage was of orchids.

Mr. Zemitzsch was attended by Richard Schultz as best man and John Rodman of Cleveland, O., cousin of the bride-elect, and William Thomsen as groomsmen. The ushers were: Harvey Crow, Frank Roden, Melvin Wagner, cousin of the bridegroom, and Charles Kelley of Kansas City, Mo.

Among the out-of-town guests who attended the reception held at the Riley home after the ceremony were: Mrs. James Riley, grandmother of the bride, Miss Evelyn and Miss Catherine Riley, Miss Creta Arnett and Mrs. Harry B. Hulett, all of Parsons, Kan. Mrs. Edgar Rodman of Cleveland, O., Mrs. Gordon Riley of Tyler, Tex., Mrs. Gus Ellerbrock of Baltimore, Mrs. Robert Kiskaddon of Maseville, Mo., Mrs. U. H. Robinson of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. William Bays, Mrs. George Rodman and Mrs. George Rodman Jr., all of Murphysboro, Ill.

After a short wedding trip the pair will make their home at 615 County Hills drive in Webster Groves.

National Officer Of Junior League Visits St. Louis

MISS HELEN T. FINDLAY of New York, secretary of the Arts Department of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, is visiting the St. Louis chapter as part of an extensive tour to acquaint league members with the cultural objectives of the arts department.

Modern community planning conveys a new emphasis on the use of leisure hours, Miss Findlay said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, adding that one of the purposes of her department is to promote methods of supplementing community leisure time programs.

"Some of the 148 Junior League chapters," Miss Findlay observed, "conduct community classes in fine arts. Some have organized art classes, others handicraft courses, still others glee clubs. The programs are, of course, elastic, depending on varying conditions in different communities."

Miss Findlay, who outlined the program of her department yesterday before the St. Louis chapter at its headquarters, 4932 Maryland avenue, said members were encouraged to develop their own talents. In some cases camera clubs have been formed. Lectures and exhibits are often obtained for the entire community. Much of the work of the local chapter, she pointed out, has been devoted to welfare activities.

Currently on exhibition at the league headquarters is the Zeiss-Ikon loan exhibition of photographs taken by women. The collection, which is international in scope, will be open to the public Tuesday from 6 to 9 p. m. A demonstration of photographic methods will be held for members Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Alfred W. Brown is president of the St. Louis chapter of the league and Miss Martha Nicolaus is chairman of its art committee.

ITALY TO CELEBRATE COLORFUL FESTIVAL

Venetians Observe "Maria della Salute" on Nov. 21—Da Vinci Exhibit.

At this time of year all Venice looks forward to planning the last regatta and song festival of the lagoons, the feast of Our Lady of Good Health, or, as the Italians call it, the Sagra of the Madonna della Salute. Each year on Nov. 21 this feast closes the Venetian season and summer comes to an end with a riot of color, costume and medieval splendor.

The church of the Madonna della Salute is one or four great plague churches of the city. Venice, during the Middle Ages, was exposed to the ravages of the pleague, owing to its commercial relationships with the crowded and pestilence-stricken towns of the Levant. When a scourge of this type appears today we isolate the bad cases and improve the drainage and sanitary conditions; in the Middle Ages when disease was regarded as a punishment, men made vows and built churches to some influential saint. The Adriatic coast is dotted with plague churches.

The church of Maria della Salute commemorates the plague which visited the city in 1630. While Gov. Winthrop was founding the city of Boston Venice was just ending its fight with the black plague which first invaded the city in 1575. The church was designed in the then fashionable Palladin style by Longhena, a pupil of Palladio. Almost every object of art contained bears some reference to the pestilence. There are pictures which show Venice at the feet of Our Lady; others show angels dispatching the dark demons of disease. There is one picture which strikes a happier note and has no relationship with the plague. It is Tintoretto's "Marriage at Cana." Three fine Titians in the church ceilings are likewise not plague pictures.

Music and Processions.

The memory of the plague will be farthest from the minds of Venetians when Salute's feast day arrives. Two vast wooden pontoon bridges are thrown across the Grand Canal, spanning it between the Campo of Santa Maria Zobenigo, and the Fondamento on the opposite shore. These convey thousands of pilgrims to the votive church. They are led by a procession of church dignitaries in full vestments and carrying gorgeous banners. The bridges are crowded with people and in the evening illuminated lanterns, the traditional Venetian "balloni" are reflected in the waters of the Grand Canal. Bands play and people sing until late at night.

The religious devotion is supplemented with a hearty meal of which mutton forms the chief dish. On this day all Venetians eat the "castradena," a dish of salted and smoked mutton. All the lanes and shores of Venice are crowded with coster barrows with something gay, noisy or edible to sell. On the canal and in St. Mark's basin there is a medley of gondolas and craft of every kind, size and shape, down to timber barges and rafts, all decorated and laden with banners and colored lanterns.

This colorful festival is held in an environment which is just as ancient as the festival itself. The triumphal beauty, the lanes and waterways beside ancient palaces, all suggest days long past. While the old galleys no longer lie by its embankments, its old shores still harbor vessels that hail from every port in the world. Everything that the eye rests on belongs to the sixteenth century. Even the noises have remained the same for there are no whizzing motor cars. There is still the clatter of horses feet on the cobbles and the splash of the gondolier's oar and his call as he rounds a corner.

While all this is happening in Venice, Milan is preparing for an exhibit of the works of Leonardo da Vinci in the spring. A bulletin has been issued calling for works of the great master which are said to be lost. There are 16 pieces, among them paintings, an equestrian statue, a tapestry, a model for an altar vessel and a Medusa shield. Most of these pieces are mentioned by Vasari, famous art authority.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR AT LONDON IN FEBRUARY

Visitors and buyers who attend the British Industries Fair which opens in London on Feb. 20, and closes March 3, will be offered free use of London clubs. Among the amenities offered to visitors will be the services of interpreters and information bureaus, exemption from passport visa charges; admission at reduced rates or free to museums, art galleries and places of interest in England.

When the first fair was held in 1915 it comprised only five sections: fancy goods, jewelry, cutlery, electroplate, pottery and glassware, stationery, printing and publishing, toys and games. Since that date the fair has added steadily to its scope and the accommodations in London and Birmingham have been repeatedly enlarged. Last winter there were 2432 exhibitors and the total exhibiting area amounted to almost 1,000,000 square feet. A total of more than 500,000 persons visited the fair, which now represents some 76 United Kingdom trades.

The Queen Mary, which sails from New York to Southampton on Feb. 10, has been designated as the special British Industries Fair sailing.

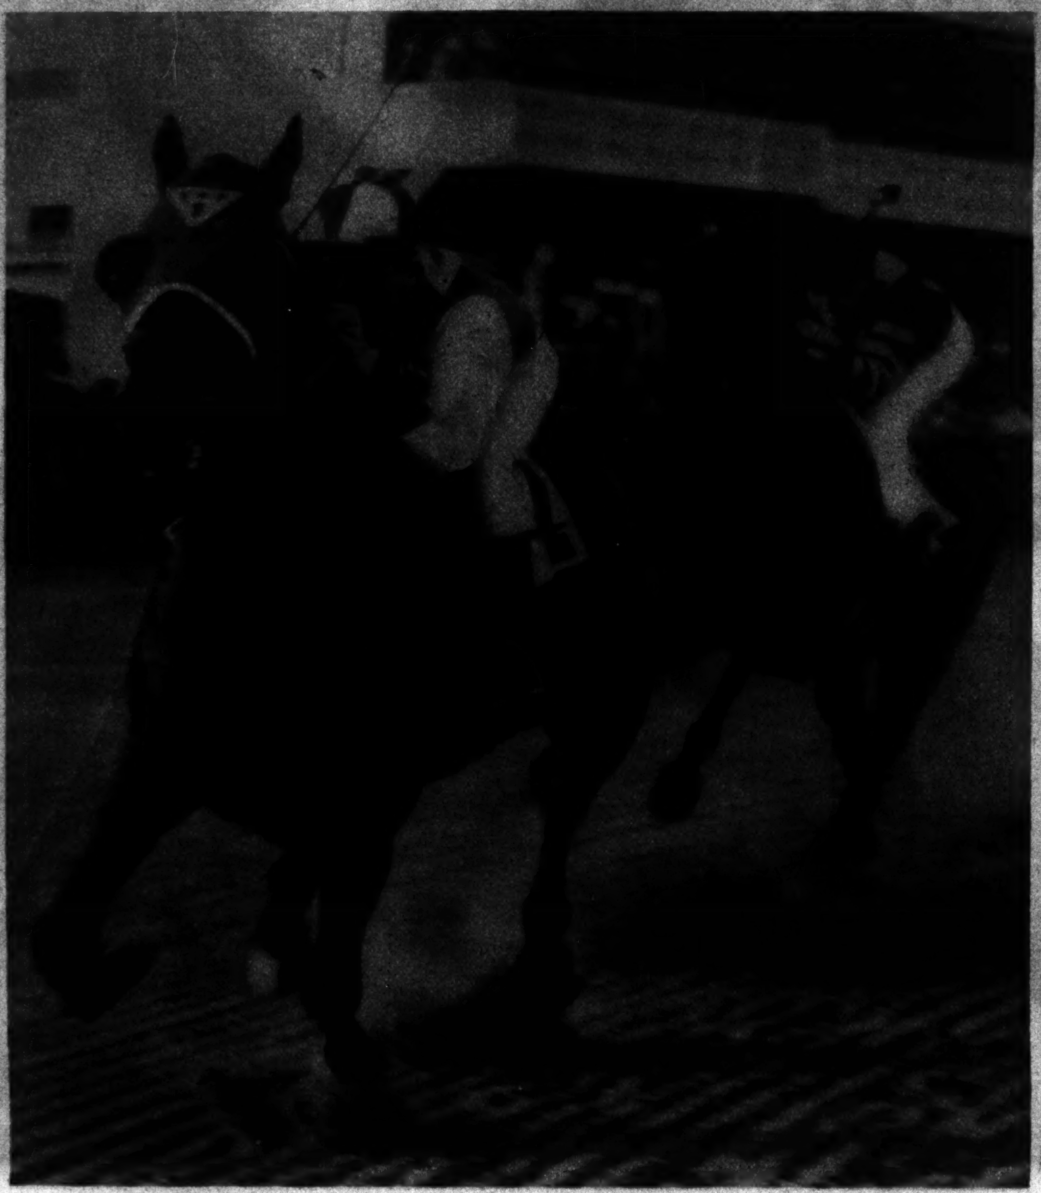
Two Scions of Man o' War Settle an Argument

Easy ending for Seabiscuit. Far ahead in the stretch, "the 'Biscuit" crossed the finish line three lengths ahead of War Admiral.



Seabiscuit, grandson of the great Man o' War, took an early lead at the first turn over his relative, War Admiral, son of the famous sire.

ONE widely publicised difference of opinion among horse race bettors was settled decisively Tuesday at Pimlico track, Baltimore, when Seabiscuit, 5-year-old pride of Charles S. Howard, crossed the finish line, after a fast mile and three-sixteenths, three lengths ahead of a vaunted rival, War Admiral, owned by Samuel D. Riddle. The race proved Seabiscuit the better horse. War Admiral pulled abreast once, took dust from "the 'Biscuit's" heels the rest of the distance. The long argument between track fans extended by postponement of the race last June, led to interest rivaling the Kentucky Derby, and a record attendance.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt watched the race he had enthusiastically advocated.

An enlargement of the film strip, showing Deering's heart reactions—his growing tension, the moment of panic when the heart leaped wildly as the shots were fired, and the spasms as he died.

Dr. Stephen H. Besley, prison physician, with the film record of Deering's heart action at the time of his execution.

Measuring the Heartbeat of a Man Being Executed

JOHN W. DEERING, a murderer with nerves of chilled steel, made an unusual repayment to society for the life he had taken, when he was executed by a firing squad at the Utah State Prison in Salt Lake City last Monday. He willingly co-operated in an experiment, probably the first time completed successfully, to record the action of a human heart stopped by bullets.

The prisoner had amazed officials with his courage. He had fought desperately to get the death sentence for the holdup killing of a Salt Lake City business man, declaring there was no place in society for him after half his life had been spent in prison. He willed his body to science and his eyes to a blind man. Most of his last night on earth he joked with guards and the one newspaper man there, the correspondent for PICTURES, admitted at the prisoner's request. Laughing, Deering borrowed a half-dollar from them to pay Charon, the grim mythological boatman who ferries the souls of the dead across the River Styx. And at 4 a. m., two and a half hours before the appointed time, he lay down and slept soundly until he was awakened to die. He refused to embrace religion, smoked a cigarette which he lighted with steady hands while the Sheriff read the death warrant, and encouraged a priest to "keep a stiff upper lip" on the death march.

After a black hood was placed over his head and a piece of black cloth with a white center over his heart, Deering was placed in a chair before a prison wall. Wired plates were placed over his wrists, carrying his heartbeats to an electrocardiograph. The firing squad of five took its place behind a curtain, its rifles in gun rests pointed at his heart. One of the rifles contained a blank cartridge. When the Sheriff asked him if he had anything to say, he thanked the warden, prison attaches and two priests for being "damned good" to him. "Good-by," he said, "I'm all set. Let 'er go!" A tense moment of silence followed, then the rifles spat. For nearly a minute Deering groaned and writhed. Two minutes later he was pronounced dead.

But for all his show of cold courage, the cardiograph revealed he had been unable to prevent his fear from breaking loose within him in a flash of panic in those last seconds before death. His heart tension increased during his last statement, and his heart had jumped wildly at the rifles' crack.

A model shows how the electrocardiograph operated during the execution. Deering's arms and legs were strapped to the chair. The bands on the model's wrists are the cardiograph electrodes. There was a black mask over Deering's head, and the cardiograph was actually 10 feet from his chair.

Details Necessary for a Journey in the Iron Lung

NOT for two years and seven months has Fred B. Snite Jr. drawn a normal breath. Chest muscles completely paralyzed, the handsome, blond son of a multimillionaire Chicagoan survives only by remaining in a respirator, obtaining breath of life by artificial measures. What appeared to be only a severe attack of influenza took Snite at 26 years of age to a Peiping, China, hospital, when on a world tour in March, 1936. Two days later physicians realized that his illness was the dreaded infantile paralysis.

Fred was placed in a huge respirator and taken to his home at River Forest, Illinois, fashionable Chicago suburb. The 12,000-mile journey, superintended by a corps of physicians, nurses, orderlies and mechanics, cost Fred Snite Sr. $50,000. Fred Jr. spends his summers at his northern home, his winters in Florida. A few days ago he left for Miami Beach to spend his second winter there in the iron lung. Newspaper and newsreel cameramen were on hand to record removal of the 900-pound Drinker respirator in which he reclines, from his room at the Snite residence to a specially fitted trailer. The trailer then was towed to the station, and the big tank loaded aboard a special C. & E. I. train which took the Snite party of 40, including Fred's parents, six nurses, two orderlies, electricians, a physician and a respirator manufacturer, to Florida.

Fred Jr. has never abandoned faith that he will recover. He is encouraged by notable improvement in legs and trunk and some in the arms. By using neck muscles, he can breathe for a brief period without the respirator. A new contrivance, weighing only a few pounds, permits him to remain out of the Drinker, or "iron lung," for several hours at a time. As strength increases, he will be able to sit, perhaps stand erect. Regardless of type, the "lungs" fit airtight about the patient's chest, so that air pressure may be increased and decreased in regular breathing intervals. When pressure is decreased, chest muscles expand and oxygen enters the lungs; with increased pressure, the chest is pressed down, lungs deflated, used air exhaled.

Another Girl From Texas Gets Her Chance

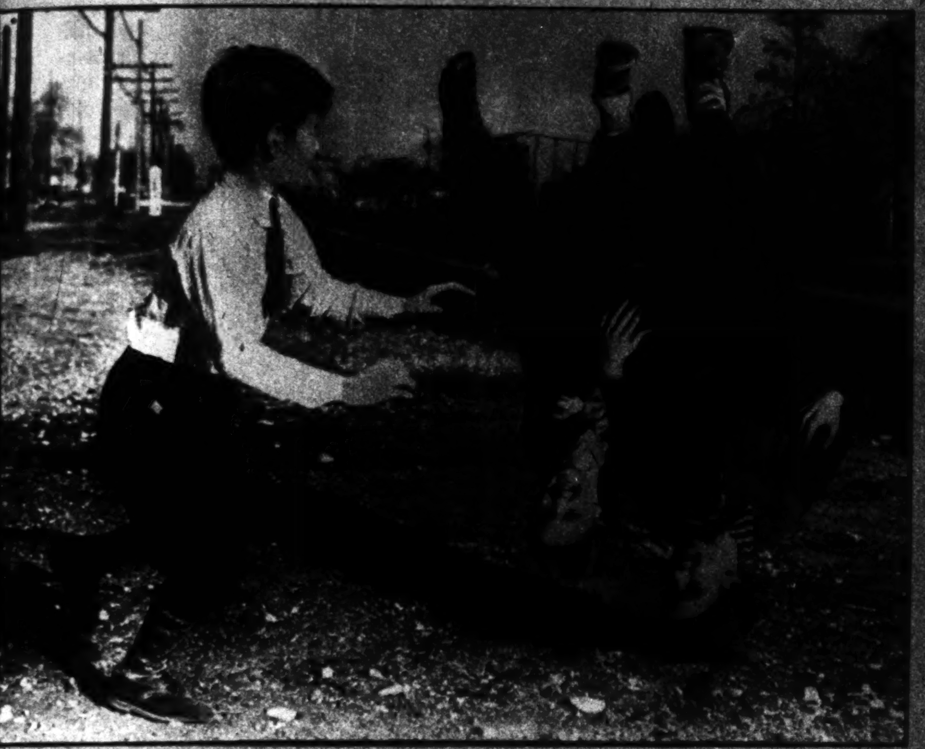
Costumed for swimming, sunning or photographing.

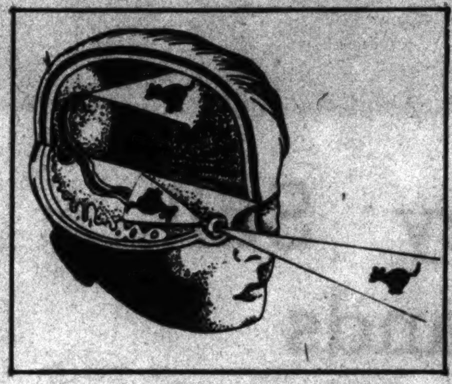
SOME years ago there emerged from her native Texas a youngster with a pert nose, an active pair of legs and an ambition to be the lone star—at least the biggest one—from the State. In California she shed the name of Kelly, danced industriously under instruction, got into a musical show. Presently, the busy legs having become ornamental as well as useful, she got into the movies in a small way. The movies were not notably affected, and she returned to the stage. Now back in Hollywood, she has managed to make a sufficient impression in minor parts—in "The Good Old Soak" and "Armored Car" for instance—to get her big chance at last, a leading role in Bob Burns' new picture, "I'm From Missouri." It has been a long grind for Judith Barrett. She's past 20 now.

SEES UPSIDE DOWN

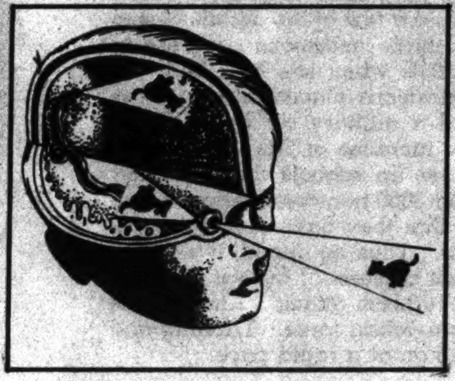
Richard Kenealy's Strange Defect of Vision

Richard Kenealy, 8 years old, of Berwyn, Illinois, sees all moving objects as though they were upside down. Stationary objects appear normally. Medical history contains no similar case. Above, Richard plays football with his chums, although they appear to him to be upside down, as shown below.





In the normal eye (above), the dog's image is upside down on the retina but right side up in the center of sight in the brain. Below, the impulses travel too slowly to revert the image in Richard's sight center.

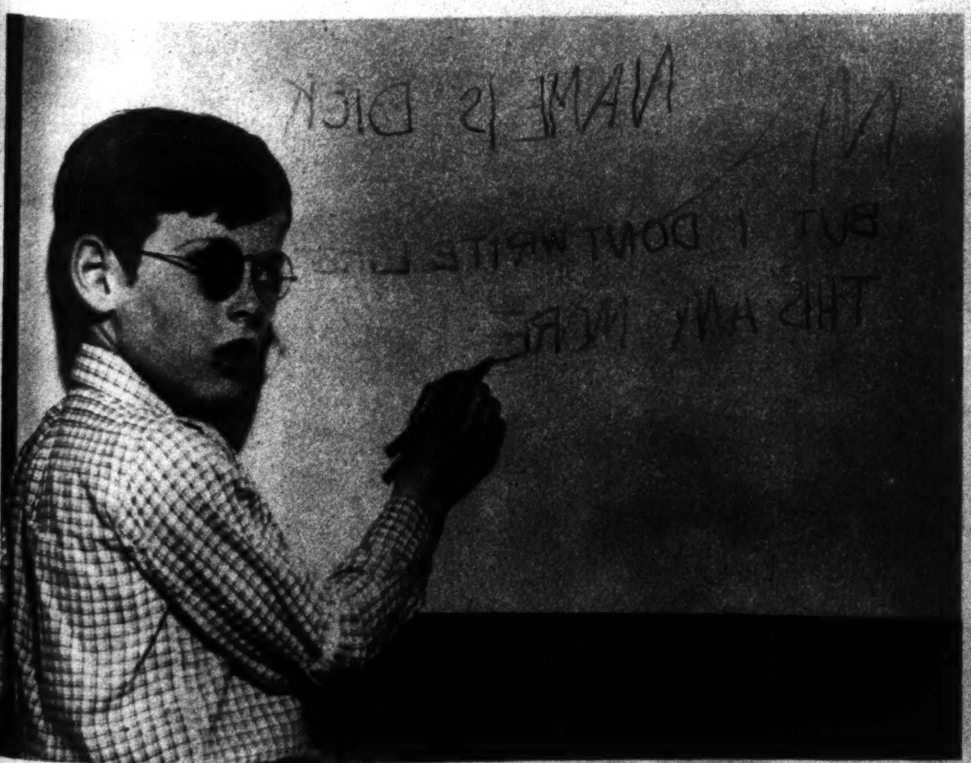


To most persons it would be rather terrifying, but Richard is quite used to seeing automobiles, buses and trains whizzing by with wheels uppermost and occupants riding upside down. Below, he waits until the inverted traffic slide by with wheels skyward.

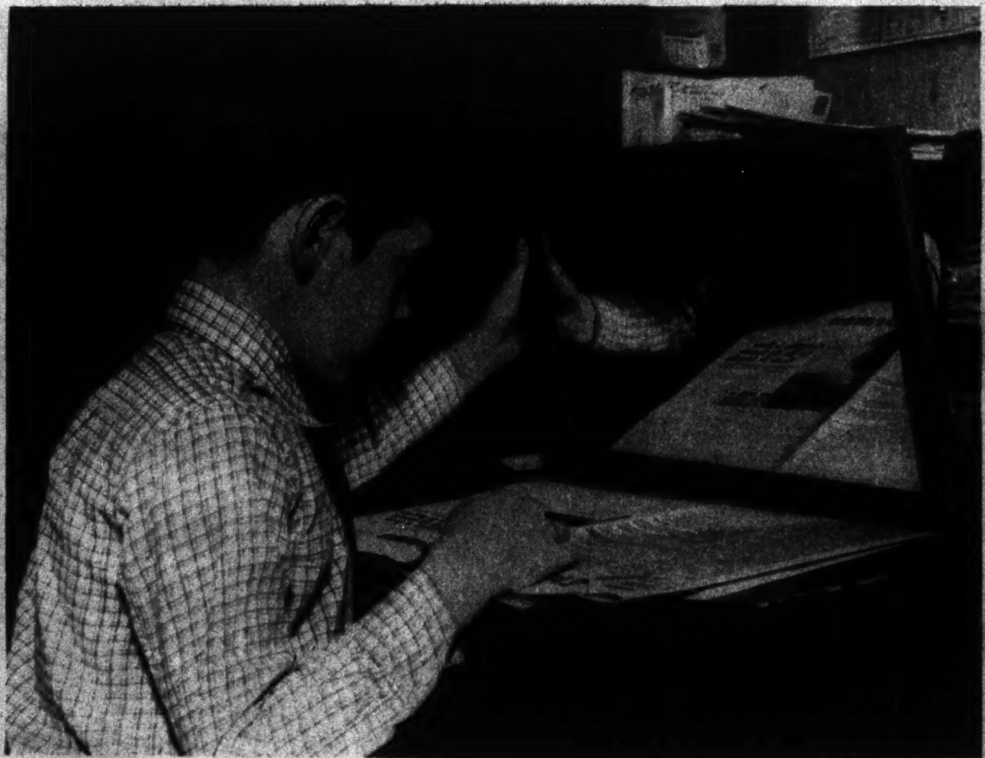
SO UNUSUAL is the eye defect afflicting 8-year-old Richard Kenealy of Berwyn, Illinois, photographs of whom are shown on this page, that medical science has no name for it. As far as is known, he is the only person in the world whose vision causes him to see moving objects as though they were upside down. To this redheaded boy, who is normal in every other respect, walking persons appear to be going along with head on ground and feet in the air, moving automobiles dash by with wheels uppermost, and babies ride by in inverted perambulators. When they halt, they automatically turn right side up. As Richard's physician, Dr. L. W. Rosenbaum, explains the case, the trouble is caused by the sight impulse traveling too slowly along the optic nerve to the sight center in the brain. An object seen by a normal eye is upside down on the retina (the back section of the eye which receives the image of vision and is connected with the brain by the optic nerve) but is turned right side up by the transfer of the impulse to the sight center of the brain. In Richard's case, the impression of a moving object does not last long enough to permit the nerve to revert the impression to its normal. In normal sight, an impression made by a stimulus lasts from one-twentieth to one-eighth of a second longer than the stimulus that produces it, according to Dr. Rosenbaum, but Richard's sight nerves in the right eye are so retarded that the image fades before it can be reverted. The boy's left eye is normal but the defect in the right prevents him from seeing normally unless the right eye is covered. Babies are unable to distinguish size, shape or distance for some days after birth. The adjustment which normally takes place in infancy failed to occur in Richard's right eye. Apparently, the condition will be removed after the eye is "trained." Part of the training consists in placing an opaque cover over the right lens of his spectacles so the inverted vision is shut off and he can become accustomed to seeing moving objects as they are. Richard has another sight defect which is not unusual—he writes from right to left and requires a mirror for reading.

Richard undergoing one of the many examinations he has had since his defect in vision was discovered last March.

Richard can catch a ball as well as any other youngster but an overhand pitch appears underhand to him.



Richard shows how he used to write before treatment was begun for the second visual defect, a minor one, which caused him to start from the right.



The secondary defect also caused Richard quite a bit of trouble in reading. Placing a book or newspaper before a mirror, he read from the reversed image.

On his way to school with the right eye covered by a black lens so moving objects won't appear upside down.

Germany Still Expands Her Air Force

Eyes of a fighting pilot. Aiming his plane, he centers the circular sight on the target.

RARELY has Germany allowed pictures to be taken showing details of military aviation training or of military plane construction. These pictures, while giving away no military secrets, are unusual in that they show training for machine gun aerial marksmanship and a few of the details of gun synchronization. Germany has made enormous progress in military aviation since March, 1935, when she admitted that she had ignored the military restrictions placed on her at the end of the World War and had a military air force of 250 planes. Openly carrying on the increase of this small force, she built it up to 3000 planes, set up schools that annually graduate 800 aviation officers and 3000 non-commissioned officers, developed her factories so that they have a wartime potentiality of 15,000 planes a year. Thus equipped, it was not difficult a few weeks ago to beset capitals of Europe with the nightmare of aerial armadas in ruthless attack. Air Minister Goering continues to expand his aviation force. Training and equipping such as shown here go on at a rapid pace.

ONE of the most impressive things about the oddest college in the c try is its campus. The rolling, wooded-green beauty of Ma College grounds near Nashville, Tennessee, is striking enough the uninformed visitor is almost startled by the monastic calm prevaili the 700 acres where 350 students are literally earning and receiving an cation all in one spot. In hours unreserved for study or sleep, most of students are employed in campus industries. The quiet of Madison lege is unbroken by idle chatter or empty laughter. There is no at stadium because there are no athletics; there are no recreation hall cause there are no student frivolities. The only extra-curricular activi old Madison is work.

Because there are but 24 hours in one day, student social life at ison College, therefore, is restricted to hikes and such meetings as the approval of rules and regulations and a student-faculty governing b Young men and women are not permitted to leave school property wi permission, the girls only in groups of three or more and chapero Mixed groups of at least four persons, properly chaperoned, may hik gether, but no strollers or loitering couples are permitted on campu buildings or anywhere else; students who attend theater, movies, circ commercial sports are subject to discipline; those possessing cards, li or tobacco, to dismissal. The acres of Madison College, its classrooms, farms, dairies, workshops and its hospital, are strung along the Cumberland River. Denominationally Seventh Day Adventist, it was founded in 1904. Since then, thousands otherwise unable to buy an education, have turned the pages of its books, and have labored in its factories or by other services balanced the bill for tuition, board and room. The fame of Madison College as a self-supporting institution for self-supporting students has spread until last year nearly 2000 applications were submitted.

It is the theory of the institute, open to students of all faiths, that religious living, honest labor and cultural development are all strings of the same instrument. Both educational and work programs, therefore, aim at preparing graduates for economic competition, and for practical work in the public weal if they decide to enter less material fields.

Most of the 75 faculty members are married, live on the campus. A 12-grade school is run for their children. Many of the students are preparing for teaching careers, aiming to return to rural communities and establish self-help schools patterned after the unique institution on the Cumberland where they obtained their own education.

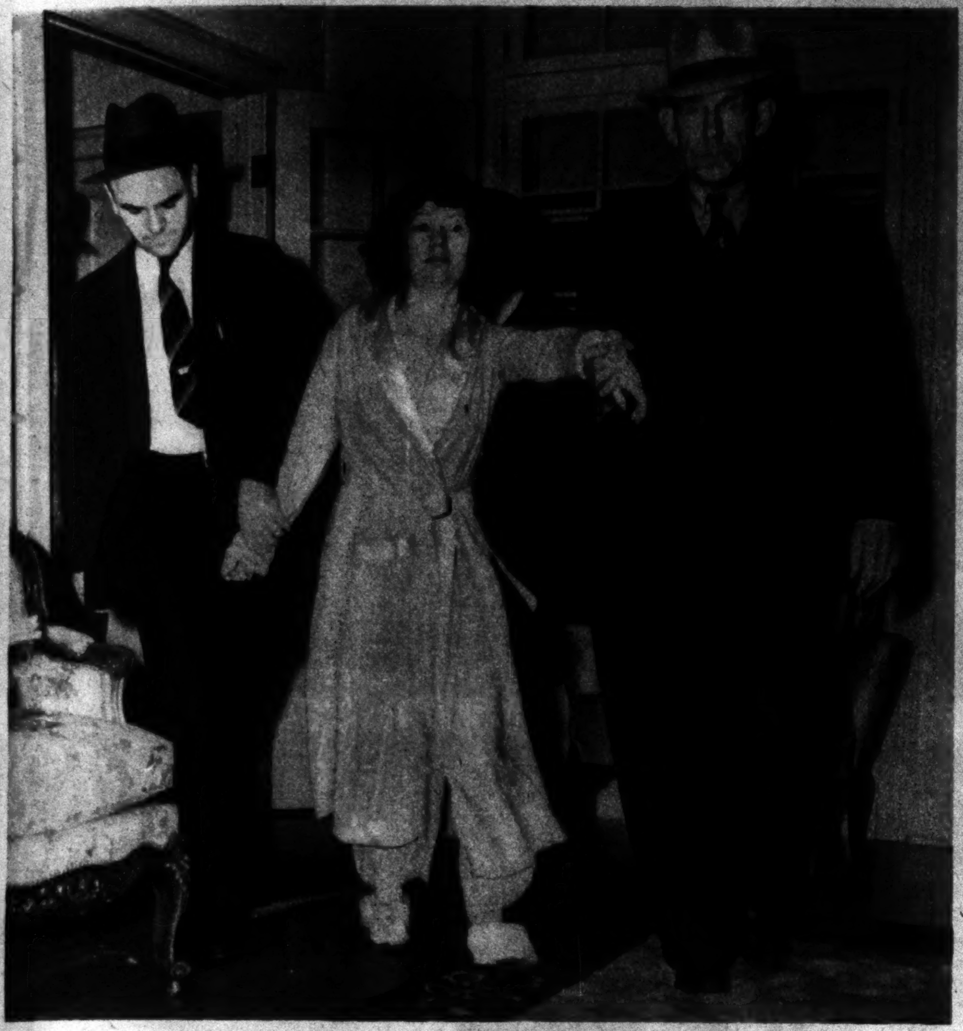
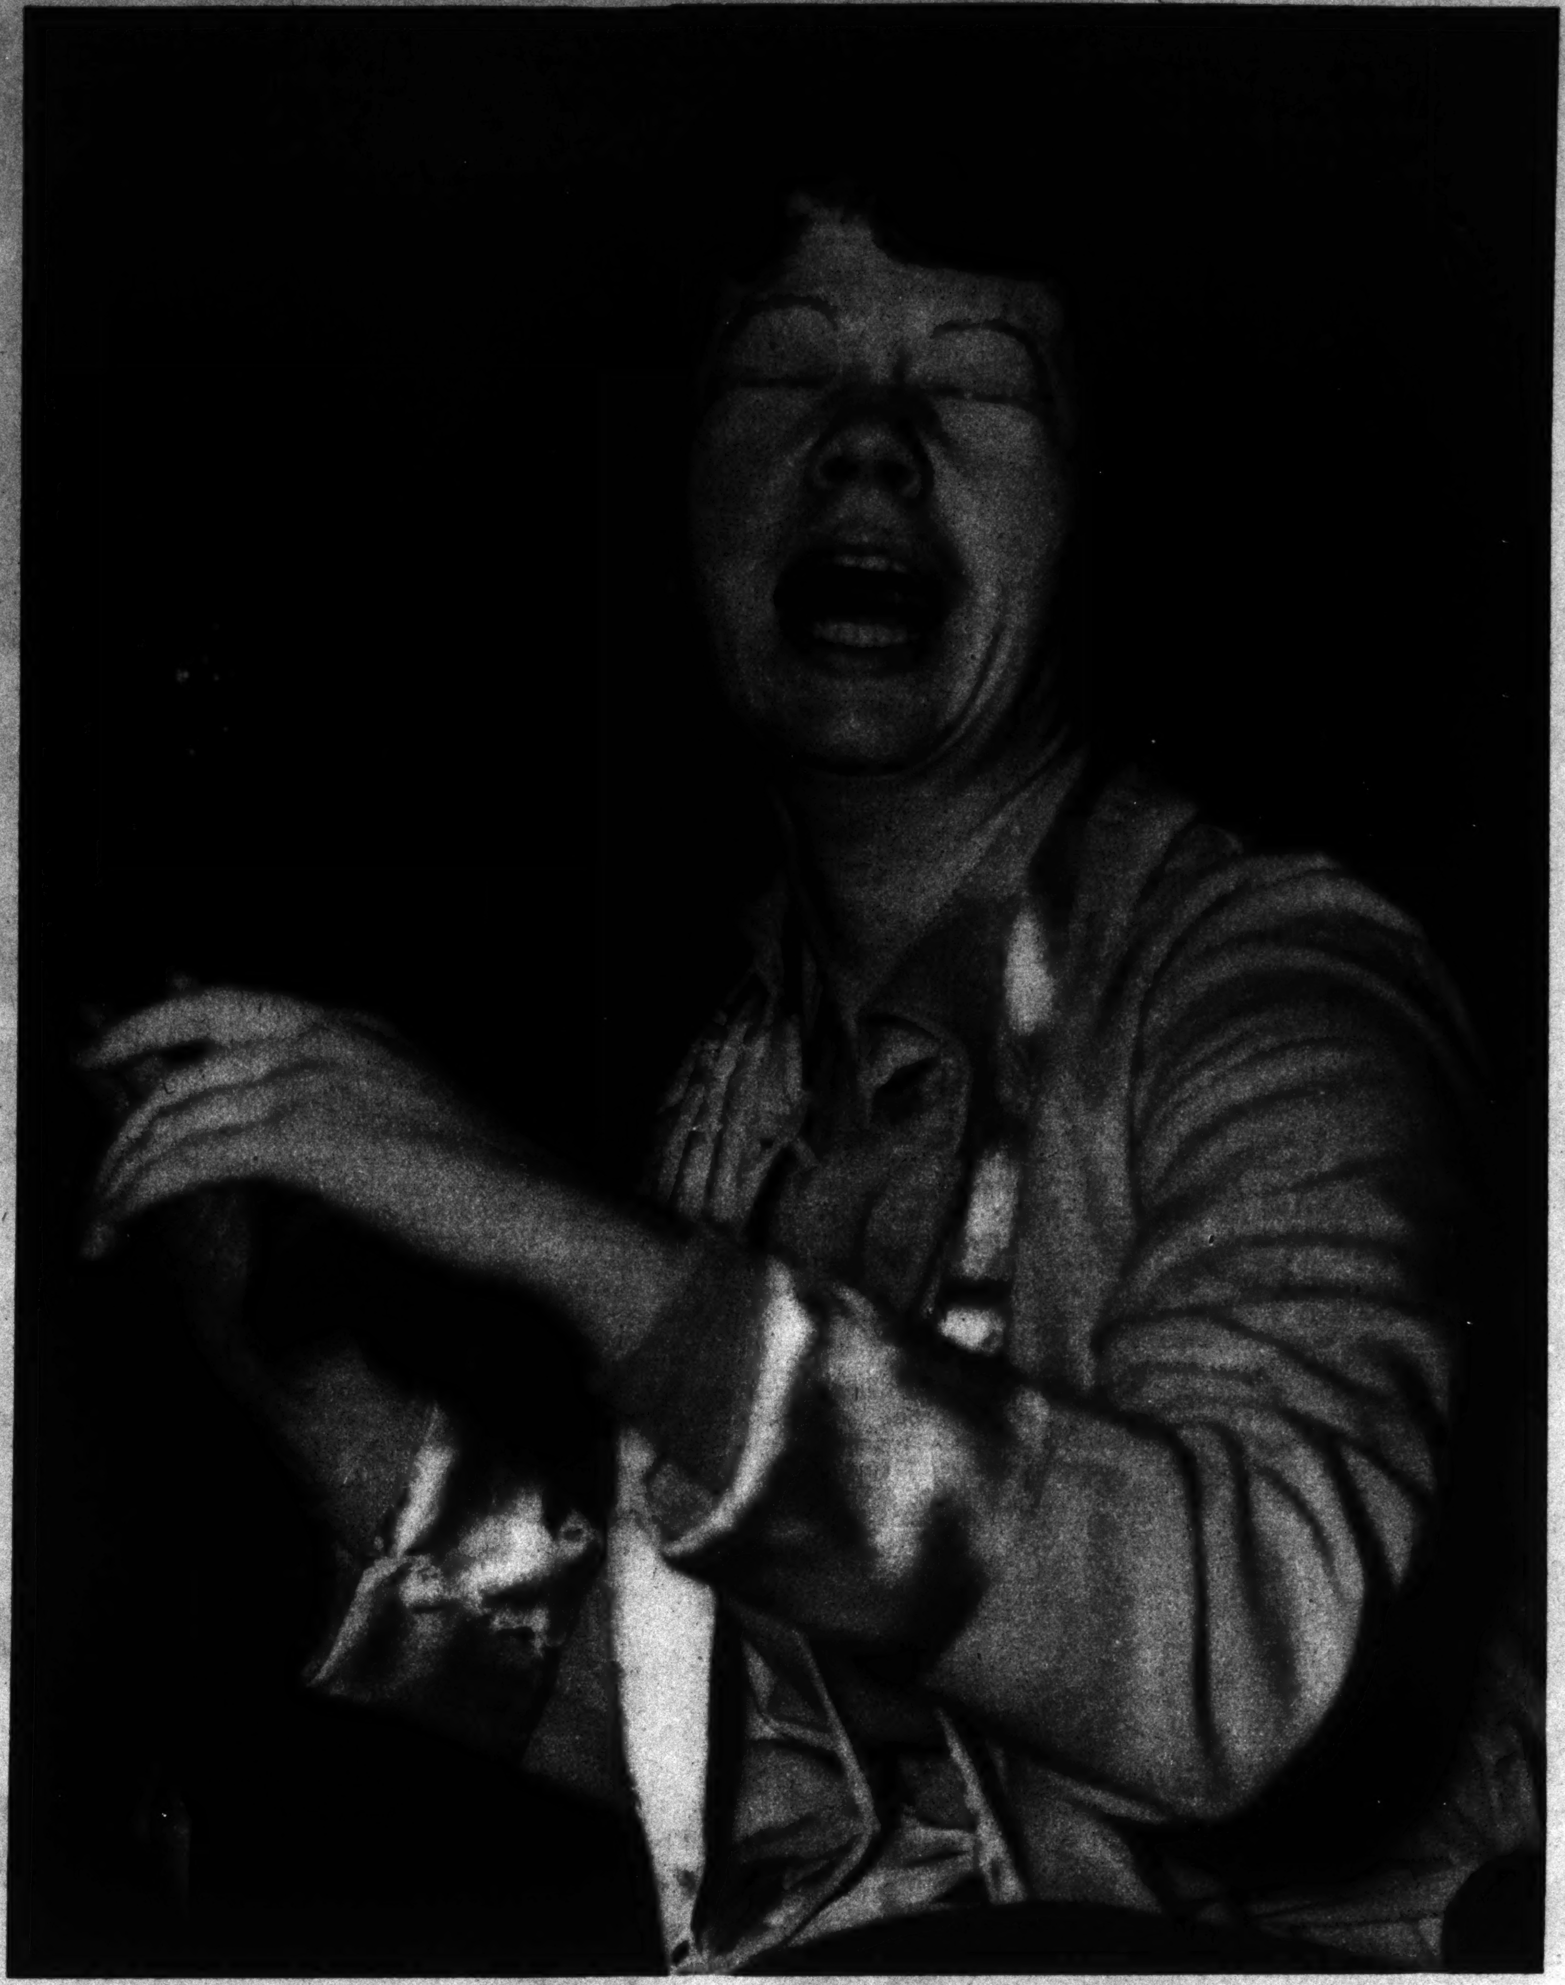
Last Chapter of an Indian 'Romance'



Mrs. Maxine Sturgis, daughter of Mrs. Anna Barnett, being taken forcibly out of the Barnett home by Federal officers. Her mother, once wife of the richest American Indian, also was ejected.



Mrs. Sturgis weeps from the effects of anger and tear gas.

Out on the walk, Mrs. Sturgis still keeps up the struggle.

ANNA LAURA BARNETT made her last stand the other day in her long fight to retain the wealth which marriage to Jackson Barnett, richest American Indian, put in her way. When a Federal marshal evicted her and her daughter from the handsome colonial mansion on Wilshire boulevard in Los Angeles, which they had shared with the aged Indian before his death in 1934, the embittered white woman fell back on a barbaric weapon of her husband's race. As the officers approached the house at dawn, traditional hour of attack, Mrs. Barnett waved a hatchet. The Government men threw tear gas, and rushed in. Mrs. Barnett hurled her "tomahawk," but the gas had blinded her and the weapon went wild. After the officers had dragged the kicking, screeching, pajama-clad women from the house, they found what appeared to be an unused store of ammunition in a bedroom—a box of rocks. Mrs. Barnett was detained behind bars while a charge of resisting a Federal officer was considered.

The Barnett case somewhat resembled the Thomasson case here. The Government charged that Mrs. Barnett "kidnaped" the Oklahoma Indian in 1920, when he was 78, and forced him into unwilling marriage so as to get his oil wealth. A Federal Court finally held Barnett incompetent and annulled the marriage three weeks before his death. The amiable old Creek had understood little of what the litigation was about, and asked only to be allowed to bask in peace on the California beaches, smoke five-cent cigars, and "direct traffic" outside his Wilshire boulevard mansion. As the legal fight over Barnett's $3,000,000 unbequeathed estate dragged on with Mrs. Barnett the loser, she clung to the home, living on $20 a month and selling most of the furniture. She defied an eviction order for two months before being forced out by the marshal's men, whom she described in her diary as an "army" of "gangsters."

Mrs. Barnett, who threw a hatchet at the officers, is taken away in an automobile. She is held by Deputy Marshal George Rossini. The scarf was intended to hide her face from photographers.

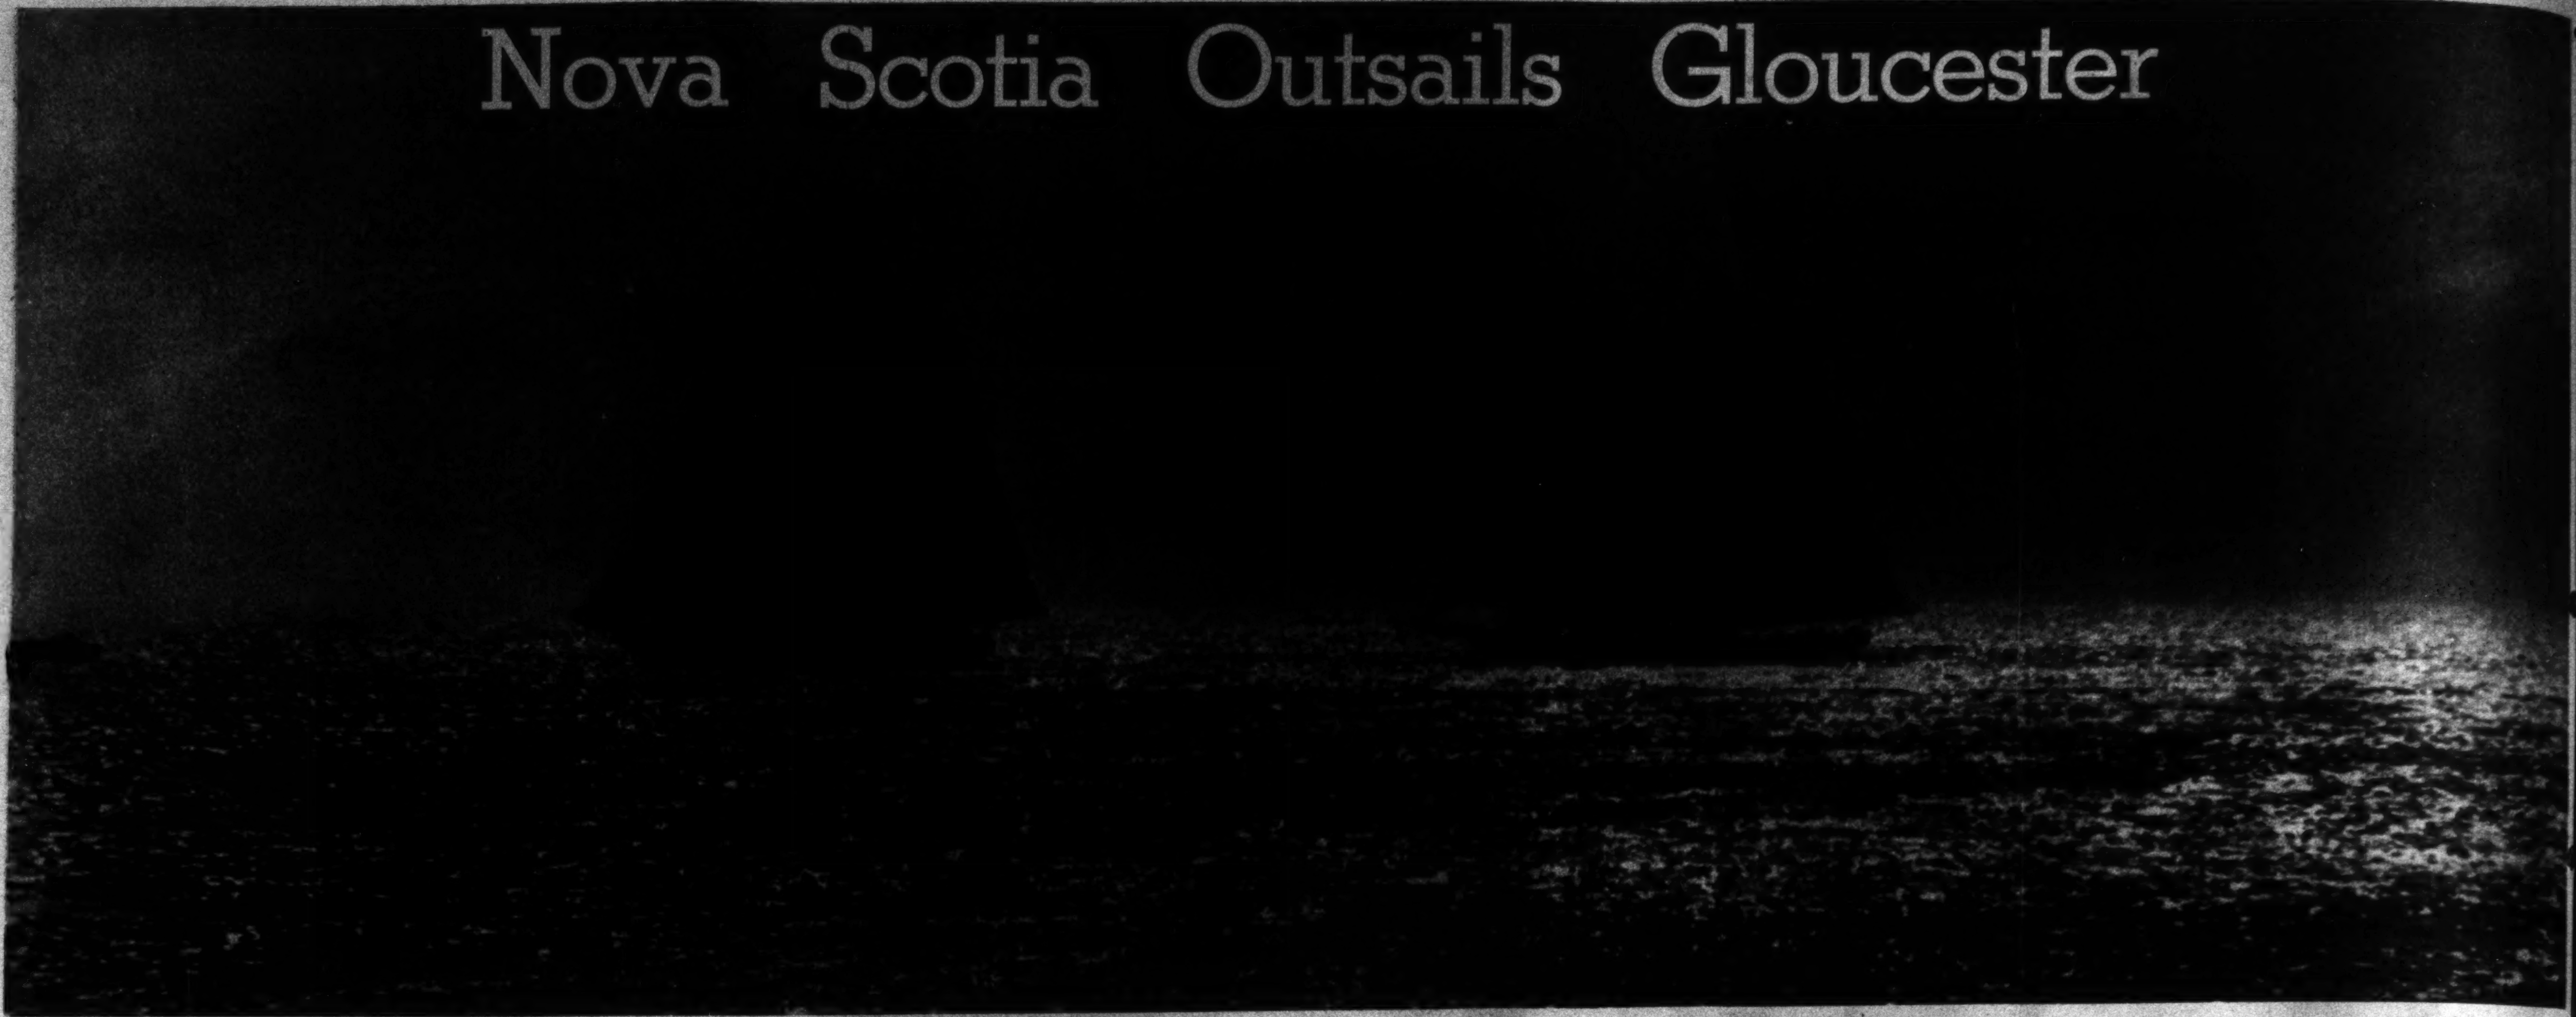
Nova Scotia Outsails Gloucester



Velvety silhouettes on a glittering sea. The Bluenose of Canada leads the Gertrude L. Thebaud of the United States in one of their five races off Boston.

WAY back in the days when Gloucester, Massachusetts, was just beginning to make its name as a great fish market, two or more Gloucester schooners never left the offshore banks for home without making a race of it. Victory meant the prestige of winning and also the higher price that went with the first fish on the market. Gloucestermen, like their Novia Scotian brethren, never have been piazza sailors. When they raced in the old days, they sailed with halyards lashed aloft, two men lashed to the wheel, and the lee rail well under. Even nowadays, when practically all fishing schooners have auxiliary engines and a craft is judged by her horsepower instead of the length of her boom, they prefer to sail with green water tumbling aft on their decks. But it wasn't until 1920 that Nova Scotia challenged Gloucester and the Esperanto beat up to Halifax, defeated the Delawanna, and returned with the Fishermen's International Cup. In 1921 and '22, the Bluenose defeated the Gloucester entries. There was a lull until 1930 when Bluenose was beaten by the Grace L. Thebaud. Next year, Bluenose defeated Thebaud. There was nothing more until just a few days ago when the salt-crusted old dowager came to Gloucester and beat Thebaud three out of five. But Gloucestermen glory in pointing out they outfooted the Canadians when the wind was blowing hard and there was a Grand Banks chop to the water. Since the series ended on a sour note, with both skippers criticising the racing committee, it appears likely that nevermore will the auxiliary engines be taken out of the schooners for racing.

Close-hauled on the port tack with lee rail nearly awash, Thebaud wins second race.

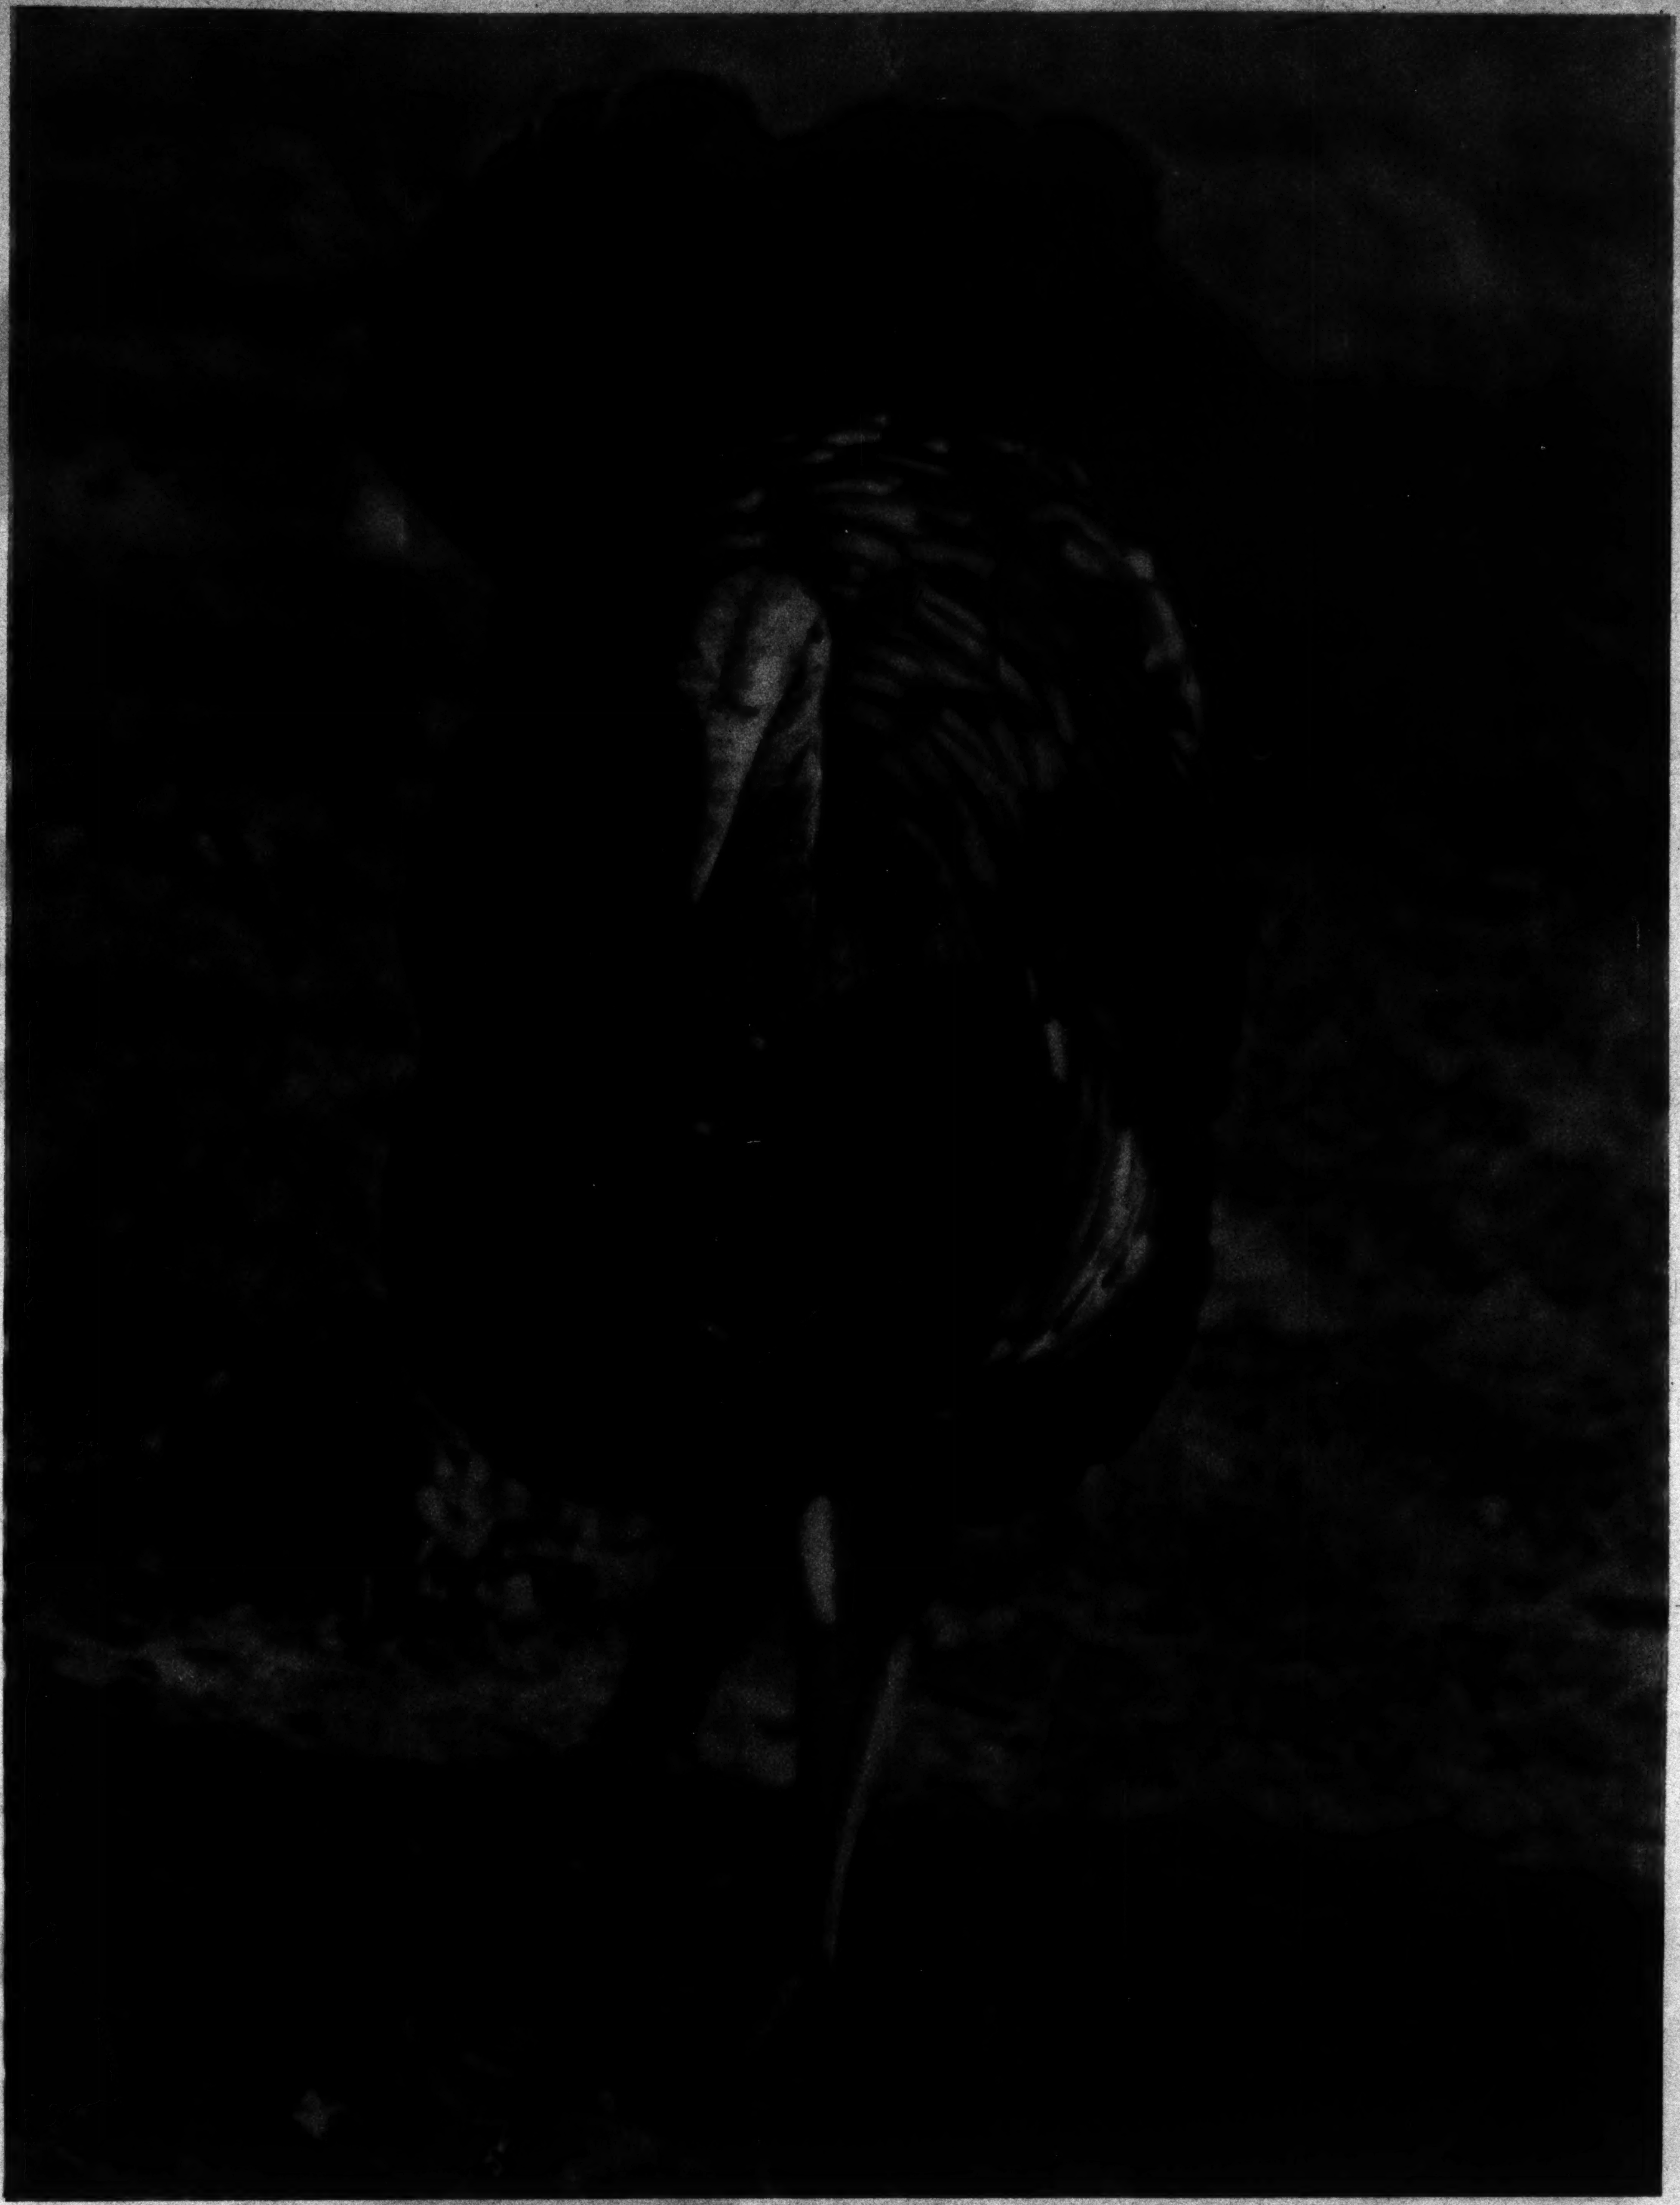
More Wild Turkeys for Missouri Ozarks

A wild turkey nest on Leach's preserve. His employes clip the wings of hens, place them in pens in the woods so they may mate with free gobblers, gather the eggs and hatch them by incubation.

The young turkeys are raised on wire to guard against disease, for they are very susceptible. These are three weeks old.

Purchased from Leach at 12 weeks of age, the turkeys are banded for identification and released in lots of 50 in the woods of the National Forest refuges. Dr. Paul D. Dalke of the United States Biological Survey (left) is doing the banding.

A blood specimen is also taken on a slide before the bird is released so it can be ascertained whether it has any disease.



A wild turkey gobbler. Note the tip of the tail is light brown. In domestic turkeys, these feathers are white. Wild turkeys are lighter than domestic ones, but reach a weight of 15 to 18 pounds.

THERE were, it is estimated, 250,000 wild turkeys in Missouri 100 years ago. There are only about 3600 now, concentrated in 45 counties. They were at first slaughtered ruthlessly, and efficient protection did not come until 1909. A one-month season, December, has prevailed since 1919, and the limit has been reduced to one bird, so that about 500 turkeys a year are legally shot. This December, for the first time, there will be a closed season on turkeys, to aid the State Conservation Commission in a program of providing a permanent breeding stock on refuges to restock surrounding areas for hunters.

Five hundred wild turkeys have been liberated in nine Ozark refuges by the commission this fall in pursuance of the program. Of these, 450 are in the Clark and Gardner National Forests, and 50 in the Indian Trail state refuge. They were purchased for $14 each from B. K. Leach, St. Louis lumber man, who raises the birds on a tract on the Black River in Reynolds County. The refuges are each 5000 acres, with an additional buffer zone of the same area, and provide the necessary 12-mile range, brush for cover, nuts and acorns for food, water, and protection from uncontrolled fires and hunters. The commission hopes to pay the annual cost from license revenue and the State's $25,000 share of the Federal shotgun and shell tax.

A week after their liberation, these wild turkeys were photographed in Wright County at dawn. They had previously been conditioned to shifting for themselves by two weeks in the woods on Leach's preserve. They quickly lose all trace of domesticity, and run to cover at the sight of man.

Australia Gets England's Most Famous Royal Beauty

WHEN the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI, goes to Australia next November to become Governor-General, Australians will see—and have for their own for a while—one of the most famous beauties in Europe and the most beautiful woman in the British royal family, the Duchess of Kent, former Princess Marina of Greece. Witty, vivacious, the Duchess has added a bright note to the austere dignity of the court circle since she was married with great pomp to the Duke, then Prince George, at Westminster Abbey four years ago. She influences women's styles in Britain just as the Prince of Wales used to set men's. She loves to dance, listen to music, and to shoot. She's self-willed; for instance, she uses makeup in spite of the Queen Mother's known disapproval; and George VI had to scold her a year ago, it was reported, for a deliberate snub to the Duchess of Windsor on a visit to the continent. Marina is 31 years old, four years younger than her husband.

The Duke's appointment is a gesture designed to emphasize Australia's allegiance to the Crown, the only tie that now legally binds it and other dominions to Britain. His duties will be as ceremonial as those of his brother, the King. The job will augment by $50,000 his annual salary as Duke of $125,000. He was prepared for affairs of state by experience in the Foreign Office, where he was assigned in 1929 after eight years in the Navy, and by such good will missions as that which he undertook with the Prince of Wales in South America.

The Duchess' attractive hats drew much attention at the horse races at Ascot last June.

The House of Parliament at Canberra. The capital was laid out at a cost of $66,000,000, with the finest roads, gardens, public buildings and homes in Australia. But its isolation and small population left fine hotels and homes empty, and there was a strong move seven years ago to abandon it.

Amazing New Honey Development

as University Professor places hives where bees gather from finer-flavored blossoms

Now thousands more say "I like Honey." For a University Professor found that certain blossoms produced finer-flavored honey. He placed hives where bees could gather nectar only from these blossoms. He placed them miles from buckwheat, alfalfa, sage and desert plants.

This honey, produced under controlled conditions, and called Lake Shore Honey, is guaranteed pure and uniform. Our hives are state inspected and certified. In taste tests 8 people in 10 vote Lake Shore flavor the finest.

Ask your grocer for Lake Shore Honey in the Honeycomb Jar with the new NO-DRIP Pouring Spout. Serve it to your family on pancakes, hot biscuits or bread. Everyone will enjoy this uniformly mild, pure honey. Recipes in package for honey candies, cakes, and cool drinks.

NEVER SLEEP ON AN "UPSET STOMACH"

Often neutralizing excess stomach acids can make the whole world smile in the morning

To relieve the effects of over-indulgence — escape "acid indigestion" that can ruin the whole next day — simply do this:

Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water — AT BEDTIME.

While you sleep, this wonderful alkalizer will be sweetening your stomach . . . easing the upset-feeling and nausea . . . helping to bring back a "normal" feeling. By morning you feel like a million.

Then — when you wake — take two more tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with the juice of a whole orange.

That is the quickest, simplest, easiest way to overcome the bad effects of too much eating, smoking or drinking. Thousands use it.

But — when you buy, make sure you get the Real Article. Never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — always ask for "Phillips'" Milk of Magnesia — the kind many doctors endorse.

Jews' Secret Fighting Force

Aids British Troops in Palestine

A secret telephone station where news of Arab movements is received and relayed.

CLASHES between Jews and Arabs occur with monotonous regularity as the question of how to establish a Jewish homeland in Palestine and yet appease Arab nationalism remains just as unsettled as it was when it came to the fore after the World War. As English troops cannot patrol all the territory in the British mandate, the Jews have set up a small army of their own with the King's approval and also a secret corps which is illegal. The pictures on this page are the first in this country of the Jewish secret corps which protects Jewish colonists in outlying districts from Arab raiders.

So vigilant a watch is necessary in Palestine that boys such as these must go on guard in the daytime after their parents keep the night watch against Arab marauders.

Do Your Fancy Foot-work in Comfort!

No more weary, troubled soles for those who dance in wedge-heeled sandals! Women say this new construction brings comfort they didn't believe possible. And that's just what women say, too, about Modess. This sanitary napkin is also constructed differently. Modess is made with a soft, fluffy filler—entirely different from napkins made of close-packed, papery layers. And women certainly appreciate the added comfort this brings.

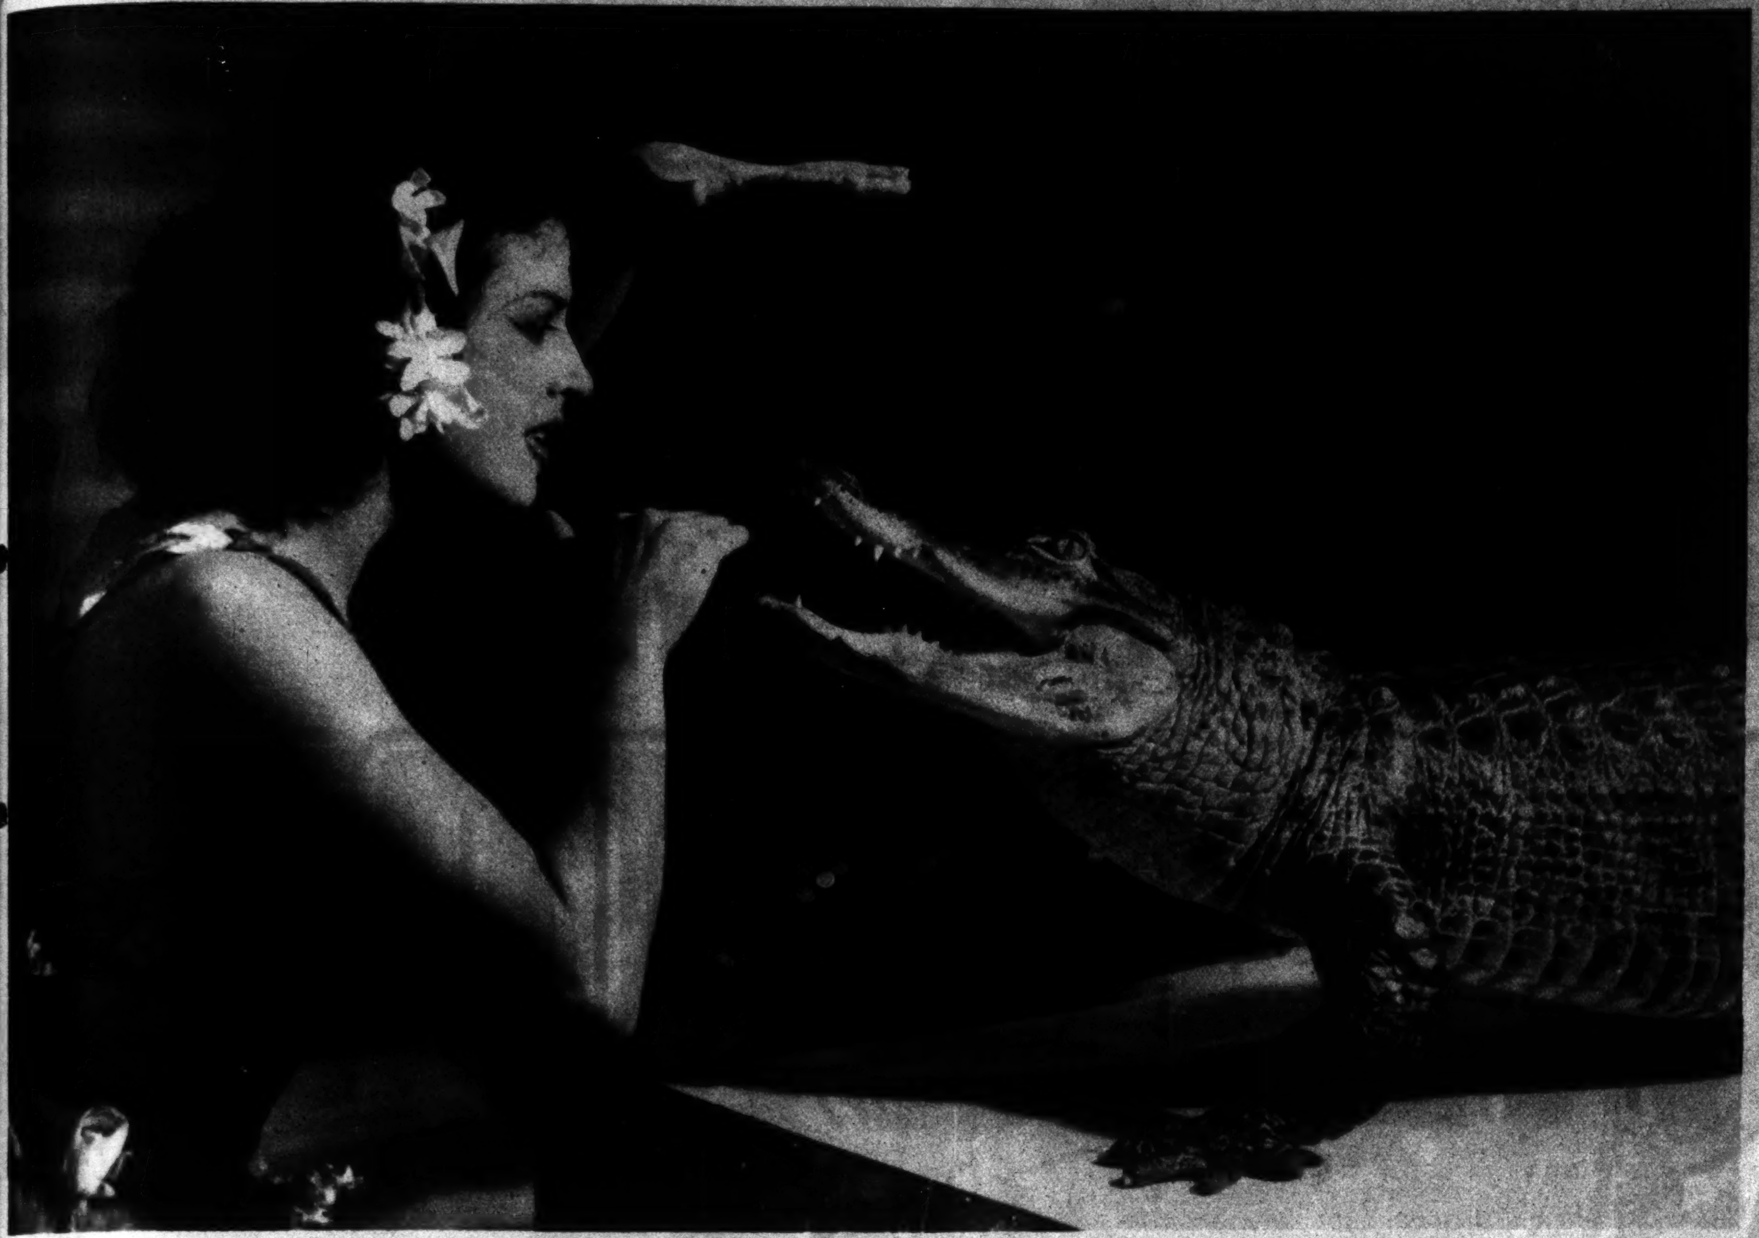
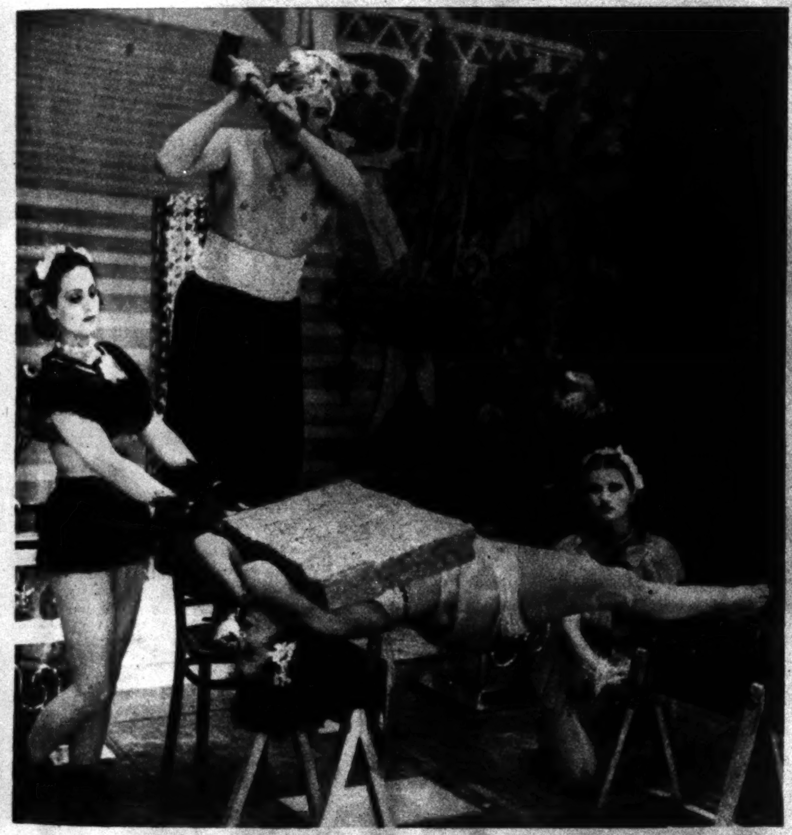
How Coringa Startles Her Audiences

WALKING barefooted up a ladder of sharp-edged swords is just as easy for Coringa, daughter of a Hindu fakir and a French woman, as grinding broken glass with her bare back. Despite her many exhibitions in England, it has not yet been disclosed how she achieves these feats or others such as cramming her arm down the maw of an alligator and caressing an eagle as though it were a domestic fowl. Some persons say she has hypnotic powers and others assert it's just stage magic. Coringa does not explain, just goes on baffling audiences in England and elsewhere.



Coringa weaves her hands about for a few seconds before risking an arm in the tooth-studded jaws of the alligator. Hypnotic power over the animal is suggested.



With shoulders and ankles resting on edges of thin metal strips, Coringa supports a rock on her chest; a sledge blow will crack the rock but not harm her.

BEFORE GREASE STOPS UP YOUR KITCHEN SINK —USE Drāno

HOW Drāno WORKS
Drāno makes heat here
Stirs and breaks up greasy muck here
Water flushes stoppage away here

Drāno keeps drains free of grease—garbage—keeps them from slowing or stopping up

No matter how careful a housekeeper you are—some grease will get down the kitchen sink drain—when you wash dishes and pans. In the pipes this grease may harden and cling to the inside of the drain. Soon the pipe is full of hard grease, coffee grounds, lint, and soapy scum so the drain runs slow, eventually gets stopped up. Regular use of Drāno prevents this. It melts, stirs up and removes the greasy muck so water easily flushes it away, makes the pipe clean as new. Once a week pour a cup of water in all drains—washbowls, bathtubs, toilets—and add a little Drāno—and you'll be rid of the nuisance of slow drains.

Drāno costs but 2¢ a drain a week to use—saves many a plumbing bill. Get Drāno today—at grocery, drug and hardware stores, wherever you live.

USE IN ALL DRAINS ONCE A WEEK

by

THOMAS B. MORGAN

XI at his desk ... and dictating ... chine indicate his ... methods.

...or view of St. Peter's ... on ceremony.

For the first time, an accredited Vatican correspondent tells the interesting and colorful story of life at the Papal Court under the present Pontiff.

In this series of articles, which begins tomorrow in the Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine, Mr. Morgan describes the background, ecclesiastical career and policies of Pope Pius XI... takes his readers through the 120-acre estate which has its own soldiers, fire department, coins and post office and blends medieval magnificence with modern progress . . . gives eyewitness accounts of colorful and majestic ceremonies attended by the author who has made a study of their significance, symbolism and history.

Assigned to the Vatican since 1921, Thomas B. Morgan has been received in audience 12 times and has the distinction of having been accorded the only exclusive interview ever granted by Pius XI.

Written objectively by a non-Catholic correspondent, "A Reporter at the Papal Court" should prove interesting to informed readers regardless of creed. The first chapter will appear

11-6
AN ARMY CAPTAIN WAS SHOT—PLANS TO THE DEADLY ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN STOLEN—AND JANE HAS AGAIN BEEN SWORN IN AS A "T-MAN" BECAUSE SHE CAN IDENTIFY THE SPY WHO COMMITTED THE CRIME—
WE'RE TRYING TO PICK UP THE MURDERER'S TRAIL WHERE HE JUMPED OFF THE TRAIN—YOUR JOB IS TO IDENTIFY HIM IF HE TRIES TO LEAVE THE COUNTRY WITH THOSE PLANS—AND WE THINK HE WILL!

EXACTLY—NOW GET SOME REST—THERE'S A SHIP SAILING AT SIX IN THE MORNING—YOU'LL GO ON BOARD!
IT'S GOOD TO BE HOME AGAIN—I'LL OPEN A—
DON'T MOVE—AND DON'T SCREAM—OR YOU'LL REGRET IT—
WHY YOU'RE THE WOMAN WITH THE BABY—THE WOMAN I HELPED OFF THE TRAIN—CLEVER, SWITCHING BAGS ON ME, WEREN'T YOU?
YES—THE WOMAN YOU THOUGHT YOU HAD TRICKED—
BUT I TRIED TO CATCH YOU, WHEN I DISCOVERED MY MISTAKE!
ALL RIGHT—IF YOU'RE ON THE LEVEL, JUST HAND OVER THAT BAG AND WE'LL CALL IT QUITS!
OF COURSE—THERE IT IS—ON THAT CHAIR—

GET STARTED, VARSITY! THE B TEAM IS SMEARING YOU LIKE STRAWBERRY JAM ON HOT TOAST!
WE MISSED SHEKELS ON THAT PLAY!
YES, THERE'S NO USE DENYING IT, JAKE — BUXTON WOULD BE TOUGH ENOUGH — EVEN WITH BUD IN THERE!
TOO BAD A LAD WITH SO MANY GOOD POINTS HAS TO GET OUT OF LINE
STAYING OUT AFTER HOURS, ESPECIALLY WITH DODE FRONEY — HE LEFT ME WITH NO CHOICE OTHER THAN SUSPENSION, JAKE SAY—ISN'T THAT BUD WORKING OUT OVER THERE?
IT'S NOBODY ELSE — AND ALL BY HIMSELF—THAT'S A GOOD SIGN!
HE'S COMING OVER!
THIS IS INTERESTING— THINK WE'LL GET A LOOK AT THE REAL SHEKELS!
MIND IF I WORK OUT DURING MY SUSPENSION, COACH?
NOT AT ALL, SHEKELS — A FINE IDEA — IN FACT I LIKE YOUR ATTITUDE
LOOK! THAT SECOND TEAM BACK IS RUNNING THROUGH THE ENTIRE VARSITY TEAM!
HEY— WHAT IS THIS?
WELL, I'LL BE—! BUD SHEKELS RAN OUT ON THE FIELD AND NAILED THE BALL CARRIER!
HIS HEART IS SO COMPLETELY WITH THE TEAM, HE COULDN'T BEAR TO LET THE GUY RAMBLE THROUGH HIS PALS!
OH, SHEKELS— COME OVER HERE!
GOOD BOY, COACH—AND I DON'T THINK YOU'RE MAKING A MISTAKE!
GET IN THERE AT HALF FOR THE VARSITY AND LEARN THOSE BUXTON PLAYS!
DO YOU MEAN THAT, COACH? WOW!
THERE'S ONE BUXTON FORMATION THAT DIDN'T GET FAR, JAKE!
MAY I BE SO BOLD AS TO SAY WE NOW STAND A CHANCE OF HOLDING THAT OUTFIT EVEN NEXT WEEK?

"OUR BABY WAS RAISED IN A TRUNK"
COME ON! HURRY UP! OUR ACT GOES ON IN 60 SECONDS! SHUT THE DOOR AND LET HER YELL
WE HAVE TO COME OUT HERE AND DANCE—WHILE SHE'S IN THERE CRYING HER EYES OUT
KEEP YOUR MIND ON THE ACT. I'VE TOLD YOU A MILLION TIMES HOW TO HANDLE THE CHILD
YOU KNOW SO MUCH YOU OUGHT TO HIRE A HALL AND GIVE LECTURES
WELL, I KNOW ONE THING—WE'LL KEEP ON HAVING TROUBLE AS LONG AS YOU PAMPER HER
I DON'T PAMPER HER! BUT I KNOW BETTER THAN TO MAKE THE BABY TAKE SOMETHING SHE DOESN'T LIKE
ALL RIGHT! ALL RIGHT! NOBODY CAN TELL YOU ANYTHING
SAY, YOU PEOPLE HAVE ARGUED EVER SINCE YOU'VE BEEN PLAYING THIS THEATRE! WHAT'S THE MATTER?
THE BABY NEEDS A LAXATIVE AND SHE WON'T GIVE IT TO HER
YOU BET I WON'T IT TASTES TERRIBLE
YOU'RE RIGHT, FORCING A CHILD TO TAKE ANY NASTY-TASTING MEDICINE CAN OFTEN UPSET HER STOMACH—AND SHOCK HER ENTIRE NERVOUS SYSTEM WHO TOLD YOU THAT?
OUR DOCTOR! WE HAD AN AWFUL TIME JAMMING A LAXATIVE DOWN OUR GRAND-CHILD UNTIL HE TOLD US WHAT TO DO HEAVENS! WHAT DID HE SAY?
HE SAID THAT IN THESE DAYS OF SPECIAL CHILD CARE A BABY SHOULD GET A NICE-TASTING-LAXATIVE MADE ESPECIALLY FOR CHILDREN
SO HE RECOMMENDED FLETCHER'S CASTORIA BECAUSE IT'S A REAL CHILD'S LAXATIVE... ...IT HAS NO HARSH "ADULT" DRUGS—SO IT WON'T CAUSE CRAMPING PAINS. IT WON'T DISTURB THE INFANT SYSTEM. IT NEVER FORMS A HABIT, AND CHILDREN LOVE TO TAKE IT!
LET'S GET A BOTTLE FROM THE DRUG STORE NOW
